BERTRAND MAN KILLED IN FREAK ACCIDENT

LBJ and Advisors Busy on Message and The Budgets

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson meets today with Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Presidential Assistant McGeorge Bundy to review world developments.

The three also were to discuss the State Department's budget for the next fiscal year and go over personnel matters.

George McGhee, U.S. ambassador to Bonn, who is home for consultation, will fly to the ranch Wednesday to review developments in West Germany.

Johnson's statement that he would review with Rusk and Bundy "ambassadors throughout the world" appeared to be in line with reports he plans shifts in 15 to 20 ambassadorships.

Official sources in Washington denied that McGhee or David K. E. Bruce, ambassador to London, would be involved in the shifts.

The shifting is expected to start in January with the naming of seven ambassadors and a minister to vacant posts.

Johnson is still working on his State of the Union message. He discussed it by phone Monday with Rusk, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and others.

Johnson told newsmen at an informal session on the front lawn of the LBJ Ranch Monday that next Monday's State of the Union message will be brief and will emphasize recommendations he would like to see considered promptly.

He displayed three thick loose-leaf notebooks which he said contained suggestions some 50 agencies would like him to consider before writing his message.

Johnson said parts of the administration's program not outlined in the message "will be dealt with during the next four years in a series of messages from time to time, and they will be timed, based upon when Congress is ready to receive them and when the committees can act upon them and when the administration has completed its studies in the respective fields."

The State of the Union message will be delivered to a joint session of Congress and the American public at 9 p.m. on the opening day of the new Congress.

Johnson told newsmen he had picked a new commissioner of Internal Revenue and filled two other major posts.

Sheldon B. Cohen, 37, chief counsel of the Internal Revenue Service, will become commissioner.

Dr. Frederick Lewis Deming, 52, president of the Federal Reserve Bank in Minneapolis, will become undersecretary of the Treasury for monetary affairs.

Mitchell Rogovin, 34, assistant to the commissioner of Internal Revenue, will succeed Cohen as chief counsel.

Cohen will succeed Bertrand Harding as head of the IRS. Harding was named acting commissioner last July 10 to

Way Clear For UN To Finish

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. AP -- The way was reported clear today for the U. N. General Assembly to clean up year-end business without a showdown over the Soviet Union's vote.

Assembly President Alex Quaison - Sackey of Ghana was expected to tell the assembly this morning that he had worked out an agreement with key delegates.

Diplomatic sources said the agreement would let the assembly elect four new Security Council members and adopt a stopgap budgetary resolution by the general - consent procedure that was used on opening day, Dec. 1, to elect the president and admit Malawi, Malta and Zambia to U. N. membership.

That would put off a Soviet-U.S. showdown over Article 19 of the U.N. Charter. The assembly, after finishing the essential business Wednesday would recess until around Jan. 11.

Hint of "Shake-up" By LBJ Worries Many Officials

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson had a lot of officials and their wives sitting on the edge of their chairs today — some with a sense of foreboding, some in hopeful expectation.

Much excitement was aroused by word that the President plans a shakeup in his "little Cabinet;" that he will make many new appointments to such posts as undersecretary, assistant secretary and other administrators.

The President has ordered a "talent hunt." He wants, so far as possible, to recruit his new administrators from men and women already in the government.

So the question arose: Who will get the ax, and who will be promoted to jobs paying as high as $30,000 a year?

Johnson dipped into government ranks in making two of his most recent appointments. Saturday he named William J. Driver to head the Veterans Administration. Monday night he selected Sheldon S. Cohen to be collector of internal revenue.

Driver, who had been deputy VA administrator, succeeds John S. Gleason Jr., who resigned. Cohen, chief counsel of the IRS, succeeds acting Com-

Learn of Academy Demands

To enter an armed force academy of the United States, it was learned that it takes more than passing an entrance examination, as was pointed out Monday noon when 15 young candidates met with Congressman Paul C. Jones at the Mid-Towner.

To acquaint the young men with what to expect to be admitted to West Point, the Naval or the Airforce Academy, two cadets and a graduate were present to outline the duties. The three academy speakers were, First Lieutenant Roy Clinton, West Point graduate; Cadet Mike Henzi, third year at Annapolis; and Cadet David Moore, senior in the Airforce Academy. These young men were asked to discuss both the good and bad points while pursuing their duties.

Officer Clinton said, "my remarks are devoted to you young men who are candidates and want to go to West Point. A plebe should remember that he will not be favored while in the school. You spend most of your time studying, and can date only on a Saturday night. You're in the Academy to be trained to be a soldier, and little time for anything else.

"You will not have the comforts of home as you spend about half of the time on duty in the field of operations and must sleep out. You must be a dedicated man and also feel that you are being cheated. Above all forget about the sweetheart at home. Your pay scale starts at around $235 per month. I have been out of service 18 months and have gone up to $600 per month. They need young officers and you should be a captain by the time you are 28."

Cadet Mike Henzi of the Naval Academy said, "the Navy needs officers, but they must be good, and the time is devoted to make a man out of you. It's a rough life and not much money, and above all, you'll lose your girl friend, because you must forsake all for your duties.

"I am majoring in mathematics, and will be going to the submarines soon. After a few years in the academy you will be able to hold conversation with anyone who has been through college. You will take several trips to the Mediterrean, as well as Europe, and spend much time at the training base in Jacksonville, Fla.

Air Force Cadet David Moore told the candidates he didn't realize what he was getting into, because, "I never have flown before. There are many bad things to look forward to. You will be away from home at least half of the time after you have graduated. One thing that is good is the $500 per month flight pay.

"I thought I was a superman before I went in, but they almost killed me with the physical training I went through. Anyone attending the academy can receive a major in one of eight fields offered.

New Italian President is Chosen

ROME AP -- Giuseppe Saragat, 66, first Socialist president in Italian history, swore faith to the nation and the constitution today as a 101-gun salute thundered over Rome from the Janiculum Hill.

The portly former foreign minister took his oath of office standing stiffly erect before a combined session of Parliament, which elected him to a seven-year term Monday on the 21st ballot. He succeeds Christian Democrat Antonio Segni, who resigned because of illness.

Although Saragat is pro-NATO and anti-Communist, the Communists' 253 votes were the decisive factor. They gave him a total of 646, well beyond the 482 necessary.

The Italian president is largely a figurehead, but in times of government crisis he names the new premier and he can dissolve Parliament. He also has considerable influence on political trends.

Rotarians are Told About Income Tax

In the Rotary Club Monday night at the Rustic Rock, George Pfautsch presented his own program on the new income tax laws. He is the accountant for Potlatch Forests, Inc.

He informed his fellow Rotarians that the 1964 tax structure would be some larger than the previous year, as well as in 1965, as the tax spread for this year was a low of 16 percent to a high of 77 percent, and next year would be 14 and 70 per cent. An example would be that an individual who made $7500 would be an additional $100 tax.

The dividend credit has been lowered from four to two percent this year. Contributions have been increased to 30 percent and includes all charities, and can be spread over the years.

Those over 65 years can

Car Hits Charley Taylor

Charley Taylor, a 53-year old farmer of near Bertrand was killed about 7:15 p.m. Monday on Route "C", five miles south of Charleston at the intersection with Highway 77 when he was hit by a car driven by Neva Jackson, 36, Route 1, Charleston.

According to the State Highway Patrol, Mr. Taylor had been driving his car, lost control and it went into the ditch.

His son, Bobbie Gene Taylor tried to pull his father's car out of the ditch with another car using a chain. The chain broke and Mr. Taylor got out of his car and went onto the highway to his son's car to help refasten the chain.

Neva Jackson saw the son's car on the highway and in dodging a collision with the car hit Mr. Taylor. He was knocked into the ditch and, it is believed, killed instantly.

Mr. Taylor was born June 2, 1911 in East Prairie, son of the late William and Betty Taylor and in 1941 married the former Miss Annie Lee Flowers, who survives. Other survivors are a daughter, Betty Ann; four sons, Billy Gene; Bobby Gene, Thomas Lee and Don Ray, all at home and a half brother, Hogue Bradley, address unknown.

The body is at the Shelby Funeral Home in East Prairie where services will be conducted in the Shelby chapel at 2 p.m. Wednesday. The Rev. S. C. Headrick will officiate and interment will be in Dogwood cemetery.

There were only four traffic accidents in Troop E territory Monday, the one fatality and four injured.

At 4:35 p.m. Monday, the Patrol reports, in Bloomfield on Highway 25 at a four-way stop, Henry Hagan, 48, of Perryville, failed to stop and hit a car driven by Margaret Layton, 42, of Bloomfield and then skidded and hit a car driven by Mary Livers, 38, of Dexter. No injuries but Hagan was charged with careless and imprudent driving.

At 8 a.m. Monday, the Patrol reports, a quarter mile south of Morley on Highway 61, Theo Poindexter, 39, of Sikeston, lost control of his truck and it sideswiped a car driven by Joseph Dyra, 48, of St. Louis and then went off the road to turn over. No injuries reported.

PRINTING OF DAR REPORT CAUSED A FUROR

Earlier this year, the DAR was criticized in the United States Senate. This action followed the introduction of a resolution to print the society's annual report as Congress does every year.

A senator charged that the organization enjoyed a tax-exempt status while engaged in political action.

On the next day the President, Mrs. Robert V. H. Duncan, issued a news release which was subsequently inserted into the Congressional Record. It said:

"There is nothing secret about the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, its policies, actions or purposes. As President General, I am glad and perfectly willing to answer bona fide questions concerning this organization.

"Further, any interested inquiry is welcome as it provides an opportunity to inform the public at large the comprehensive NSDAR program -- in the fields of historic preservation, promotion of education and patriotic endeavor -- which has been steadfastly and conscientiously maintained and supported for more than 72 years. We are proud of this record and feel it speaks for itself.

"So far as the term 'politicking' is concerned, I am surprised at its use and am at something of a loss to know just what is meant, inasmuch as the National Society maintains no lobby at national, state, or local government levels, contributes to no political party or candidates in any way, initiates no legislation, and does not -- as do a number of organizations -- even in its own internal setup have any legislative chairmen. Yes, the DAR, being interested in the preservation and maintenance of our constitutional Republic, does urge its members as individual good American citizens to be informed and to exercise the privilege of the franchise and vote, but how one votes is entirely up to the individual."

In discussing the "tax-free" inference, Mrs. Duncan cited several factors. She explained:

"Aside from the fact that the DAR was not organized and has never been operated for profit, for the past 30 years its privately owned auditorium has been made available on an at-cost basis -- when no other or similar facility was available -- for the furtherance of cultural and educational pursuits in the Nation's Capital. On this the NSDAR pays business taxes to the District of Columbia; last year these ran over $20,000. This year they will run more.

"As respects patriotic endeavor, the taking of stands and passing of resolutions, the recent newspaper-carried statement assigning political motivation to the activities of the NSDAR, on national and international problems, is misleading," Mrs. Duncan said.

The DAR was founded in 1890 and five years later was chartered by the Congress of the United States for historic, educational, and patriotic purposes.

"It always has been and remains today just such an organization," the President declared.

"The national society through the years has patriotically supported and encouraged appreciation of our American heritage and way of life where lie the fundamental principles and ideals that have given this nation and its people the greatest freedom, most justice, and the highest standard of living known to man.

"This has been the unwavering course of the NSDAR irrespective of changes in political administrations, whether in the executive or legislative branches of the federal government, or both.

"The DAR acts independently and takes its stand alone, without affiliation or identity with any other organization. Further, whether one agrees with DAR stands or not, it is noteworthy that not once - never - in the course of its existence has it ever passed a resolution asking anything for itself - no special consideration, favor of any kind, grant or sudsidy."

What has the DAR accomplished over the years? The record reveals that annual DAR contributions to schools total approximately $200,000 a year, exclusive of the incalculable amount given to students through loans and scholarships irrespective of race, color, or creed. DAR assistance in 1963 to American Indians is in excess of $34,000. The organization owns and operates two schools in South Carolina and Alabama - investments of more than $2 million.

In addition, the DAR assists immigrants and naturalized citizens. Over the years, it has provided free copies of its textbook of instructions to prepare new citizens for citizenship tests. To date, more than 9 million have been distributed free of charge.

The DAR has placed great emphasis on its work with youth. Its activities consist of nationwide programs promoting good citizenship, leadership, dependability, and service.

The DAR has marked, restored and maintained many landmarks of importance. It constructed and gave to the Valley Forge Foundation the famous Memorial Bell Tower in Pennsylvania at a cost of more than $400,000.

At its national headquarters in Washington, the DAR maintains a genealogical and historic research library, and an American museum.

Included in the long and impressive record of public service by the DAR is its Hospital Corps. Organized in April of 1898 to recruit nurses for service during the Spanish-American War, it became the nucleus of the Army Nurse Corps. For those nurses whose services were not long enough to quality for government pensions, the DAR provided pensions.

During World War I, cash and gifts from DAR members totaled close to $4 million. In addition, they rendered aid to French war orphans and restored the water system in a French village. The DAR purchased more than $130 million in war bonds.

During World War II, the organization purchased bonds in excess of $206 million; gave almost $1.3 million in projects and another $1.3 million to the American Red Cross.

DAR aid to American Indians is coordinated through the American Indians Committee. More than $100,000 was given last year for scholarships and clothing.

One DAR committee promotes citizenship training and study of American Government and institutions. Through this committee, thousands of aliens receive help in preparing for naturalization examinations. In every state in the nation and in the District of Columbia, the DAR committee members give their time and means in teaching classes. The DAR believes that Americanism is best fostered by friendship between aliens and citizens and by inculcating the ideals of our country in the hearts and minds of those who have made this country their choice. DAR interest does not cease after their students become citizens. Members visit new citizens, take them to churches, libraries, historical places, and assist them in registering and voting.

In 1913, the DAR founded the Americanization School in Washington, D. C. It is the only school of its kind in the United States, and by an act of Congress was incorporated into the District of Columbia school system in 1919. Approximately 1,500 students from 80 nations attend.

Of special significance is their Children of American Revolution Committee which has a membership of more than 18,000. Its purpose is to secure perception and adoption of those principles and institutions for which their ancestors fought and died.

Its Good Citizens Committee presents a certificate and pin to the winner in each senior high school Good Citizen Contest, a $100 U.S. Saving Bond and pin to each State Good Citizen, and a $1,000 scholarship to the National DAR Good Citizen.

We submit that a study of the activities of the DAR shows that the organization actively promotes Americanism and renders unselfish service to both young and old.

Consumer businesses of all sorts are climbing on the telephone bandwagon. Fortunately for the consumer, the majority stress the once rare qualities of brevity and honest. And their sales are zooming.

WELCOME COLD WATER

Assistant Treasury Secretary Stanley Surrey has expressed opposition to the currently-popular Washington idea of Federal subsidies direct to the states for any and all purposes.

This proposition has been advanced on the basis that state and local government costs are advancing rapidly, and that Uncle Sam should help out by making payments direct to the states out of Federal revenues.

Sometimes it is suggested that this happens when the budget shows a surplus again, if ever, and at other times it is suggested that the Treasury send money it will merely have to borrow. In any case, the enthusiasts for this plan emphasize that there would be "no strings," or anyway, hardly any.

Mr. Surrey's is the first Administration voice to be raised against this proposal, and we hope he will get backing.

There is no limit to the money that government can spend, given the chance. The principal restraint on extravagance felt by state and local governments now arises from the fact that their taxpayers and their voters are mainly the same people and must pay for what they get.

Once a politician sees the opportunity to spend money from other states on the citizens of his own state, the temptation will be irresistible -- especially around election time.

The absence of "strings" cannot be taken seriously by any observer of the Washington scene. Hours after California voters adopted a provision enabling any property owner his property, the U. S. cut off aid to all California urban renewal projects. This surprised no one, as the Government insists on its own goals.

The sensible approach is for the Federal Government to collect no more than it needs, and to allow the states and cities to raise their own money. If Federal taxes go down, the states and cities will have a better opportunity to tax for their own needs.

THE SO AND SO'S

THE STORY is told of Will Rogers being shown the beautiful new state capitol building at Lincoln, Nebraska. They were standing in front of the building reading the inscription over the entrance: "The vigilance of the people is the salvation of the state."

Will Rogers read it, thought about it a moment, then scratched his head and said, "Why don't they put these things up there in language the people can understand?"

"Oh, something like this," replied Will. "You gotta watch them guys or they'll run away with the state capitol."

The murder of medical Missionary Dr. Paul Carlson by Congolese rebels in Stanleyville was a tragic waste of life and talent. It may serve some useful purpose, however, by reminding us that many more Americans like him are overseas, risking their health if not their lives, working long days under primitive conditions to help their fellow men.

In the field of medicine alone, more than 2,000 U. S. doctors are serving in Africa, Asia and Latin America. Few of them achieve the fame of a Dr. Dooley of Laos or Dr. Seagrave of Burma. Fortunately few of them meet the fate of a Dr. Carlson.

Despite the hardships -- an 18-hour day or longer, lack of modern equipment, scarcity of medical supplies, the treatment of diseases unknown in the United States -- there has been a steady upsurge of interest among doctors in serving overseas. The American Medical Association reports it has received nearly 1,000 queries from doctors in the past year.

Hundreds of doctors are working with the 600 to 700 health projects and more than 350 hospitals sponsored by U. S. organizations in foreign lands. The AMA estimates that Protestant denominations have about

Others are with nonsectarian charitable organizations for varying periods of service. For example, CARE-MEDICO sends about 150 volunteer doctors overseas every year; Project Hope uses 35 to 40 volunteers on two to three-month duty tours.

About 200 other American physicians serve with U. S. government agencies such as the Agency for International Development (AID), the Peace Corps, the Public Health Service and the National Institutes of Health.

The AMA maintains a clearing house to process the growing number of requests from foreign countries for doctors. It also sends its publications free of charge to doctors overseas, maintains dues-free membership for them and supplies information on the types of diseases and kinds of facilities that may be encountered in individual countries.

For missions perpetually scrounging for supplies, it publishes a directory listing more than 35 voluntary, nonprofit organizations which collect surplus medical journals, textbooks, equipment, drugs and drug samples for shipment overseas.

TO CHANGE TACTICS

Karl Marx, originator of modern communism, was thoroughly discredited in 1903 but the faithful comprising Lenin and 16 comrades met in London and made plans to carry forward.

By 1917 this force had increased to about 40,000 and in November they seized control of the Kerensky government which had overthrown the czarist regime the previous March. Lenin's and Trotsky's Bolsheviks were dominating 160 million very backward people. Despite repeated losses in armed conflicts, famines and blood purges, causing a total of many millions of deaths, the number under communist domination grows. Their leaders, although sometimes transient, steadfastly declare they will take over and rule the entire world. Many wonder how they hope to achieve their goals and methods available to them are a worthy subject of study. Needless to say those who lead are able though not especially versatile.

Their chance of success is a matter of frequent discussion as it should be. The question arises as to the tactics the communists must pursue to take over all of the freedom loving people of the world, for it is well known that the majority do not desire to live under communist control.

When the changes the communists must make to achieve a take-over are determined, it can be very helpful to those who will resist to know how they can become most effective in maintaining independence.

HITS LOANS CHANGING CROPLAND TO COURSES

Future holes-in-one on farm land converted into golf courses through Federal agency loans will undoubtedly please the golfer, says Tax Foundation, Inc. But they won't win any cheers from Sen. John J. Williams of Delaware.

Before Congress adjourned, he spoke against loan advances made by the Farmers Home Administration, sometimes "over $1,000 per acre," to have farmland retired from crop production and diverted to recreational purposes.

These loans, Sen. Williams said, had little or no connection with farming and were "extremely costly to the taxpayer."

In one Maryland county, he said, 136 farm acres were retired and converted to a golf course with a FHA loan of $151,190.

"Sure," you reply. "Dizzy Dean and Porfirio Rubirosa."

NEW YORK (AP) — Every year has a lost week.

It is doubtful that an examination of American history would disclose any great inventions were conceived, any great poems written, any inspiring songs created between Christmas and New Year's Day.

It is not a week for doing great things; it is a week for hanging on — and hoping for better days.

Everyone is gripped by a kind of spiritual numbness and physical lethargy that has turned us all into ambulant zombies, drained of all feeling.

The season of good will to all has passed, leaving us exhausted from Christmas satieties and excesses and mildly resentful of Santa Claus, whom we tend to blame for our blue and listless mood. Anyone who walks along the streets now absent - mindedly whistling "Jingle Bells" invites black looks.

What we all seem to need is a high-powered, double action, after-Christmas pep pill that will rescue us from the dumps and make us feel as good as we did just a week ago.

What happened anyway to that frolic sense of anticipation, that friendly sense of the joy of sharing, that pulse-throbbing thrill in the mere human ecstasy of being alive? They are gone, leaving a barren glumness in their place.

At home the small boy sits listlessly staring at his broken drum. His older sister—on holiday from school — whines drearily, "What'll I do, Mama, there's no one to play with?" And Mama herself wonders wearily how she's going to summon the strength to get done all the things that cry for her to do.

One by one the browning needles drop from the Christmas tree upon the living room rug. Sensing the decline in family cheer, the dog snarls at the cat, and the cat arches her back and hisses back.

The deterioration in the jolly "Ho, Ho, Ho!" spirit is even more evident outside the home. The postman totes his load of belated Christmas cards with the self-pitying air of an Atlas carrying unnecessary burdens.

In the department stores the clerks, still busy taking back or exchanging presents, are islands of industriousness in the general inertia, but their smiles are forced and they go about their chores reluctantly.

But this too will pass.

After the first of January, fired up with new resolutions, everyone will be back on the beam. Some of them will even begin to believe in Santa Claus again.

The Washington Merry- Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON -- Sen. Barry Goldwater has sent a surprisingly friendly personal letter to the man he so recently called "Yo-Yo McNamara" and bitterly blamed for "McNamara's War" in South Vietnam.

In the letter, Goldwater differs with his fellow reservist senators who have been blasting McNamara, and supports him in closing down surplus military bases and merging the Ready Reserve with the National Guard.

"I find myself in agreement with you and I believe it only fair to tell you so," wrote Goldwater to the man he called "Yo-Yo."

This is all the more astonishing since Goldwater, a Major General in the Ready Reserve, formerly commanded the Elite, Reserve Air Force Squadron on Capitol Hill and led many of the overseas junkets McNamara is now stopping.

Yet Goldwater is taking a different attitude than most other VIP Reservists who have been squawking about losing their military privileges. His letter to McNamara, dictated four days before it was finally typed up, was mailed exactly as it came off Goldwater's tongue, poor syntax and all.

Both men have kept the exchange private but this column has managed to obtain a copy of the Goldwater letter.

"I think your move relative to incorporating the Reserve and the Guard," dictated Goldwater, "is a just one. In fact, I had a few harpoons thrown at me when I suggested the same thing a number of years ago.

RESERVE ISN'T READY

"I have been in the Reserve and National Guard at various times for the past 34 years, and I must say that of the two, with the exception of the Reserve Infantry Divisions now activated, the Guard training is by far superior.

"For example, I belonged to a Reserve Infantry Regiment during the thirties, and when we were called up for physicals prior to 1940, only seven of us could pass, and during that entire time to my memory, there was never a meeting of the organization called.

"Any Reserve component, whether it be the National Guard or the Reserve, must exercise their muscles constantly in order to be ready, and the National Guard does this, and in most cases, the Reserve is prevented from doing it by lack of equipment and actually lack of interest from the parent organization.

"It has long been known that there have been bases in our inventory that are no longer needed, and I congratulate you on taking the steps that you did to close them, although I withhold my judgment on some of the SAC bases until we find out further down the line what our need will be in relation to the mix of bombers and missiles.

"With best personal wishes, Barry Goldwater."

GOLDBERG'S PORTRAIT

Justice Arthur Goldberg was replying to a tribute from President Johnson during the unveiling of the Goldbert Portrait which will hand in the Department of Labor where he was once Secretary.

"This reminds me of an unveling of the bust of my old friend Jake Potofsky of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers," said Goldberg.

"After the unveling ceremony a lady, well endowed, rushed up to Potofsky and said, 'Oh, Mr. Potofsky, I've come a hundred miles to see your bust unveiled.'

"'Madame," replied Jake, 'I'd be glad to do the same for you.'"

BACKSTAGE WITH GOP

House GOP Moderates have decided to tone down their public statements and work more in the "background" in their drive to oust Rep. Charles Halleck, R-Ind., as the party's Floor Leader.

"If we're going to support Gerry Ford (R-Mich.) against Halleck, the less talking we do to newsmen, the better," suggested Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., at the last Republican Wednesday Club Meeting. "For one thing, we may alienate some Republican Conservatives who favor Ford if Liberals work too openly for him."

Conte also criticized press statements that Rep. John Lindsay, R-N. Y., might be a candidate for Floor Leader, making it a three - cornered race.

"I'll go along with that," replied Lindsay. "I have never been a serious candidate anyway. The important thing for us to remember is that the people want a change in the party leadership. The last election clearly demonstrated that we need a new image."

Lindsay added that if Halleck remained Floor Leader, it would be much more difficult to supplant Dean Burch as GOP National Chairman.

The GOP Liberals also agreed to support Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Calif., against Rep. Mel Laird, R-Wis., to be Chairman of the House GOP Conference. Reps. Robert T. Stafford, R-Vt., or Charles Mathias, R-Md., were picked as alternates.

"Laird tagged himself as a Goldwater man in the San Francisco Platform fight," declared Conte. "We'll still have the old Goldwater image if he becomes the Conference Chairman."

However, Conte got nowhere when he suggested opposition to Rep. Les Arends, R-Ill., who now holds the No. 2 party post in the House as GOP "Whip."

Cuba's Christmas: Blackbeard and the Kids.

WASHINGTON, D. C.: --Strong men, unafraid to die, fear to weep. But no self-discipline wipes away the tears of exiled Cuban fighters when they talk of Christmas at home and the youngsters left on the agonized island.

It is a blackbeard with an even darker soul who now distributes toys at Christmas, say the exiles who slip in and out of their former homeland. Blackbeard rations toys for even the smallest tot. And figs, and fruits and meats and pollo and even tomatoes and lettuce and radishes for the Yuletide "feast" in the once gay land.

Hunger is easy to take, but not the yearning of the children. The youngsters all were promised toys by the Internal Trade Ministry. Its Deputy Minister for Manufactured Products Roberto Interian, recently announced the opening of 120 pilot stores throughout Cuba so parents could come and buy their Christmas gifts. But the stores were open only part of the evening and part of the morning.

The stock in these official emporiums included gifts for the elders as well as the kids. The inventories were divided into three categories: Toys, rationed electric domestic articles, and articles of China and light hardware.

But first, gift eligibility had to be established in Castro's new classless society. There were toys and toys. The desirable ones were rationed. Those went only to children under 13. All toys were separated into two groups. Those costing three pesos or less. And those costing more -- which only the party elite could afford.

Only imported toys costing less than 30 centavos went unrationed. By the hard rule of international exchange 30 centavos are out a few pennies, if that.

There was also a category called nationally produced toys, much of which was rationed. Each child eligible to receive toys could be given one toy costing three pesos or more and two toys costing less than three pesos.

Typical of the rationing was the rule that only one 24-inch bicycle could be purchased by one family, regardless of the number of children.

To be eligible for anything more than the most lamentable plastics, the children had to be youngsters of families who have workers meeting the high speed production quotas, or who are in the party hierarchy or who have turned in suspect neighbors.

The former system of numbers which provided "turns" at the counters was wiped out by edict. An official directive eliminated "lines" at store doors. There was no first come first served. Only those who serve the Communist state were eligible, no matter how many children they have.

Blackbeard has been no kinder with the adults. The Internal Trade Ministry boasted that there would be ample electric domestic articles--irons, fans, beaters, radios, record players, stoves, pressure cookers and sewing machines. But the rush to buy them was stemmed by a decree which said that only those who had not purchased one of these products last year could buy them this year.

However, there were available this year some things the Cuban market did not have last year: chinaware, dinnersets, coffee sets, silverware, children's silverware, and kitchenware sets of six pieces. Each family unit was permitted to buy "one each of all these articles."

But there was no rush to buy. Of what use are these? There is little food for family dinners to be placed on such finery. A sewing machine, an electric iron or stove, yes. Empty plates, no.

True that, beginning last Dec. 15, certain foodstuffs were placed on sale. There was Spanish cider, and nougats, an extra half-pound of olive oil per person, an extra pound of rice per person, an extra pound of black beans per person unless one lives in central and middle Oriente province. Then one got red beans.

For the holiday, families of two persons were permitted a quarter pound of Spanish nuts. Or there was available a half-pound of Argentine figs, and a quarter pound national or imported cheese per person. There was wine from Algeria, Bulgaria and Spain. There also was a quota: one bottle for a family of two, two bottles for families of four and three bottles for families of six and seven.

But, say the homesick exiles, what will even this meager wine wash down. There is virtually no meat or chicken.

There is only hunger and the blackbeards.

Hat-Making Is Being Revived By Home Ec

The art of hat - making, in eclipse for a good many years, is making a come-back in the Home Economics Extension Clubs of Missouri. Mrs. Alberta Am-Rhein, of Hopedale, Illinois, is holding a series of classes, one of which will be at the community building in New Madrid on March 15th, 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., and 6:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. For the day class the minimum number of students is 45 and the Maximum 65; for the night class the minimum and maximum are 25 and 45.

These figures show the scope of the project as does the requirement of "18 long banquet size tables just for supplies."

Mrs. Am-Rhein will go to New York around January 10th to see the latest in spring styles and to buy fabrics and trimmings for use in these classes.

Before the council and training meeting in Lilbourn on January 12th club presidents should find out how many are interested so that they may purchase tickets at that time, and so that the committee will be sure that at least the minimum number will be available to assure the holding of the classes.

Participation is not restricted to members of extension clubs. Perhaps some high school girls will want to take advantage of these classes.

ANN LANDERS
Answers your problems

Dear Ann Landers: Last February our 22-year-old daughter began to work. She opened up charge accounts all over town the day she recieved her first pay check.

She agreed to pay us $7.50 a week for room and board but that lasted only two weeks. From then on it was nothing but excuses.

This is the record since February: We've had to make eight checks good at the bank. She borrowed $500 from us in July when the creditors threatened to garnishee her salary. She owes $400 to dress shops and shoe stores. She refuses to answer a telephone call because she is dodging collectors.

We are honorable people and tried to raise our daughter right. What's the matter with this girl, anyway? Is she immature or does she have an inborn flaw in her character?
--PUZZLED

Dear Puzzled: Your daughter was not born irresponsible. She GOT that way because her parents were always on hand to pull her chestnuts out of the fire -- and they are still doing it.

You can expect no change until your daughter understands, once and for all, that she is strictly on her own -- sink or swim. If she sinks a time or two, and nobody throws her a life-saver, she'll swim.

Dear Ann Landers: Ours is the only society in the world in which the males are dimension-wacky. Do you notice that the men who write to you rarely refer to a woman's mind, her personality, her temperament or her character? They have a strange preoccupation, however, with vital statistics. Sample from a recent column: "She's a knockout--38-22-34." What some rockheads don't realize is that a woman can purchase (at a modest price) some of the dat-gummest dimension-boosters anyone ever heard tell about. It happened to my cousin. What he mistook for modesty and high standards turned out to be a clever piece of strategy to keep her phony padding a secret.

From a realistic point of view, let's assume Miss 38-22-34 is legit and I marry her. After four babies, 850 chocolate sundaes and 500 cherry pies, plus a couple of vats of spaghetti, she's a 42-30-54. Then what do I have?
--THE OL' FORTUNE TELLER

Dear Ol' Teller: Then you have a fat wife and four nice kids.

Dear Ann Landers: Three years ago we gave our daughter a wedding every girl dreams of. We invited ALL our relatives and friends even though we had to go deeply into dept. We are happy we did and we would do it again.

Now our son is getting married. The girl's parents are in a financial category equal to ours. We have been informed there will be 100 guests at the wedding and we can invite 50. Our family numbers well over 200. We would need 300 invitations to do it half-way decent.

These people refuse to go into debt for their daughter's wedding. Yesterday, we were told if we want to invite 300 people, O. K., but that we'll have to pay the difference. My husband almost had a stroke. We are still paying off our daughter's wedding.

Isn't it unfair of them to have a wedding that will make people mad at us for life? Maybe a word from you will knock some sense into their heads.
--ANOTHER ANN

Dear Ann: Never mind about THEIR heads. YOUR head worries me. Everyone knows the bride's parents decide on the number of guests who will be invited to the wedding. Anyone who would be mad at you because he was not invited doesn't know much. I admire the girl's parents for refusing to hock their eye-balls to put on a fancy bash which they can't afford.

Do you lean on cigarettes as a social crutch? You may regret it later. Send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teen - age Smoking," enclosing with your request 10¢ in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ingenuity Fashions Ground Beef Into Rolls with Biscuit Wrap

If the recipe is both thrifty and ingenious, the homemaker will feel she has something.

Cooked ground beef, explains recognized meat authority, Reba Staggs, is mixed with novel seasonings like sage, mustard and chili sauce. This mixture is then placed on a rectangle of biscuit dough and rolled jelly roll fashion. Slice and bake according to recipe directions.

Ground Beef Rolls—Vegetable Gravy

1½ pounds ground beef
1 can (2 ounces) mushroom stems and pieces, drained
¼ cup chopped onion
1 tablespoon lard or drippings
1½ teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon sage
½ teaspoon dry mustard
1 cup chili sauce
Biscuit Dough
1 can (10½ ounces) condensed mushroom soup
1 can (16 ounces) peas, drained

Cook ground beef, mushrooms and onion in lard or drippings until lightly browned. Pour off drippings. Combine ground beef mixture, salt, pepper, sage, dry mustard and chili sauce. Prepare Biscuit Dough. Roll dough into a 12 x 16-inch rectangle, about ⅛ inch thick. Spread meat mixture on dough. Roll as a jelly roll. Cut into 1-inch slices and place on a greased baking sheet. Bake in a moderate oven (375° F.) 30 minutes. Combine mushroom soup and peas in a saucepan and heat. Serve with beef rolls. Serves 4 to 6.

Biscuit Dough

2 cups sifted enriched flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
4 to 6 tablespoons lard
⅓ to ½ cup milk

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Cut in lard until mixture has a fine even crumb. Add enough milk to make a sof. dough. Turn onto a lightly floured surface and knead gently for ½ minute.

IN THE BEGINNING, GOD
If nuclear war should change our world
To one that we despair about,
Let's pray unshaken trust may keep
Our hearts from unbelief and doubt.
Our world may be rebuilt again
If we fail not to plant the seeds
Of faith to grow and bloom above
The ruble and the blackened weeds;
And then when life resumes once more.
Though we may lie beneath a clod.
Our faith will still proclaim anew--
There is no end to God!

Four Teams Take Step Toward Bloomfield Finals

(By Dan Whittle)

BLOOMFIELD -- The Bloomfield Wildcats went wild here last night as they made it revenge time by smothering the once proud Richland Rebs 78 - 36 in the opening game of the quarter final rounds. The Clarkton Reindeer rained all over the Chaffee Red Devils by sending them down 62-40. Gideon's Bulldogs removed their muzzles and bit into the Lilbourn Panthers for the upset of the night, winning 51-40. And the Advance Hornets stuck out their stingers and stunned the Puxico Indians 82-65.

BLOOMFIELD 78
RICHLAND 36

The Wildcats wasted no time before jumping on the Rebels. The first quarter they smacked the loop for 24 scorching points while limiting the Rebs to 7, displaying the best defense to be seen in the tourney.

The Bloomfield defense had the Rebs shaken, they missed five perfectly clear and easy shots going into the last of the first period.

Already leading by a cool 17 points the Wildcats continued their slaughter by slapping the Richland five on the other cheek to notch up 22 more tallies to lead at half-time 46-22.

Reeling after the first half, the Rebels received the knockout punch the third frame being able to connect for a humiliating 3 points while the unstoppable Wildcats ripped their way to score 20 more big tallies.

Leading by a stupendous 41 points, 66-25, the Bloomfield coaches, Spoonhour and Hewgley, emptied their bench the fourth and final frame to still out score the Rebels by 1, 12-11.

The blistering Bloomfield attack was led by big Dennis Gillespie, who stuffed in 21 points and pulled down 11 rebounds. Dennis played only 19 minutes of the game.

Richland did not have a man to reach double figures. Kelly got the closest with a 9 point production.

BLOOMFIELD (78)
Scorers: Mike Wise 6, Dale Underwood 9, Ron McAdoo 2, Red Underwood 13, Dennis Gillespie 21, Danny Gaines 13, Mick Aslin 4, Ron White 6, and Rodney Bullinger 4.

RICHLAND (36)
Scorers: Ron McAnulty 2, Mark Williamson 5, Gene Mason 7, Terry Kinder 6, Bill Kelly 9, Rich Triplett 2, and Joe Williamson 5.

CLARKTON 62
CHAFFEE 40

DENNIS GILLESPIE IS HITTING two tallies used in compiling his 21 point production by him last night in Bloomfield's slaughter of the Richland Rebels.

Clarkton had little resistance from the Red Devils in posting their 60-42 victory.

The Reindeer got out to a 9 point advantage the first quarter and managed to increase this to a 21 point bulge, 37-16, as first half play ended.

CLARKTON (62)
Scorers: C. Nuckles 7, J. Almand 7, R. Spears 4, K. Robinson 19, E. Price 2, D. Robertson 16, and R. Trease 7.

CHAFFEE (40)
Scorers: Lynn Cotner 14, Rob Williams 2, Ron Dobs 14, David Pfefferkorn 2, Ron Cook 4, and Rob Daughtery 4.

GIDEON 51
LILBOURN 40

Gideon, having one of the smoothest ball clubs in the area, glided out past the scrapping Lilbourn Panthers here last night to win 51-40.

In first period play the Bulldogs got out over Lilbourn by 6, 14-8, and had managed by the half to increase their lead by 2 more, 27-19.

The Panthers, who hustled all the way, were too outclassed to make the deficit they trailed by the last half.

Gideon's attack was woven into four men. Sam Mullen led with 13, Jim St. Cin and Roger Pattillo dumped in 11 each, and G. Killingsworth followed with 10.

GIDEON (51)
Scorers: Jim St. Cin 11, Mike Vanderbilt 6, G. Killingsworth 10, Mullen 13 and Roger Pattillo 11.

LILBOURN
Scorers: Barry Mitchem 9, Jerry Allred 6, Curt Horn 8, Jerry Payne 13, and Stan Thompson 4.

ADVANCE 82
PUXICO 65

Advances M & M boys, Bob Moroni and Bill Morgan, continued to lead tournament scoring as they stung the Indians by a tune of 82-65. Moroni got 35 points, good enough to tie for second highest scorer in a single game since the tournament started in 1957, and Morgan complimented Moroni's 35 with his 24.

Advance had their troubles the first half being tied with Puxico 34 all.

After the half-time intermission, the Hornets got their unresistable attack rolling to go out in front by 11, 61-50 to enter the fourth and final period. Advance had too much for the Indians to be overtaken the last period.

ADVANCE (82)
Scorers: Bob Moroni 35, Bill Morgan 24, Keith Kinder 3, Daryl Kirkpatrick 9, Gary Hudson 6, and Mike Winchester 5.

PUXICO (65)
Scorers: Art Norris 13, Ralph Corse 9, Mattingly 11, Ed Tanner 2, Basil Smith 4, Bob Zoll 10, Garry Scates 10, and Greg Crites 4.

Semi-final action will begin tonight with Bloomfield facing Clarkton at 7:00, and Advance will be pitted against Gideon the last game, scheduled to start around 8:30.

Mizzou Moves Into Semi's

KANSAS CITY (AP) — It's Kansas vs. Kansas State, both perennial powers, and a pair of suprise clubs, Missouri and Colorado, in the semifinals of the 19th Big Eight basketball tournament tonight.

Missouri's spirited scramblers clipped favored Oklahoma State 53-48, ruining Henry Iba Night, and Colorado stunned Nebraska 70-52 in first round games Monday night.

Missouri got sharp outside shooting from Gary Garner, with 14 points, and Charles Rudd and Ronnie Coleman, 11 each. But the difference again was 6-foot-5 220-pound Ned Monsees. He led both clubs with 12 rebounds and stole the ball several times.

"Our effort was about the same as our 200 per cent against St. Louis," said Bob Vanatta, Missouri coach.

The 60-year-old Iba was honored between games for coaching the U.S. Olympic basketball team to victory. He was given a standing ovation by the crowd of 7,700 and presented awards by the NCAA, the Big Eight and the U.S. Olympic basketball committee.

Iba is one of two active coaches and four in history with more than 700 victories. He felt the pressure of the occasion hurt his club.

"We can play better than that, gosh sakes," he said. "We put up three crewey shots when we had them by one, 41-40."

Colorado wrapped a streak of 17 points around halftime, turning a 27-26 lead into a 44-26 bulge. Coach Sox Walseth used a zone defense during Nebraska's scoreless period of almost nine minutes.

It was Colorado's first victory in the first round here since 1959. Walseth said "nobody has interviewed me in six weeks and I don't know what to say.

"I don't know how to explain this to our Sunshine League fans. We're so used to playing in daylight here, this will really foul up our pre-game meal."

Pat Frink, a sophomore, led Colorado with 22 and his brother Mike, hit 17. Nebraska's talented rookie, Fred Hare, had 19 points. Colorado hit 47 per cent, Nebraska only 29 per cent from the field.

Joe Cipriano, Nebraska coach, was keenly disappointed over his club's relegation to the daylight consolation bracket. He termed it "the worst game we've played since I've been at Nebraska." It was the 10th straight for Colorado over Nebraska since early in 1961.

Iowa State meets Oklahoma in the first consolation game at 2 p.m. with Nebraska facing Oklahoma State at 4. Kansas and K-State play at 7:30, then Colorado and Missouri at 9:30.

It will be the first K-State-Kansas meeting away from the finals since 1951, when Clyde Lovellette and the Jayhawks beat K-State 90-88 in overtime. The tournament series stands 4-4, including 2-2 in the finals, and the two rivals have alternated victories.

K-State won the first meeting in 1947, Kansas the last one 90-88 in four overtimes in the finals in 1962. It's K-State's turn to win.

The game could turn on the play of 6-foot-11 Walt Wesley of the Jayhawks and K-State's two big men, 6-10 Roy Smith and 6-8 Gary Williams.

Two Top Powers Gain Victories

By DICK COUCH

Sensational performances by Michigan whiz Cazzie Russell and Wichita All-America Dave Stallworth have kept the holiday ball rolling for the nation's top two college basketball powers.

Stallworth, meanwhile, scored 20 of his 29 points in a second-half rally that shot No. 2 Wichita past previously-unbeaten Villanova 86-74 and into the finals of the Quaker City Tournament at Philadelphia.

Nine of the top ten teams in The Associated Press ratings went to the post in tournaments that blanketed the country. The only losers were Illinois and St. Louis, beaten by other members of the select group.

St. Joseph's of Philadelphia, which crashed the top ten for the first time on this week's ballot, outlasted the sixth-ranked Illini 75-71 — after blowing a 16-point lead — and gained the Quaker City finals opposite Wichita. The unbeaten, 10th-ranked Hawks have won nine starts--including victories over then nationally ranked Davidson and St. John's, N.Y.

St. Louis, No. 9, fell 98-68 before a furious second-half rush by seventh-ranked Indiana in the opening round of the Memphis State Classic. The Hoosiers, 8-0, meet the host team, 95-92 overtime victor over Southern Methodist, for the title tonight.

Minnesota and San Francisco, only other unbeaten clubs among the national leaders, advanced in West Coast tourneys but unheralded Washington threw a scare at the third-ranked Gophers before bowing 77-76 in the first round of the Los Angeles Classic. The fifth-ranked Dons matched Minnesota's 7-0 record by smothering Pepperdine 103-64 in a WCAC tournament contest.

Fourth-ranked UCLA, unbeaten Utah and Iowa joined Minnesota in the Los Angeles semi-finals. The Bruins ran their winning string to seven after an opening loss to Illinois by whipping Arizona 99-79. Utah, 9-0, nipped Michigan State 71-65 and Iowa defeated Southern California 71-65.

Duke's no. 8 Blue Devils, idle Monday, seek their sixth victory in seven starts at Ohio State Wednesday night.

Russell, Michigan's 6-foot-6 backcourt ace, scored 22 first-half points, hitting on 10 of 15 shots from the floor, to pace the Wolverines to a 45-39 halftime margin. The Big Ten favorites wrapped up their seventh victory in eight decisions with a 17-2 burst midway in the second half, Russell contributing seven more points.

Cazzie finished with a 15-for-26 night from the field, six of seven free throws, 13 rebounds and five assists.

Bill Bradley, Princeton's All-America and Olympic star, matched Russell's 36 points as the Tigers outran Syracuse 79-69 in another ECAC first-rounder. Princeton meets Michigan and once-beaten Cincinnati plays St. John's in Wednesday's semifinals. The Bearcats ripped Temple 83-56 and the Redmen edged LaSalle 78-71 Monday.

Wichita, beaten only by Michigan in eight games, overtook Villanova on consecutive three-point plays by Stallworth and Kelly Pete with 13½ minutes to play and pulled away in the final 10 minutes. Dave Leach netted 21 points and Pete 16 for the Wheatshockers. Jim Washington scored 23 of Villanova, now 8-1.

Cliff Anderson and Tom Duff scored consecutive baskets in the closing minutes, giving St. Joseph's a 71-69 lead, after the Illini had stormed back into contention with spurts of eight and 10 straight points.

Anderson led the Hawks' balanced attack with 17 points, three less than Illinois' 6-8 Skip Thoren.

Indiana trailed St. Louis by six points early in the second half before the Van Arsdale twins — Dick and Tom — combined for nine straight points that set off the Hoosier fireworks. Jon McGlocklin paced Indiana with 29 points and Dick Van Arsdale added 18.

Area Top Ten

With the upcoming championship game in the Bloomfield Tournament, barring any upsets, it should be decided as to whom is the number one team in Southeast Missouri Basketball, when Advance faces Bloomfield in their first encounter of the year.

Up until last week the Bloomfield Wildcats had been in the number one position since the beginning of the season, but when they met their first defeat at Memphis, that left Advance the only team to have an undefeated record.

There was no dispute last year as to whom was the number one team. The Warring Richland Rebs were at the head of the line, and no one disputed the fact, least of all opposing teams.

This weeks top ten selections are the same as last weeks, except for the tenth position. Bragg City did claim occupancy, but the Oran Eagles moved up to take possession of the last berth.

1. Advance
2. Bloomfield
3. Poplar Bluff
4. Gideon
5. Perryville
6. Senath-Hornersville
7. Lilbourn
8. Dexter
9. Parma
10. Oran

Celts Down The Lakers 133-112

Beating the Boston Celtics is tough enough under ordinary circumstances but when your two top scorers produce just 16 points between them, it's just about impossible.

The Los Angeles Lakers learned that Monday night as the National Basketball Association's Eastern Division-leading Celtics trounced them 133-112.

The Lakers, front-runners in the Western Division, got just 12 points from Jerry West and only four from Elgin Baylor and never threatened the Celtics, who had six men in double figures.

The victory kept the Celts six games in front of Cincinnati which rallied to top San Francisco 113-108. Los Angeles lost a half game of its margin over idle St. Louis and now leads the Hawks by three games.

Old Pro's Corner

What a guy, the Old Pro turned in another miraculous performance in his predictions, hitting on 7 out of eight games played in the Cape and Bloomfield Tournaments.

This gives the Old One 72 hits and 95 misses for the season. His percentage is up to 78%, according to his figures, being the highest attained by the Old Pro for the year.

GAMES TONIGHT:

Bloomfield Tourney:

Advance and Gideon -- Gideon could win this game, but it would be the upset of the tournament. Advance by 11.

Cape Tourney:

Delta and Notre Dame -- Delta could, but they won't, not the way Notre Dame has been moving as late. Notre Dame by 9.

Oran and Scott Central -- Oran apparently has their troubles ironed out now. Oran by 14.

Morehouse and Kelly -- If Kelly hustles they will wear down this Morehouse team. Kelly by 13.

Jackson and Scott City -- Scott City's Rams will have their work cut out for them tonight as they take on the number two seeded team. Jackson by 18.

Difference Of Age No Difference

DALLAS (AP)—There's a difference in their ages and experience but the quarterbacks of the Cotton Bowl game have a great deal in common when it comes to playing football.

It was the third game of the season before each took the chance to show what he could do.

Churchich got to show his stuff when the regular quarterback, Fred Duda, went out with an injury.

Marshall, who had become the starting quarterback on the basis of what he did in spring training, was terrible in the first game against Oklahoma State.

He suffered a shoulder injury, to be sure, but that was part of the excuse to hold him out of the second game — against Tulsa. This and the fact that he had been too tight, had overshot his receivers and had gained only seven yeards running with the ball.

Coach Frank Broyles wasn't going to put him back in because of the possibility of wrecking his football career. Two bad games in a row would have meant the finish.

Then Broyles tried him against Texas Christian in the third game of the season and he came through. He ran, passed and directed Arkansas to a 29-6 victory.

Gallatin Gets Ax, Guerin Takes Over

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Ben Kerner, the St. Louis Hawks owner who changes coaches with the same ease that New Year's resolutions are broken, is ready to begin 1965 with a new one.

Kerner dropped the ax Monday on Harry Gallatin and named veteran Richie Guerin as player-coach of the National Basketball Association club.

Gallatin must have known his time was short, realizing he had been leading the Hawks for 2½ seasons. Kerner has had nine coaches in the 10 seasons the club has been in St. Louis, and none has lasted that long.

Kerner explains it this way:

"I'm at the point that if I don't finish first I'd just as soon finish fourth (last). There's no glory in second to me."

Under Gallatin the Hawks finished second in the Western Division the last two years and are the runner-up now, 3½ games behind Los Angeles.

"There's nothing that we asked Harry to do that he didn't do," Kerner said. "He's a tireless worker. I think Harry did a good job."

But he added:

"I felt that after three years our progress wasn't good enough with young players."

"My advice, sir-get DE-ICER!"

Gas line freeze can happen to anybody, but when you're young and in a hurry, it's a disaster. Here's what gas line freeze is. Moisture collects in a gas line. It freezes. HINTS FOR TEENAGERS

... From your Sewing Editor

PUT YOUR BEST FOOT FORWARD . . . and step right into the heart of fashion by sewing! Now, I'm sure you know your A, B, C's so why don't we go on to a more advanced part of the alphabet. How about moving all the way on to the X, Y, Z's? It's just as simple as this:

Y is for YES, you can make this outfit even if you're a newcomer at the sewing machine.

A WARDROBE IN AN ENVELOPE

Today's design is proof of an important statement I make over and over again: that there are such tremendous variations to be achieved by sewing your own clothes. Simplicity Pattern 5574 is shown here as trim orange corduroy pants under a long-sleeved multi-striped cotton blouse. What you DON'T SEE is all included in one simple compact pattern envelope . . . a lovely, complete, mix-match separates wardrobe!

One of the items is a delightful V-neck shift jumper and you can also fashion an easy fitting jerkin by cutting the same pattern piece at the hip line. As for today's blouse—in cotton or a lightweight fabric, it can be worn with jumpers, skirts or slacks BUT—if you make it in corduroy, a woolen tweed, or velveteen—you have a jacket! That's not the end of the surprises in this one wonderful pattern. There's a beautifully tailored straight skirt to be worn with this set of tops or with all your sweaters and blouses.

SOME HIGH FASHION HINTS

Anyone who sews is fashion conscious, so I know you're aware that one of the greatest current hits of the sportswear world is the slack suit. Isn't this a perfect chance for you to have a really sensational one? Just make your slacks and jacket of the same lightweight woolen or corduroy and you'll have the perkiest outfit this side of Paris! You might also try making your jumper in a heavy black silk or a gleaming velveteen. Of course, you would then want to do the blouse in a creamy white silk or satin sparked with rhinestone buttons . . . and it's perfect for the most important of dates.

NIGHT AND DAY

. . . this is the pattern to take you through 9 o'clock classes, special lunch meetings, shopping trips and being entertained by your favorite young man. All you have to do is choose the right fabrics and have a great time using your creativity and imagination. Actually, only by sewing your own clothes can all this be possible for you.

MORE THAN IMAGINATION

Certainly, you have to do a little bit of reading, practicing and thinking when you're learning to improve your sewing. As I'm sure you've already discovered, one of the most important of sewing lessons is the proper application of a zipper. I do have a very clearly illustrated leaflet which will be a great help to you in making the insertion of skirt, dress and neckline zippers easier. Just send a stamped, self addressed envelope to the Sewing Editor of this newspaper along with your request for Leaflet Z 829. I'd be happy to send a copy along to you.

Fire Damaged Ozark College Reopens

POINT LOOKOUT, Mo. (AP)—Classes will resume Jan. 4 at the School of the Ozarks despite a fire that destroyed the main building Saturday night.

M. Graham Clark, school president, said chapel and dormitory space will be used for classrooms.

Planning for a new building began immediately at a meeting of the advisory council which lasted from midnight until dawn Sunday.

Clark estimated the replacement will cost $400,000 for construction and $100,000 for equipment. The school will have $200,000 from insurance on the old building with which to start the project, he said.

Also, Clark said, the U.S. Navy promised to replace $300,000 worth of electronic equipment used by a naval reserve unit that was based in the old building.

The fire destroyed three of the four wings of the structure that contained 14 classrooms, faculty offices, auditorium, gymnasium, barber shop, commissary and student union, in addition to the naval reserve.

All but about 30 of the 700 students had gone home for Christmas. Some boys were playing basketball in the basement gym and smelled smoke, then discovered the fire in a second-floor classroom. Cause of the blaze was not determined.

A fire wall helped firemen save one wing, formerly used as a chapel.

The building was donated to the college by the late A.P. Green of Mexico, Mo. Construction started in 1926 and the building was occupied in 1928.

WASHINGTON, D. C. -- Four out of ten eligible adults did not bother to vote for President last November and of those who did vote, 39 percent supported the loser. Nevertheless, every taxpayer will help pay for the inauguration of Lyndon B. Johnson on January 20.

How much it will cost is impossible to assess but the bill must run into the millions. Countless Americans watching on television may be thrilled as they watch military units parade across their screen but their enthusiasm might be reduced if they knew how many of their tax dollars went into every footstep.

Presidential inaugurations are a combination of a ceremonial event of historic importance and a Roman holiday unworthy of a modern nation. It is a wonder that taxpayers have not rebelled against footing the bill. It is also a wonder that tradition-breaker Lyndon Johnson has not done anything about it.

For those who do not recall the quadrennial nonsense, here is what will happen on January 20 -- subject only to such changes as winter weather may necessitate. And what happened four years ago, due to a major snowfall on Inaugural Eve, is well remembered by a lot of people.

(Your correspondent is one of those with unfond memories of the 1960 Inauguration. He spent an hour and a half trying to drive 10 blocks in the Inaugural Eve snowstorm, finally abandoned his car in a snowdrift, walked two blocks to his destination, and spent the night on an office couch.)

But it may not snow this time and whether it does or not, the President will journey up Pennsylvania Avenue in his limousine for a noon ceremony at the Capitol. Enroute he will be applauded by crowds four or five deep at the curbs, many of whom have been waiting since dawn to pay their homage.

BLEACHER SEATS COST $15

The more affluent on the ceremonial route will have bleacher seats, costing up to $15. Since mid-December these bleachers have been sitting idle, waiting for their single-day use. Of course, you and I paid for the labor to erect them and we will pay for their destruction after January 20.

When the President gets to the Capitol there will be a considerable delay while he shakes a zillion hands, but in due course he will be out in the weather again, on a specially - constructed platform on the East Front of the Capitol. A few thousand VIPs, in specially - constructed stands costing about $184,000, will be able to see him and the dignitaries with him, but those watching on TV will have the best view.

After the President takes his oath, he will retire to the Capitol to get warm and to shake some hands he may have missed before. Probably he will tarry for lunch at the Capitol, with TV cameras also in attendance.

Meanwhile the parade will be forming and the President will lead it. The return to the White House, a trip of about 20 blocks, will be accomplished at snail's pace. When he gets back home, LBJ will review the rest of the parade for hours on end. His vantage point will be a specially built pavillion on the White House lawn, featuring wall - to-wall carpeting, bullet - proof glass and infra-red heat.

REVIEWING STAND TO COST $246,000

The pavillion and accompanying stands for cameramen and reporters will cost $246,000 to build and remove. The stands along Pennsylvania Avenue will require 1.3 million board feet of lumber -- enough to build 30 three-bedroom houses. The lumber has been sold for salvage in advance.

The managers of this year's Inauguration have taken an oath that the parade will not last half the night, as usual. They expect to have it over by daylight's end. Don't bet on it, if you believe the past foreshadows the future. Some people put in a 16-hour day on the curb last time.

Of course, the Inauguration itself is merely the culmination of festivities begun days earlier. Hotels require four- day reservations, paid in advance and non - cancelable, and of course the best addresses have had no space for rent for many weeks.

On Inaugural Eve, there will be balls in at least three leading hotels and one armory. All are official, and all will be visited by Johnson and Vice President - elect Hubert H. Humphrey. These affairs are supposed to pay for themselves through the tickets sold to the party faithful. There will be three bands at each ball, one a service unit supported by tax dollars.

ACT IS OVERPLAYED

An efficiency expert would say all this is extravagance, and he would be right. This nation should see that its President is properly installed in office. But the act is overplayed now and has been for decades. One of these days a courageous President will do away with all the nonsense.

He will go to the Capitol and take his oath of office in the House chamber, in front of members of Congress and the Supreme Court only. He will be inside, out of the winter weather. The nation can watch on TV and read about it in the press. The ceremonies won't last over 30 minutes.

There won't be three days of partying before hand because the President won't stand for it. There won't be a Pennsylvania Avenue parade in the dead of winter. It won't matter whether or not it snows or the temperature is sub-freezing. The Army, Navy, Marines and Coast Guard can go about their business instead of parading.

The Secret Service need only worry about a non-ceremonial trip by the President to and from the Capitol, without thousands of people lining the curbs. Countless hours spent safeguarding the hotels the President will visit on Inaugural Eve will be eliminated, because there will be no balls, no gala-- nothing except a simple swearing-in ceremony, best seen on video, in the newsreels, or read about in the press.

NASSAU, Bahamas --- Geologists believe the Bahama Islands were once part of a land mass extending southward from what is now Florida, possibly to South America. It was during the last Ice Age that these islands began to take shape. Estimates indicate that it was from 11,000 to 64,000 years ago.

HIGHLIGHTS AND SIDELIGHTS FROM YOUR STATE CAPITOL

MOST HOUSE, SENATE LEADERS ALREADY PICKED

When the 73rd General Assembly of the state of Missouri opens its six-month-long session early in January, there will be many new faces and quite a few old set to enact a variety of legislation, not all of which will be outstanding.

In the House, the leadership is already chosen, both for the Democratic majority and the Republican minority.

Rep. Thomas D. Graham of Cole County once again will serve as Speaker of the House. This will be the third straight legislative session to be presided over by the Jefferson City attorney.

Graham first was elected to the state legislature in 1950 and has been re-elected each time since then and will be starting his eighth two-year term. He was first picked as Speaker in 1961 and again in 1963 as well as this past fall.

M. E. (Charlie) Bauer of the Third District in Jackson County, who will be beginning his sixth term in the House this session, will serve as Speaker Pro Tem. Majority Floor Leader will be H. F. (Pat) Patterson of Columbia and Mel Carnahan of Rolla has been elected his assistant.

Donald J. Gralike of St. Louis' Fourteenth District, starting his second term in the House this session, will act as Majority Whip.

On the Republican side, Rep. Ronald Belt of Macon returns for his second term as Minority Floor Leader. Belt first was elected to the House in 1958 and has won re-election in three succeeding campaigns.

Minority Whip once again will be William Phelps of the Seventh District in Jackson County who is serving his third term in the legislature.

Over in the Senate, John W. Joynt of St. Louis, who acted as Majority Floor Leader two years ago, will take over as President Pro Tem, a post held the past two sessions by Sen. Albert M. Spradling of Cape Girardeau.

Majority Floor Leader in the Senate during the 1965 session will be Sen. William B. Watters of Liberty, a veteran of two previous terms. In the 1963 session, Watters served as chairman of the Committee on Criminal Jurisprudence.

MILLIONS IN BONDS VOTED DURING 1964

During the year just ended, over two dozen Missouri communities voted on and approved revenue and/or general obligation bonds for industrial expansion and development which reached into the $15 million range.

And, incidentally, not one bond issue brought before the voters for these purposes, was defeated.

Revenue bonds generally don't require a tax increase and are relatively easy to get across while general obligation bonds, on the other hand, usually necessitate an increase in the local levy or a continuation at the present tax level.

The largest bond issue passed during 1964 for industrial purposes was a $5 million revenue proposal to finance a plant for the Ruberoid Company at tiny Anapolis. In this election, not a single resident dissented.

At Webb City, an issue for $325,000 in revenue bonds was approved for a lawnmower parts manufacturing company but the community has been unable to sell the bonds.

Before industrial bonds can be placed before the voters, plans for the bonds' use must be approved by the state Commerce and Industrial Development Commission. Most recent action of the commission was approval of a $150,000 revenue issue for Wheatland which probably will come up for a vote early in January.

On the other side of the fence, local bond issues for sewer and waterworks improvements didn't fare so well during 1964. Of 27 bond issues brought up for a vote, 17 passed and 10 were defeated.

Total on the bonds approved was $10,238,000 while the defeated issues amounted to over $8 million.

The largest issue approved in this area was a $4 million proposition at Kansas City.

STATE WATER SUPPLY SUBJECT OF REPORT

The Missouri Water Resources Board in a required year-end report on water needs in Missouri, has recommended that the 73rd General Assembly enact legislation establishing a state Water Development Fund of $500,000 annually.

This would enable the state to participate in future municipal and industrial water storage projects with the federal government.

Missouri Cities Want Housing

KENNETT, Mo., Dec. 22. -- Ten Southeast Missouri cities have made application for low-rent housing units for low-income residents, according to T. H. Callaham, regional director of the Public Housing Administration in Fort Worth, Texas.

Mr. Callaham said Missouri has 330,000 substandard dwellings.

The cities requesting the units and the number of units requested are: Bernie, 50; Bloomfield, 100; Campbell, 100; Cardwell, 100; Clarkton, 100; Hayti, 125; Kennett, 120; Potosi, 100; Senath, 50; and Steele, 80.

Capricious Tides In Atmosphere Affect Weather

MONTREAL, Quebec (AP)--New evidence was reported today that capricious tides in the atmosphere -- caused by the same moon and sun which produce oceanic tides -- may affect the world's weather.

A U. S. Weather Bureau scientist who reported this indicated that whereas high tide at the beach is the best time for seaside fun, high tide in the wide blue yonder may be a good time to get out your umbrella.

Meteorologist Glenn W. Brier told about it in a report to the 131st meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He amplified his report at a news conference and said an examination of U. S. weather records for more than 60 years was involved.

He and meteorologist Max A. Woodbury of New York University, who collaborated on some of the research, stressed that their concept -- even if proved -- could not reliably forecast day - to -day rainfall.

They voiced confidence, however, that their reasoning is sound and said the theory could offer a means of forecasting periods of exceptionally heavy rainfall, at least in the United States.

Fra Junipero Serra, whose mission settlements in California grew into great cities, was born on the island of Majorca.

By BOB POOS
Associated Press Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — An organization peppered with former underworld figures and with a name coined by a be-fuddled dope addict has opened a Midwest headquarters in St. Louis and is attracting junkies with promises of help.

"We hope to take 1,000 narcotics users out of the St. Louis area alone before too long," says Frank Lago, 34, a former dope user and procurer who is a zealous field worker for Synanon. The organization works at curing drug addicts much like Alcoholics Anonymous aids drinkers.

"I literally crawled to Synanon on my hands and knees, weeping," says Mrs. Connie Clark, 27-year-old fashion model and off-Broadway actress. "That was two and a half years ago. My arms were a mass of needle marks and I was covered with cigarette burns—dirty and ill-kempt. I was a mess."

"It's something that works," says Charles Dederich, 50-year-old founder of Synanon. "We've got the largest number of abstaining dope addicts in the world."

"Synanon Houses" are located in California, Nevada and Connecticut — near New York City. In these centers, drug addicts who have kicked their habit through a sort of group therapy aid others in doing so.

Although no Synanon House is planned immediately for St. Louis — the $200,000 yearly operating cost is prohibitive — the headquarters here will shuttle Midwest addicts to other houses for treatment.

"We'll be offering immediate help to junkies in the St. Louis area who want it," says Lago, who served four terms in Federal prisons on narcotics convictions. "We'll see that they get to one of our houses."

St. Louis police files show about 700 heavy narcotics users in the area, and officers believe as many as 2,000 others are addicted to some degree.

"There are probably closer to 10,000 people in this part of the country on the stuff," Lago says.

Drug addiction is far more difficult to escape than alcoholism, so the Synanon people live together while undergoing treatment.

Dope is withdrawn immediately, there is no medical treatment and the Synanon method has three stages.

"First," says Lago, "a guy or gal really has to want to kick the habit. We make sure of that. Then we give them some Mickey Mouse job--like sweeping, mopping or washing dishes.

"Pretty soon — usually after two, no more than four days— the user has gone through withdrawal symptoms and begins to adjust to his surroundings. 'Cold turkey' withdrawal elsewhere takes weeks.

"Later, the one-time addict gets a job on the outside but continue to live in our centers. We make certain they get no dope."

The final stage, Lago says, sends the narcotics user out into the world to cope with the problems that caused him to go on drugs.

The addict initially is taken as far as possible from his former surroundings, mainly because he knows the easy way to get dope there.

Synanon claims almost 50 per cent success in its re-habilitation program. This compares with 3 per cent record at the Federal Hospital for Drug Addicts in Lexington, Ky.

"Lexington costs the government about $35 a day per person," says Stan Burney, Synanon's national director. "The cost at Synanon houses is only $3 a day — less than one-tenth the government's cost."

Synanon really works, says Mrs. Clark, who married another addict in one of the organization's West Coast houses.

"I believe Synanon has literally saved my life," she says. "I'd be dead by now, one way or the other, if I hadn't gone there for help."

The group has a unit at the Nevada state penitentiary and Synanon people say this has been one of their most successful experiments.

"We'd like to see the same thing started in other penitentiaries," says Lago.

"I was an alcoholic, not a dope addict," Dederich says. "We feel a drug addict is a child and must learn to grow up. As he grows up in Synanon, he is given more responsibilities—and a new life."

Missouri Press Report by Edward Long

A new credit service to assist low-income rural families was announced recently by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

USDA local offices across the country are now accepting applications for loans of up to $2500 to finance small family business, trades, and farming enterprises. Eligibility requirements for persons seeking these advances include an income that does not cover basic family necessities, and a reasonable promise of succeeding in the project to be financed by the loan.

The repayment period is up to 15 years, with the interest rate pegged at a low four and one-eighth percent on the promissory note securing the loan.

Also available under the program are loans for rural cooperatives serving low-income families and providing services and facilities not otherwise available. Cooperative loans are expected to average about $25,000, and the borrowers may take up to 30 years for repayment.

The new loan service will be administered by the much-experienced Farmers Home Administration, under authority delegated from the Office of Economic Opportunity, the coordinating office of President Johnson's War on Poverty.

Three Missouri schools were included in a graduate space-training program for the 1965-66 academic year, recently announced by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Missouri University at Columbia and at Rolla, Washington University, and St. Louis University, both in St. Louis, were all named participants in this government effort to help meet the Nation's future needs for highly trained scientists and engineers.

Individual schools select the students to participate in the program. Each graduate student chosen will receive a stipend of $2400 for 12 months of training, with additional allowances for dependents. Maintenance of a satisfactory record assures the student of three years of pre - doctoral study.

Nation - wide, 1275 graduate students will start work toward doctoral degrees in space-related areas under grants to 142 colleges and universities in all 50 states.

Policy Racket

W. Willard Wirtz, Secretary of Labor, took a good-natured gibe at policymakers, of whom he is one, with a Will Rogers story from World War I. Addressing a labor - management conference on fiscal policy, he recalled Rogers' proposal for getting rid of the German submarine menace: "All we have to do is to heat the Atlantic up to 212 degrees Fahrenheit. Then the subs will have to surface, and we can pick them off one by one. Now, somebody's going to want to know how to warm up that ocean. Well, I'm not going to worry about that. It's a matter of detail, and I'm a policymaker."

BASIC TRAINING

Today's newspaperboys—tomorrow's leaders. Statistically, that's how it stacks up.

In view of this, your newspaperboy is on the first chapter of what will probably be a success story. Not that he's destined for the Hall of Fame—but he might be. For example, Dwight D. Eisenhower, Herbert Hoover, Eddie Rickenbacker, Thomas Edison, Joe DiMaggio, Walt Disney, and Bob Hope all started as newspaperboys.

Newspaper route experience helps mold those special character ingredients so necessary for success in any field: self discipline, punctuality, getting along with people, responsibility. And all the hundred and one other character-makers that are built into the management of a newspaper route.

The newspaperboy is skillfully guided by men trained and experienced to bring out his talents. This combination could well be the most important training in his life. In the long range picture, the money he earns on his route almost seems like a fringe benefit.

Although only one boy in ten ever gets a crack at a newspaper route, our Circulation Department people are always glad to talk it over with youngsters and parents. If you have a son or know a boy who might profit from newspaperboy experience, we'll be happy to hear from you.

For millions of readers, the shortest distance between the jargon of science and the everyday language of newspapers is Alton Blakeslee

Simply stated, Science is the con... ng search for nature's truth. Simply stated, nobody tells it better than Alton Blakeslee. To be an Alton Blakeslee, one would have to be current with all the fields of medicine; up on logic and mathematics; at home with chemistry, physics, astronomy, biology, geology — not to mention psychology, ornithology, entomology, ichthyology, and every other "ology".

As Science and Medical Editor of The Associated Press, Blakeslee regularly attracts the largest newspaper audience in his field. Author of "Your Heart Has Nine Lives" and twice the winner of the coveted Lasker award, Blakeslee has also won most every other science writing award at least once.

Judging by the standards Alton Blakeslee sets for science writers, few indeed can qualify. Yet The Associated Press has five more such men to cover the field of science for you: John Barbour and Frank Carey in the East, Robert Goldenstein in the Midwest, William Harrison and Ralph Dighton in the Far West.

Today when every scientific breakthrough represents importa... you can count on AP specialists like Alton Blakeslee to give you the news simply and clearly in ....

AP Business Analyst Talks About Prospects for 1965

NEW YORK (AP) — This year has been so good that fears are felt in many quarters that next year may seem like a letdown because the public is inclined to expect too much of it.

The federal administration reportedly is getting plans ready for any such slump in confidence — plans to stimulate the economy with more tax cuts or greater spending if the pace falters when compared to this year's fast growth.

Almost all economists in and out of government agree, however, that the first few months of 1965 will be even more bountiful than the final ones of 1964.

They cite the special incidents that held back the economy in the autumn, particularly the auto strikes. And they cite special reasons the first few months of 1965 will be more active than they normally would — such as pent-up demand for autos due to the short supply in the closing weeks of 1964, and fear that labor trouble in steel could cut off metal shipments in May.

After that — there's the rub. And that's one reason economists are varying so widely just now in their predictions for 1965 as a whole.

Any letdown after these special stimulants are withdrawn might make both businessmen and consumers nervous. If the fast growth rate of the economy in 1964 — now put at around 7 per cent —slows down perceptibly in late spring, business could pull in its horns, consumers might worry and postpone some purchases.

There are other hazards that economists see ahead, without being sure that real cures are in sight.

The labor force will grow rapidly next year. Much of the growth will be from youths untrained for the jobs mechanized industry offers. The great hopes now being expressed, that the economy will grow fast enough to absorb all the newcomers seeking jobs, may be dashed. And the public is notorious for changing quickly from too much confidence to too much caution.

Inflation isn't a problem now and seems unlikely to be in the months just ahead. But beyond that a number of economists are far from reassured. They cite the recent scattered rises in some basic materials. They note that the auto labor contract and the one the steelworkers are expected to seek could push production costs up faster than factory efficiency is increasing. All this could lay the seeds for future inflation.

Other economists, especially those employed by the banks and other financial institutions see as far from allayed as yet the international financial problems which reached the crisis stage in November when the British pound was tottering. Measures that may still have to be taken to get the pound back on a sound basis, and to keep the dollar from catching the infection, are still uncertain. And drastic measures could upset the American economy as well as that of other non-Communist nations.

Proposed 750-Passenger Jet Would Revolutionize Travel

NEW YORK (AP) — A 750-passenger commercial jetliner, if an economic version ever appears, would revolutionize today's scheduled airline operations.

However, its debut is unlikely before the mid-1970s. Its most exciting possibility then: sharp fare cuts for long-hop travel, greatly stimulating coast-to-coast and overseas passenger traffic.

That, in a nutshell, was first airline reaction to a prospect raised by government plans to pour $750 million into developing a giant military-equipment and troop carrier with 250,000 pounds of pay lift.

A regular transatlantic jet handles 45 tons of cargo on a standard flight, or 120 passengers. Economy flights can take as many as 170 passengers.

The government's announcement Tuesday stirred speculation of a commercial sequel, even though Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara said there were no thoughts along that line.

Major airlines sidestepped on-the-record comment beyond general expressions of interest, citing the many "ifs" involved on operating costs and purchase price.

Selig Altschul, an aviation financial consultant, said if a commercial version met severe demands of economic operation, it probably would open the way for sizable fare cuts and result in a "great stimulation" of travel, chiefly to Europe.

"But there would be offsets to economies of size, he added. "Great improvements would be required by such a huge plane in ground handling facilities.

He mentioned extremely heavy demands on facilities for food service, baggage handling, sanitation, boarding and ticketing that today's airports are not equipped to cope with.

"How do you go about feeding a mob like that?" said a representative of Pan American World Airways.

An American Airlines official, asked about the attractiveness of a 750-ton behemoth in New York-Los Angeles service, observed that three airlines flying the route now carry roughly 1,500 persons each way spread among two dozen flights.

"You might say that would be two loads each way. What kind of frequency of service would this allow?" he asked. "Certainly not what today's air traveler has come to demand."

Learn Spanish Quickly With Herald Speed-Speech Offer

If you want to learn to communicate in Spanish -- and everyone in the Southwest should -- you don't have to spend more than $2.95 (plus a nine-cent sales tax) to receive an entirely new method of learning this language. It's called SPEED SPEECH, and is now being offered as a public service by The Daily Sikeston Standard.

SPEED SPEECH was created by William Archer, who has devoted the last 13 years to developing this simple method of absorbing a working knowledge of oral Spanish, so that any one from toddler to grandmother can enjoy the satisfaction of using a foreign language.

Spanish SPEED SPEECH is today being made available through The Daily Sikeston Standard, and you will find complete details about the offer.

Since it is being offered as a public service to our readers, we are able to give you the textbook at much less than what it would cost elsewhere.

Along with the SPEED SPEECH textbook is a handy English-Spanish, Spanish-English dictionary, as well as a set of 45 rpm records which aid in learning. While these also sell at $2.95 each (plus tax), you do not have to buy all three at once. Try the textbook first, then add the records and the dictionary.

There is a solid, money-back guarantee on this offer, so if the program does not assist you after purposeful study, or if you are dissatisfied in any way, your money will be refunded.

The SPEED SPEECH offer will be kept in effect for only a limited time, so it is suggested that you place an order immediately. Your whole family can join in the learning process, and have fun. In fact, the family way is the best approach.

William Archer was always a diligent student of Spanish "by the book," but when he and his family moved to Mexico, he found he could not converse with the natives. This inability to communicate properly was the inspiration for the creation of his SPEED SPEECH.

This amazing course teaches you to speak and think in Spanish the same way a child does. The child learns to express wants and needs by speaking long before he learns about verb tenses and conjugations—so it is with SPEED SPEECH.

Missouri Girls Merit 4-H Achievement Awards

Two Missouri misses are reminiscing these days about five busy days spent in Chicago at the recent 43rd National 4-H Club Congress. They have memories of window shopping and sightseeing, a dress revue and a rodeo, parties and dances, and many other interesting activities shared wth others of the 1,500 delegates from 50 states and Puerto Rico.

Miss Whalen

Miss Plackemeier

The two travelers were: Emma Whalen, 20, of Mexico, and Margie Plackemeier, 18, of St. Charles.

Miss Whalen, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Whalen, was chosen best in the 4-H clothing program in the state. Her Chicago host was Coats & Clark Inc., sponsors of the program.

A junior at the University of Missouri, Miss Whalen says that she made her entire college wardrobe.

After nine years in 4-H projects, Miss Plackemeier received the state award in home improvement. The S & H Foundation, Inc., sponsors of the program, was host to all home improvement winners at a breakfast on Wednesday, Dec. 2, at the Sheraton-Blackstone Hotel.

Miss Anderson

Miss Plackemeier and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Plackemeier, are now enjoying a combination sun and sewing room which was converted from an open porch. Miss Plackemeier, needless to say, urged and aided in the remodeling job.

Dairy Foods Expert

Elaine Anderson, 19, of Owensville, was the dairy foods champion. She received a wrist watch from the Carnation Company for her excellent preparation and demonstrations of these nutritious foods.

Miss Anderson, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Anderson, has been a 4-H member for nine years. She is in her second year at the University of Missouri.

These three winners were selected by the Cooperative Extension Service which supervises the 4-H programs.

DEAR POLLY—For children's favors that can be eaten after a dinner or party, try this: Make trees from cracker ice-cream cones which you cover with green cake frosting and decorate with tiny gum drops or cake decoration candies. Set the trees on paper doilies and place the name cards beside the trees.—AGNES

DEAR POLLY—I am the mother of eight children. My washer, dryer and folding bench are recessed behind a draw curtain off the family room so they are concealed when not in use. Above the washer are three shelves. I have sprav painted 21 cardboard boxes and put each child's name on some of them. Others are marked for bathroom rags, mending, dry cleaning, etc. I only have to sort clean things and the children can carry their own clothes to the bedrooms.

My husband built two bins under the folding area by the washer. One is for washing and the other for things to be ironed. Although I wash every day I only iron once a week so this is handy to keep ironing out of the way. I sort mending as I do the washing putting all white, all gray, all red and dark things separately. I only change the thread once for each different color and even mend socks on the sewing machine.

I keep an index card for each child. One side has a record of vaccinations, booster shots, etc. and the dates and list of communicable diseases each child has had. The other side has the child's clothes, shoe and sock sizes. I carry these in my billfold so as to have the sizes available any time I see a special sale.

We store all shoe polish in one box. With this we keep a piece of folded newspaper so the children do not smear the polish all over something else. The cleanup operation is much easier.—JANE

GIRLS—Our sincere thanks to this busy homemaker who took the time from her already crowded schedule to share her favorite time savers with the rest of us.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—After I cut out a dress or anything else with a pattern, I always fold the pattern with the name of the pattern piece out so I can tell at a glance what each one is without unfolding all the pieces to find what I want.—RUTH

New Highway Means a Long Drive to Barn

LIBERTY, Mo. (AP) — After Interstate Highway 35 is built across his farm, Edgar N. Petty figures he'll have to drive eight miles to go from his house to his barn.

The barn is 400 feet from the house, and the highway will go between them. The highway department is scheduled to take possession of the 295-foot-wide right-of-way Tuesday.

Petty said the road also will:

Eliminate two stock ponds.

Destroy the solitude of country living.

"I can't possibly assess all the damage," Petty said. "And it's so expensive to go to court."

An appraisal board set a damage figure that is satisfactory with him, Petty said, but the state is suing him to reduce the amount.

A livestock feeder, Petty is director of the Clay County Livestock Association. The prospects of having to relocate are sobering.

"Wherever I go, I'll be feeding cattle," he said.

1964 IN THE CAMERA'S EYE

LYNDON BAINES JOHNSON, 56, of Texas became the 36th president of the United States for a four-year term of his own after finishing out the term of the assassinated John F. Kennedy. Johnson defeated Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona in a Democratic sweep, carrying 44 states with 486 electoral votes (270 needed to win) and reaping 61 per cent of the votes cast. LBJ's new right arm is Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, former Senate majority whip, elected to the vice presidency.

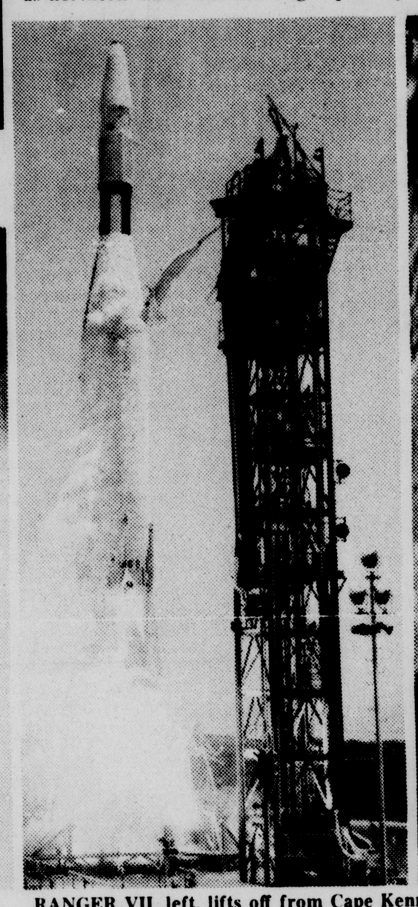

Once level, this three-tier Anchorage street typifies the damage caused throughout Alaska by the continent's greatest earthquake. Fishing fleets, industry, rails and thousands of private homes—60 per cent of the state's developed worth—were left in wreckage. Toll was 130. Tremors rocked West coast cities southward as far as northern California and huge 'quake-spawned tidal waves pounded across the Pacific to damage Hawaii.

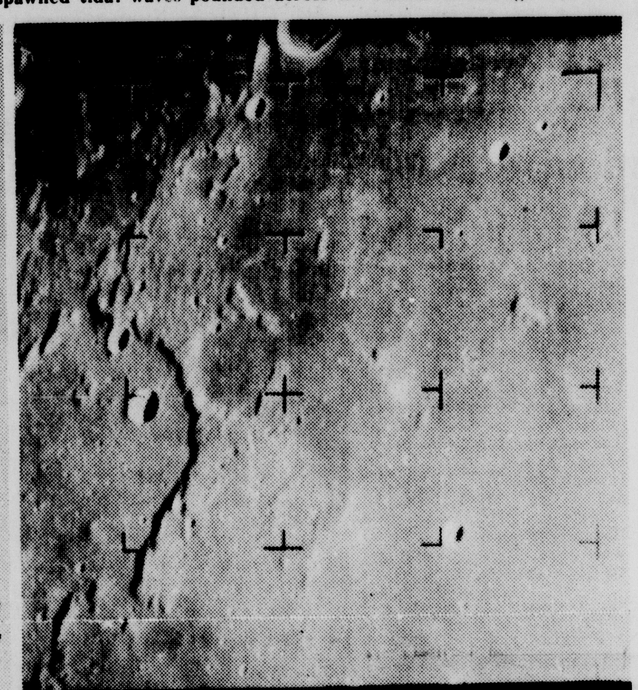

SOVIET PREMIER KHRUSHCHEV vowed on his 70th birthday he would not retire but he was tossed out of office unceremoniously and replaced by two "pals," Leonid Brezhnev, here bestowing Hero Medal upon Mr. K, as the Communist party's chief, and Aleksei Kosygin as the new premier.

RANGER VII, left, lifts off from Cape Kennedy, soars 243,000 miles through space in 68½ hours to a perfect impact on the moon. In history's most remarkable reconnaissance mission, Ranger's cameras sent back to earth 4,316 photographs of the crater-pocked moon surface, right, the greatest breakthrough in lunar astronomy since the days, more than 300 years ago, when Galileo first studied the heavens through a telescope.

HIT-RUN TACTICS and a steady boring in by Viet Cong guerrillas, coupled with civil strife and shaky Saigon governments, led to a steady deterioration of the war in South Viet Nam. Here, the Reds destroyed or damaged 27 U. S. planes in a mortar attack on a supposedly secret Viet air base.

YEAH, YEAH, YEAH, the land of fads came up with a beaut—Beatlemania—as four mop-haired English lads "invaded" the United States with their version of rock 'n' roll, a beat which converted the nation's teen-agers into riotous mobs of screaming, hysterical, frenzied, fall-down-fainting fans.

Pope Paul VI, right, confers on equal footing in Jordan with Patriarch Athenagoras I of Constantinople, during his historic tour of the Holy Land. The meeting was a step toward ending the 900-year-old split of the Roman Catholic and Eastern Orthodox Churches on dogmatic differences.

THE KALEIDOSCOPIC CONGO STORY took another dramatic turn with the atrocity slaying of hundreds of white hostages by leftist rebels holding the Stanleyville area before they could be rescued by Belgian sky troops. Here, a soldier finds the slain Dr. Paul Carlson, an American missionary

PICKETING, RIOTS, sit-ins and murder plagued the nation, north and south, despite passage of a civil rights bill. Violence erupted in New York, Rochester, Jersey City. Three white freedom workers were slain in Mississippi. Pickets even paraded before Unisphere at the opening of New York's glittering World's Fair

Drew Pearson Special

DREW PEARSON SAYS: Two women dare Un-American Activities Committee; They are cited under an 1857 law; Supreme Court has cast doubt on prosecution under this law.

WASHINGTON — The contempt citation against the two Strike For Peace ladies for refusing to testify at a closed-door secret hearing of the House Un-American Activities Committee was based on a law passed in 1857. It was aimed at forcing several House members accused of bribery to appear before a special investigating committee.

The congressmen in 1857 had refused to testify, and colleagues wanted to air the scandal to protect the integrity of the Congress. However, the 108-year-old statute has always been controversial and slightly suspect. Possibly it is even more so as it applies now to Mrs. Dagmar Wilson and Mrs. Donna Allen, the "Peace" leaders who offered to testify at public hearings but claimed they would be put under an unfair onus of guilt by a secret hearing. Hostile committee members, they argued, could give the press a one-sided version of their testimony.

Nonetheless, Speaker John McCormack felt that he was compelled to certify the contempt citation against Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Allen to a Grand Jury after the citation was signed by a majority of members of the Un-American Activities Committee, including Chairman Edwin E. Willis, of Louisiana.

During the 1857 Senate debate on the law, Sen. John P. Hale of New Hampshire charged that it overrode the Constitution and conflicted with the Fifth Amendment. Later, in the Frankfeld Case the Supreme Court chided Congress for leaving the Speaker or the President of the Senate no discretion in moving for Grand Jury action against balky witnesses before a committee.

In a legal brief on the Wilson-Allen Case, Mark Talisman, aide to Rep. Charles Vanik, D-Ohio, also stresses that the two women were "willing to testify before an open committee and the press which goes to the point that they . . . are unwilling to have themselves disgraced because of the current cloud of disgrace placed on witnesses before closed hearings of the Un-American Activities Committee."

What happened at the secret hearing of the Un-American Activities Committee has not leaked out, but it can be revealed that Rep. August E. Johansen, the lame-duck Republican from Michigan, was the only congressman who lost his temper.

"You can testify if you want to. Do you refuse?" he snapped.

"Yes, I accept the gentleman's words," replied Mrs. Allen. "I refuse."

"Do you realize that you run the risk of being cited for contempt?" asked subchairman Jack Pool, D-Texas, more sympathetically.

--SECRET HEARINGS ALLOWED--

Committee Counsel Nittle said that the Subcommittee, under its rules, could order a secret hearing if national security was involved.

"Do you mean to say that a security matter is involved here?" asked Larry Speiser, an attorney for the American Civil Liberties Union, who was representing the two witnesses.

"Not necessarily, until we have more facts," replied Nittle. "But the McCarran act was designed to exclude people like this Prof. Yasui, in my opinion. We also have the right to hold an executive hearing if the witnesses are apt to give derogatory or defamatory testimoney."

"I have no derogatory or defamatory information to give against anyone," insisted Mrs. Allen.

"All right, there are other matters involved here which the subcommittee has discussed and which lead us to believe that testimony should be taken behind closed doors," broke in Rep. Richard H. Ichord, D-Mo. "However, I am not at liberty to tell you what these matters are."

They involve security?" inquired Speiser.

"My statement will have to stand as it is," answered Ichord.

NOTE — Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Allen later told this column that to their best knowledge the Japanese professor under investigation for his trip to the United States was a descendant of an "aristocratic family," and not a Communist, though they weren't completely sure of this. They had urged the State Department to admit him, which was why they were summoned before the Un-American Activities Committee. They explained that the membership of the Japanese "Council Against the A and H Bombs," which he heads, was about half Communist, and that he was trying to keep both sides together in the interest of world peace. Hasui is a law professor at Hosai University in Tokyo.

Today in U. S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1845, Texas, the only state that had been a republic, was admitted to the Union. It became the 28th state.

On this date

In 1778, Savannah, Ga., was captured by the British.

In 1808, Andrew Johnson, the 17th president, was born in Raleigh, N. C.

In 1848, gas lights were installed in the White House.

In 1863, Arizona was organized as a territory.

In 1945, the Office of Price Administration announced that a 4 per cent cut would be ordered in ceiling prices of used cars.

Ten years ago - U. N. Secretary - General Dag Hammarskjold announced he would go to Peiping to discuss the freeing of 11 American fliers charged with spying in Red China.

One year ago - Twenty-one persons died in a fire in Jacksonville, Fla., and 62 were injured.

Cotton Situation Is Reviewed by Advisory Group

At a two day meeting in Washington, D. C. early in December, the Advisory Committee on Cotton considered the present cotton situation, the effectiveness of the 2-year cotton program enacted by Congress in April, 1964, and the need for additional cotton legislation when this program ends July 31, 1966.

After hearing various situation reports, the Committee agreed that the overall cotton situation has improved under the new legislation. The supply of cotton still substantially exceeds needs, due principally to (1) record-high yields per acre this year resulting in an unexpectedly large crop, and (2) outlook for exports somewhat less than last year. The domestic allotment program did not curtail production enough, mainly due to the late date of enactment of the law, the Committee said.

A substantial majority of the Committee believes the 2-year program, perhaps with some modifications, should be extended by the Congress for additional years. The large supply of cotton now on hand was recognized as the No. 1 cotton problem, and discussion centered on various actions which might be taken, such as (1) stepping up domestic consumption and exports of cotton, and (2) ways to encourage wide participation in the domestic allotment program. Other items were considered by the Committee, including the price - support level for the 1965 crop.

Domestic consumption of cotton is estimated to be at least 1 million bales higher than in 1963-64 under provisions of the 2- year cotton legislation which make cotton available to U.S. textile mills at prices no higher than those at which cotton is available for export to foreign markets. Demand for cotton goods has been extremely strong in recent months. Reductions in the price of cotton items to consumers are in evidence and this trend is expected to become widespread in the months ahead, according to the committee.

A young wife who went to visit her mother for a week left several notes about the house for her husband. One in the coffee can reminded him of her love, and another on the TV set asked him to do some errands--but the one he found among his white shirts brought him up short. It read: "Where do you think you're going that you need a white shirt?"

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., had Estate of $149 Million

NEW YORK (AP) -- The late John D. Rockefeller Jr., whose life was largely devoted to philanthropy, left a net estate officially appraised Thursday at $149,096,455.

Rockefeller, who was 86 when he died in Tucson, Ariz., on May 11, 1960, made a will in 1958 and subsequently made three additions or changes.

The State Transfer Tax Department disclosed Rockefeller had gross assets of $160,598,584.

The bulk of the fortune was in securities valued at more than $151 million. Real estate holdings were worth $750,000.

His widow, Martha Baird Rockefeller of New York inherits an income for life from a trust fund of about half the estate. She was his second wife, having married him in 1951. Rockefeller's first wife, the former Abby Greene Aldrich and mother of his six children died in 1948.

After the trust fund for his wife, Rockefeller left the bulk of the rest of his estate of about $75 million to the Rockefeller Brothers Fund, Inc., for charity purposes.

Earlier, their father had established trusts of about $200 million for them.

Under terms of the will, the Metropolitan Museum of Art received a collection of works valued at $695,500.

FORCED FROM HOME -- Twillia Kiplinger, four, has a bowl of soup in a Red Cross emergency evacuation station at the state fair grounds in Salem, Ore. Her family fled its home when four feet of floodwaters swept into the house. About 1,000 persons were forced from their homes in Salem's Keizer residential section as the Willamette River climbed 10 feet above flood level. At least 10 persons have been killed in the Oregon floods. (NEA TELEPHOTO)

"You must have a 20-20 vision but the privileges at the school are better, with at least two weekends per month. Your studies are hard, and I haven't had a date in a year. You must carry 22 hours, compared to an average of 17 in a college.

In summing up the interviews Congressman Jones urged each of the fifteen candidates to write him a letter within the next two weeks, if they still had a desire to enter any of the academies. "You must make your own decision with your conscience. We expect each man to make a contribution to his country by staying in the academy until graduation if at all possible.

"I will remind you too, that only 15 of you of the 43 who took the entrance examination made over a 65 grade, and the top person made 78. Had you been lower than 65 you would not have completed your first year.

"There are five openings, two for West Point, two for the Airforce, and one for the Naval Academy, the rest of you will become alternates and have a good chance of entering."

missioner Bertrand Harding, who had been serving since Mortimer Caplin resigned last July.

Some doubt is expressed as to how sweeping the "little Cabinet" shakeup will be. All such officials submit their resignations, as a matter of formality, when a president is newly inaugurated. The President can give a man the gate by merely accepting the resignations.

But will he do this, for example, to Charles S. Murphy, undersecretary of agriculture? Murphy was a top manager of Johnson's campaign for the presidential nomination in 1960.

Or to Undersecretary of Commerce Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., son of LBJ's idol?

Or to W. Averell Harriman, longtime Democratic stalwart and specialist in foreign affairs? He is an undersecretary of state. Insiders take into consideration talk that relations between him and Johnson are not close.

Without firing anybody, the President can put the LBJ brand on much of the government when he fills a long list of existing vacancies.

Nightingales Are Viet Nam Girls of Air

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — South Viet Nam has its own Florence Nightingales of the air, a platoon of hardy girl paratroopers trained to jump with the troops in combat.

They are all trained nurses. Their talents were demonstrated in a recent exhibition when they leaped out of lumbering C47s high over Saigon and landed in the Saigon River.

They were right on target.

Dragging waterproof medical kits behind them, they swam to the river bank and were soon administering first aid to several paratroopers who were injured in the jump.

But not before they showed they were women first. They attended to such feminine requisites as lipstick and combing their hair before tending to first aid.

No doubt they were working on the premise that a wounded soldier wants a nurse as beautiful as she is competent.

The paratroop nurses are given the same rigorous training as male paratroopers and are trained also in the use of weapons.

Emergencies

Three persons were treated and dismissed from the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community Hospital Monday.

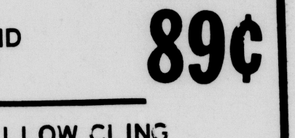

Crichel Wilkins, Morehouse, dropped piece of steel on foot; Grace Powell, Sikeston, cut finger with knife and Patricia Williams, Sikeston, fell and hit head.

BERTRAND MAN KILLED IN FREAK ACCIDENT

LBJ and Advisors Busy on Message and The Budgets

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson meets today with Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Presidential Assistant McGeorge Bundy to review world developments.

The three also were to discuss the State Department's budget for the next fiscal year and go over personnel matters.

George McGhee, U.S. ambassador to Bonn, who is home for consultation, will fly to the ranch Wednesday to review developments in West Germany.

Johnson's statement that he would review with Rusk and Bundy "ambassadors throughout the world" appeared to be in line with reports he plans shifts in 15 to 20 ambassadorships.

Official sources in Washington denied that McGhee or David K. E. Bruce, ambassador to London, would be involved in the shifts.

The shifting is expected to start in January with the naming of seven ambassadors and a minister to vacant posts.

Johnson is still working on his State of the Union message. He discussed it by phone Monday with Rusk, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and others.

Johnson told newsmen at an informal session on the front lawn of the LBJ Ranch Monday that next Monday's State of the Union message will be brief and will emphasize recommendations he would like to see considered promptly.

He displayed three thick loose-leaf notebooks which he said contained suggestions some 50 agencies would like him to consider before writing his message.

Johnson said parts of the administration's program not outlined in the message "will be dealt with during the next four years in a series of messages from time to time, and they will be timed, based upon when Congress is ready to receive them and when the committees can act upon them and when the administration has completed its studies in the respective fields."

The State of the Union message will be delivered to a joint session of Congress and the American public at 9 p.m. on the opening day of the new Congress.

Johnson told newsmen he had picked a new commissioner of Internal Revenue and filled two other major posts.

Sheldon B. Cohen, 37, chief counsel of the Internal Revenue Service, will become commissioner.

Dr. Frederick Lewis Deming, 52, president of the Federal Reserve Bank in Minneapolis, will become undersecretary of the Treasury for monetary affairs.

Mitchell Rogovin, 34, assistant to the commissioner of Internal Revenue, will succeed Cohen as chief counsel.

Cohen will succeed Bertrand Harding as head of the IRS. Harding was named acting commissioner last July 10 to

Way Clear For UN To Finish

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. AP -- The way was reported clear today for the U. N. General Assembly to clean up year-end business without a showdown over the Soviet Union's vote.

Assembly President Alex Quaison - Sackey of Ghana was expected to tell the assembly this morning that he had worked out an agreement with key delegates.

Diplomatic sources said the agreement would let the assembly elect four new Security Council members and adopt a stopgap budgetary resolution by the general - consent procedure that was used on opening day, Dec. 1, to elect the president and admit Malawi, Malta and Zambia to U. N. membership.

That would put off a Soviet-U.S. showdown over Article 19 of the U.N. Charter. The assembly, after finishing the essential business Wednesday would recess until around Jan. 11.

Hint of "Shake-up" By LBJ Worries Many Officials

Massive Clean-up Job on West Coast

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson had a lot of officials and their wives sitting on the edge of their chairs today — some with a sense of foreboding, some in hopeful expectation.

Much excitement was aroused by word that the President plans a shakeup in his "little Cabinet;" that he will make many new appointments to such posts as undersecretary, assistant secretary and other administrators.

The President has ordered a "talent hunt." He wants, so far as possible, to recruit his new administrators from men and women already in the government.

So the question arose: Who will get the ax, and who will be promoted to jobs paying as high as $30,000 a year?

Johnson dipped into government ranks in making two of his most recent appointments. Saturday he named William J. Driver to head the Veterans Administration. Monday night he selected Sheldon S. Cohen to be collector of internal revenue.

Driver, who had been deputy VA administrator, succeeds John S. Gleason Jr., who resigned. Cohen, chief counsel of the IRS, succeeds acting Com-

Learn of Academy Demands

To enter an armed force academy of the United States, it was learned that it takes more than passing an entrance examination, as was pointed out Monday noon when 15 young candidates met with Congressman Paul C. Jones at the Mid-Towner.

To acquaint the young men with what to expect to be admitted to West Point, the Naval or the Airforce Academy, two cadets and a graduate were present to outline the duties. The three academy speakers were, First Lieutenant Roy Clinton, West Point graduate; Cadet Mike Henzi, third year at Annapolis; and Cadet David Moore, senior in the Airforce Academy. These young men were asked to discuss both the good and bad points while pursuing their duties.

Officer Clinton said, "my remarks are devoted to you young men who are candidates and want to go to West Point. A plebe should remember that he will not be favored while in the school. You spend most of your time studying, and can date only on a Saturday night. You're in the Academy to be trained to be a soldier, and little time for anything else.

"You will not have the comforts of home as you spend about half of the time on duty in the field of operations and must sleep out. You must be a dedicated man and also feel that you are being cheated. Above all forget about the sweetheart at home. Your pay scale starts at around $235 per month. I have been out of service 18 months and have gone up to $600 per month. They need young officers and you should be a captain by the time you are 28."

Cadet Mike Henzi of the Naval Academy said, "the Navy needs officers, but they must be good, and the time is devoted to make a man out of you. It's a rough life and not much money, and above all, you'll lose your girl friend, because you must forsake all for your duties.

"I am majoring in mathematics, and will be going to the submarines soon. After a few years in the academy you will be able to hold conversation with anyone who has been through college. You will take several trips to the Mediterrean, as well as Europe, and spend much time at the training base in Jacksonville, Fla.

Air Force Cadet David Moore told the candidates he didn't realize what he was getting into, because, "I never have flown before. There are many bad things to look forward to. You will be away from home at least half of the time after you have graduated. One thing that is good is the $500 per month flight pay.

"I thought I was a superman before I went in, but they almost killed me with the physical training I went through. Anyone attending the academy can receive a major in one of eight fields offered.

Christmas Traffic Toll Second High

CHICAGO (AP) -- The nation's traffic deaths over the weekend totaled 578, second highest toll for a three-day Christmas holiday weekend.

The record toll for a three-day Christmas holiday period is 609 set in 1955. This year's total compared with 396 fatalities reported in a three-day nonholiday weekend earlier this month.

New Italian President is Chosen

ROME AP -- Giuseppe Saragat, 66, first Socialist president in Italian history, swore faith to the nation and the constitution today as a 101-gun salute thundered over Rome from the Janiculum Hill.

The portly former foreign minister took his oath of office standing stiffly erect before a combined session of Parliament, which elected him to a seven-year term Monday on the 21st ballot. He succeeds Christian Democrat Antonio Segni, who resigned because of illness.

Although Saragat is pro-NATO and anti-Communist, the Communists' 253 votes were the decisive factor. They gave him a total of 646, well beyond the 482 necessary.

President Johnson cabled congratulations to Saragat, but unofficial reaction at the State Department was tinged with reservations.

The Italian president is largely a figurehead, but in times of government crisis he names the new premier and he can dissolve Parliament. He also has considerable influence on political trends.

Rotarians are Told About Income Tax

In the Rotary Club Monday night at the Rustic Rock, George Pfautsch presented his own program on the new income tax laws. He is the accountant for Potlatch Forests, Inc.

He informed his fellow Rotarians that the 1964 tax structure would be some larger than the previous year, as well as in 1965, as the tax spread for this year was a low of 16 percent to a high of 77 percent, and next year would be 14 and 70 per cent. An example would be that an individual who made $7500 would be an additional $100 tax.

The dividend credit has been lowered from four to two percent this year. Contributions have been increased to 30 percent and includes all charities, and can be spread over the years.

Those over 65 years can

Car Hits Charley Taylor

Charley Taylor, a 53-year old farmer of near Bertrand was killed about 7:15 p.m. Monday on Route "C", five miles south of Charleston at the intersection with Highway 77 when he was hit by a car driven by Neva Jackson, 36, Route 1, Charleston.

According to the State Highway Patrol, Mr. Taylor had been driving his car, lost control and it went into the ditch.

His son, Bobbie Gene Taylor tried to pull his father's car out of the ditch with another car using a chain. The chain broke and Mr. Taylor got out of his car and went onto the highway to his son's car to help refasten the chain.

Neva Jackson saw the son's car on the highway and in dodging a collision with the car hit Mr. Taylor. He was knocked into the ditch and, it is believed, killed instantly.

Mr. Taylor was born June 2, 1911 in East Prairie, son of the late William and Betty Taylor and in 1941 married the former Miss Annie Lee Flowers, who survives. Other survivors are a daughter, Betty Ann; four sons, Billy Gene; Bobby Gene, Thomas Lee and Don Ray, all at home and a half brother, Hogue Bradley, address unknown.

The body is at the Shelby Funeral Home in East Prairie where services will be conducted in the Shelby chapel at 2 p.m. Wednesday. The Rev. S. C. Headrick will officiate and interment will be in Dogwood cemetery.

There were only four traffic accidents in Troop E territory Monday, the one fatality and four injured.

At 4:35 p.m. Monday, the Patrol reports, in Bloomfield on Highway 25 at a four-way stop, Henry Hagan, 48, of Perryville, failed to stop and hit a car driven by Margaret Layton, 42, of Bloomfield and then skidded and hit a car driven by Mary Livers, 38, of Dexter. No injuries but Hagan was charged with careless and imprudent driving.

At 8 a.m. Monday, the Patrol reports, a quarter mile south of Morley on Highway 61, Theo Poindexter, 39, of Sikeston, lost control of his truck and it sideswiped a car driven by Joseph Dyra, 48, of St. Louis and then went off the road to turn over. No injuries reported.

BERTRAND MAN KILLED IN FREAK ACCIDENT

LBJ and Advisors Busy on Message and The Budgets

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson meets today with Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Presidential Assistant McGeorge Bundy to review world developments.

The three also were to discuss the State Department's budget for the next fiscal year and go over personnel matters.

George McGhee, U.S. ambassador to Bonn, who is home for consultation, will fly to the ranch Wednesday to review developments in West Germany.

Johnson's statement that he would review with Rusk and Bundy "ambassadors throughout the world" appeared to be in line with reports he plans shifts in 15 to 20 ambassadorships.

Official sources in Washington denied that McGhee or David K. E. Bruce, ambassador to London, would be involved in the shifts.

The shifting is expected to start in January with the naming of seven ambassadors and a minister to vacant posts.

Johnson is still working on his State of the Union message. He discussed it by phone Monday with Rusk, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and others.

Johnson told newsmen at an informal session on the front lawn of the LBJ Ranch Monday that next Monday's State of the Union message will be brief and will emphasize recommendations he would like to see considered promptly.

He displayed three thick loose-leaf notebooks which he said contained suggestions some 50 agencies would like him to consider before writing his message.

Johnson said parts of the administration's program not outlined in the message "will be dealt with during the next four years in a series of messages from time to time, and they will be timed, based upon when Congress is ready to receive them and when the committees can act upon them and when the administration has completed its studies in the respective fields."

The State of the Union message will be delivered to a joint session of Congress and the American public at 9 p.m. on the opening day of the new Congress.

Johnson told newsmen he had picked a new commissioner of Internal Revenue and filled two other major posts.

Sheldon B. Cohen, 37, chief counsel of the Internal Revenue Service, will become commissioner.

Dr. Frederick Lewis Deming, 52, president of the Federal Reserve Bank in Minneapolis, will become undersecretary of the Treasury for monetary affairs.

Mitchell Rogovin, 34, assistant to the commissioner of Internal Revenue, will succeed Cohen as chief counsel.

Cohen will succeed Bertrand Harding as head of the IRS. Harding was named acting commissioner last July 10 to

Way Clear For UN To Finish

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. AP -- The way was reported clear today for the U. N. General Assembly to clean up year-end business without a showdown over the Soviet Union's vote.

Assembly President Alex Quaison - Sackey of Ghana was expected to tell the assembly this morning that he had worked out an agreement with key delegates.

Diplomatic sources said the agreement would let the assembly elect four new Security Council members and adopt a stopgap budgetary resolution by the general - consent procedure that was used on opening day, Dec. 1, to elect the president and admit Malawi, Malta and Zambia to U. N. membership.

That would put off a Soviet-U.S. showdown over Article 19 of the U.N. Charter. The assembly, after finishing the essential business Wednesday would recess until around Jan. 11.

Hint of "Shake-up" By LBJ Worries Many Officials

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson had a lot of officials and their wives sitting on the edge of their chairs today — some with a sense of foreboding, some in hopeful expectation.

Much excitement was aroused by word that the President plans a shakeup in his "little Cabinet;" that he will make many new appointments to such posts as undersecretary, assistant secretary and other administrators.

The President has ordered a "talent hunt." He wants, so far as possible, to recruit his new administrators from men and women already in the government.

So the question arose: Who will get the ax, and who will be promoted to jobs paying as high as $30,000 a year?

Johnson dipped into government ranks in making two of his most recent appointments. Saturday he named William J. Driver to head the Veterans Administration. Monday night he selected Sheldon S. Cohen to be collector of internal revenue.

Driver, who had been deputy VA administrator, succeeds John S. Gleason Jr., who resigned. Cohen, chief counsel of the IRS, succeeds acting Com-

Learn of Academy Demands

To enter an armed force academy of the United States, it was learned that it takes more than passing an entrance examination, as was pointed out Monday noon when 15 young candidates met with Congressman Paul C. Jones at the Mid-Towner.

To acquaint the young men with what to expect to be admitted to West Point, the Naval or the Airforce Academy, two cadets and a graduate were present to outline the duties. The three academy speakers were, First Lieutenant Roy Clinton, West Point graduate; Cadet Mike Henzi, third year at Annapolis; and Cadet David Moore, senior in the Airforce Academy. These young men were asked to discuss both the good and bad points while pursuing their duties.

Officer Clinton said, "my remarks are devoted to you young men who are candidates and want to go to West Point. A plebe should remember that he will not be favored while in the school. You spend most of your time studying, and can date only on a Saturday night. You're in the Academy to be trained to be a soldier, and little time for anything else.

"You will not have the comforts of home as you spend about half of the time on duty in the field of operations and must sleep out. You must be a dedicated man and also feel that you are being cheated. Above all forget about the sweetheart at home. Your pay scale starts at around $235 per month. I have been out of service 18 months and have gone up to $600 per month. They need young officers and you should be a captain by the time you are 28."

Cadet Mike Henzi of the Naval Academy said, "the Navy needs officers, but they must be good, and the time is devoted to make a man out of you. It's a rough life and not much money, and above all, you'll lose your girl friend, because you must forsake all for your duties.

"I am majoring in mathematics, and will be going to the submarines soon. After a few years in the academy you will be able to hold conversation with anyone who has been through college. You will take several trips to the Mediterrean, as well as Europe, and spend much time at the training base in Jacksonville, Fla.

Air Force Cadet David Moore told the candidates he didn't realize what he was getting into, because, "I never have flown before. There are many bad things to look forward to. You will be away from home at least half of the time after you have graduated. One thing that is good is the $500 per month flight pay.

"I thought I was a superman before I went in, but they almost killed me with the physical training I went through. Anyone attending the academy can receive a major in one of eight fields offered.

Christmas Traffic Toll Second High

CHICAGO (AP) -- The nation's traffic deaths over the weekend totaled 578, second highest toll for a three-day Christmas holiday weekend.

The record toll for a three-day Christmas holiday period is 609 set in 1955. This year's total compared with 396 fatalities reported in a three-day nonholiday weekend earlier this month.

New Italian President is Chosen

ROME AP -- Giuseppe Saragat, 66, first Socialist president in Italian history, swore faith to the nation and the constitution today as a 101-gun salute thundered over Rome from the Janiculum Hill.

The portly former foreign minister took his oath of office standing stiffly erect before a combined session of Parliament, which elected him to a seven-year term Monday on the 21st ballot. He succeeds Christian Democrat Antonio Segni, who resigned because of illness.

Although Saragat is pro-NATO and anti-Communist, the Communists' 253 votes were the decisive factor. They gave him a total of 646, well beyond the 482 necessary.

The Italian president is largely a figurehead, but in times of government crisis he names the new premier and he can dissolve Parliament. He also has considerable influence on political trends.

Rotarians are Told About Income Tax

In the Rotary Club Monday night at the Rustic Rock, George Pfautsch presented his own program on the new income tax laws. He is the accountant for Potlatch Forests, Inc.

He informed his fellow Rotarians that the 1964 tax structure would be some larger than the previous year, as well as in 1965, as the tax spread for this year was a low of 16 percent to a high of 77 percent, and next year would be 14 and 70 per cent. An example would be that an individual who made $7500 would be an additional $100 tax.

The dividend credit has been lowered from four to two percent this year. Contributions have been increased to 30 percent and includes all charities, and can be spread over the years.

Car Hits Charley Taylor

Charley Taylor, a 53-year old farmer of near Bertrand was killed about 7:15 p.m. Monday on Route "C", five miles south of Charleston at the intersection with Highway 77 when he was hit by a car driven by Neva Jackson, 36, Route 1, Charleston.

According to the State Highway Patrol, Mr. Taylor had been driving his car, lost control and it went into the ditch.

His son, Bobbie Gene Taylor tried to pull his father's car out of the ditch with another car using a chain. The chain broke and Mr. Taylor got out of his car and went onto the highway to his son's car to help refasten the chain.

Neva Jackson saw the son's car on the highway and in dodging a collision with the car hit Mr. Taylor. He was knocked into the ditch and, it is believed, killed instantly.

Mr. Taylor was born June 2, 1911 in East Prairie, son of the late William and Betty Taylor and in 1941 married the former Miss Annie Lee Flowers, who survives. Other survivors are a daughter, Betty Ann; four sons, Billy Gene; Bobby Gene, Thomas Lee and Don Ray, all at home and a half brother, Hogue Bradley, address unknown.

The body is at the Shelby Funeral Home in East Prairie where services will be conducted in the Shelby chapel at 2 p.m. Wednesday. The Rev. S. C. Headrick will officiate and interment will be in Dogwood cemetery.

There were only four traffic accidents in Troop E territory Monday, the one fatality and four injured.

At 4:35 p.m. Monday, the Patrol reports, in Bloomfield on Highway 25 at a four-way stop, Henry Hagan, 48, of Perryville, failed to stop and hit a car driven by Margaret Layton, 42, of Bloomfield and then skidded and hit a car driven by Mary Livers, 38, of Dexter. No injuries but Hagan was charged with careless and imprudent driving.

At 8 a.m. Monday, the Patrol reports, a quarter mile south of Morley on Highway 61, Theo Poindexter, 39, of Sikeston, lost control of his truck and it sideswiped a car driven by Joseph Dyra, 48, of St. Louis and then went off the road to turn over. No injuries reported.

PRINTING OF DAR REPORT CAUSED A FUROR

Earlier this year, the DAR was criticized in the United States Senate. This action followed the introduction of a resolution to print the society's annual report as Congress does every year.

A senator charged that the organization enjoyed a tax-exempt status while engaged in political action.

On the next day the President, Mrs. Robert V. H. Duncan, issued a news release which was subsequently inserted into the Congressional Record. It said:

"There is nothing secret about the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, its policies, actions or purposes. As President General, I am glad and perfectly willing to answer bona fide questions concerning this organization.

"Further, any interested inquiry is welcome as it provides an opportunity to inform the public at large the comprehensive NSDAR program -- in the fields of historic preservation, promotion of education and patriotic endeavor -- which has been steadfastly and conscientiously maintained and supported for more than 72 years. We are proud of this record and feel it speaks for itself.

"So far as the term 'politicking' is concerned, I am surprised at its use and am at something of a loss to know just what is meant, inasmuch as the National Society maintains no lobby at national, state, or local government levels, contributes to no political party or candidates in any way, initiates no legislation, and does not -- as do a number of organizations -- even in its own internal setup have any legislative chairmen. Yes, the DAR, being interested in the preservation and maintenance of our constitutional Republic, does urge its members as individual good American citizens to be informed and to exercise the privilege of the franchise and vote, but how one votes is entirely up to the individual."

In discussing the "tax-free" inference, Mrs. Duncan cited several factors. She explained:

"Aside from the fact that the DAR was not organized and has never been operated for profit, for the past 30 years its privately owned auditorium has been made available on an at-cost basis -- when no other or similar facility was available -- for the furtherance of cultural and educational pursuits in the Nation's Capital. On this the NSDAR pays business taxes to the District of Columbia; last year these ran over $20,000. This year they will run more.

"As respects patriotic endeavor, the taking of stands and passing of resolutions, the recent newspaper-carried statement assigning political motivation to the activities of the NSDAR, on national and international problems, is misleading," Mrs. Duncan said.

The DAR was founded in 1890 and five years later was chartered by the Congress of the United States for historic, educational, and patriotic purposes.

"It always has been and remains today just such an organization," the President declared.

"The national society through the years has patriotically supported and encouraged appreciation of our American heritage and way of life where lie the fundamental principles and ideals that have given this nation and its people the greatest freedom, most justice, and the highest standard of living known to man.

"This has been the unwavering course of the NSDAR irrespective of changes in political administrations, whether in the executive or legislative branches of the federal government, or both.

"The DAR acts independently and takes its stand alone, without affiliation or identity with any other organization. Further, whether one agrees with DAR stands or not, it is noteworthy that not once - never - in the course of its existence has it ever passed a resolution asking anything for itself - no special consideration, favor of any kind, grant or sudsidy."

What has the DAR accomplished over the years? The record reveals that annual DAR contributions to schools total approximately $200,000 a year, exclusive of the incalculable amount given to students through loans and scholarships irrespective of race, color, or creed. DAR assistance in 1963 to American Indians is in excess of $34,000. The organization owns and operates two schools in South Carolina and Alabama - investments of more than $2 million.

In addition, the DAR assists immigrants and naturalized citizens. Over the years, it has provided free copies of its textbook of instructions to prepare new citizens for citizenship tests. To date, more than 9 million have been distributed free of charge.

The DAR has placed great emphasis on its work with youth. Its activities consist of nationwide programs promoting good citizenship, leadership, dependability, and service.

The DAR has marked, restored and maintained many landmarks of importance. It constructed and gave to the Valley Forge Foundation the famous Memorial Bell Tower in Pennsylvania at a cost of more than $400,000.

At its national headquarters in Washington, the DAR maintains a genealogical and historic research library, and an American museum.

Included in the long and impressive record of public service by the DAR is its Hospital Corps. Organized in April of 1898 to recruit nurses for service during the Spanish-American War, it became the nucleus of the Army Nurse Corps. For those nurses whose services were not long enough to quality for government pensions, the DAR provided pensions.

During World War I, cash and gifts from DAR members totaled close to $4 million. In addition, they rendered aid to French war orphans and restored the water system in a French village. The DAR purchased more than $130 million in war bonds.

During World War II, the organization purchased bonds in excess of $206 million; gave almost $1.3 million in projects and another $1.3 million to the American Red Cross.

DAR aid to American Indians is coordinated through the American Indians Committee. More than $100,000 was given last year for scholarships and clothing.

One DAR committee promotes citizenship training and study of American Government and institutions. Through this committee, thousands of aliens receive help in preparing for naturalization examinations. In every state in the nation and in the District of Columbia, the DAR committee members give their time and means in teaching classes. The DAR believes that Americanism is best fostered by friendship between aliens and citizens and by inculcating the ideals of our country in the hearts and minds of those who have made this country their choice. DAR interest does not cease after their students become citizens. Members visit new citizens, take them to churches, libraries, historical places, and assist them in registering and voting.

In 1913, the DAR founded the Americanization School in Washington, D. C. It is the only school of its kind in the United States, and by an act of Congress was incorporated into the District of Columbia school system in 1919. Approximately 1,500 students from 80 nations attend.

Of special significance is their Children of American Revolution Committee which has a membership of more than 18,000. Its purpose is to secure perception and adoption of those principles and institutions for which their ancestors fought and died.

Its Good Citizens Committee presents a certificate and pin to the winner in each senior high school Good Citizen Contest, a $100 U.S. Saving Bond and pin to each State Good Citizen, and a $1,000 scholarship to the National DAR Good Citizen.

We submit that a study of the activities of the DAR shows that the organization actively promotes Americanism and renders unselfish service to both young and old.

Look for tangerines to be at the peak of supply from now through January. Some, however, still will be available through late spring.

HITS LOANS CHANGING CROPLAND TO COURSES

Future holes-in-one on farm land converted into golf courses through Federal agency loans will undoubtedly please the golfer, says Tax Foundation, Inc. But they won't win any cheers from Sen. John J. Williams of Delaware.

Before Congress adjourned, he spoke against loan advances made by the Farmers Home Administration, sometimes "over $1,000 per acre," to have farmland retired from crop production and diverted to recreational purposes.

These loans, Sen. Williams said, had little or no connection with farming and were "extremely costly to the taxpayer."

In one Maryland county, he said, 136 farm acres were retired and converted to a golf course with a FHA loan of $151,190.

DO NERVES JANGLE WHEN PHONE JINGLES?

The telephone rings, you answer, and a well-modulated voice asks, "Can you name any two Presidents of the U.S.?"

Unfazed, the caller gurgles, "Not quite correct, but because of your sense of humor, I am authorized to tell you that you have just won a free evaluation lesson at the Blank Blank Dance studios. When would you like to come in for your free lesson?"

If the telephone salesmen haven't gotten to you, don't worry. They will, warns the Catholic Digest. This country has 77 million telephones, and at the rate these fellows are pitching they will ring every one.

Consumer businesses of all sorts are climbing on the telephone bandwagon. Fortunately for the consumer, the majority stress the once rare qualities of brevity and honest. And their sales are zooming.

WELCOME COLD WATER

Assistant Treasury Secretary Stanley Surrey has expressed opposition to the currently-popular Washington idea of Federal subsidies direct to the states for any and all purposes.

This proposition has been advanced on the basis that state and local government costs are advancing rapidly, and that Uncle Sam should help out by making payments direct to the states out of Federal revenues.

Sometimes it is suggested that this happens when the budget shows a surplus again, if ever, and at other times it is suggested that the Treasury send money it will merely have to borrow. In any case, the enthusiasts for this plan emphasize that there would be "no strings," or anyway, hardly any.

Mr. Surrey's is the first Administration voice to be raised against this proposal, and we hope he will get backing.

There is no limit to the money that government can spend, given the chance. The principal restraint on extravagance felt by state and local governments now arises from the fact that their taxpayers and their voters are mainly the same people and must pay for what they get.

Once a politician sees the opportunity to spend money from other states on the citizens of his own state, the temptation will be irresistible -- especially around election time.

The absence of "strings" cannot be taken seriously by any observer of the Washington scene. Hours after California voters adopted a provision enabling any property owner his property, the U. S. cut off aid to all California urban renewal projects. This surprised no one, as the Government insists on its own goals.

The sensible approach is for the Federal Government to collect no more than it needs, and to allow the states and cities to raise their own money. If Federal taxes go down, the states and cities will have a better opportunity to tax for their own needs.

THE SO AND SO'S

THE STORY is told of Will Rogers being shown the beautiful new state capitol building at Lincoln, Nebraska. They were standing in front of the building reading the inscription over the entrance: "The vigilance of the people is the salvation of the state."

Will Rogers read it, thought about it a moment, then scratched his head and said, "Why don't they put these things up there in language the people can understand?"

"Oh, something like this," replied Will. "You gotta watch them guys or they'll run away with the state capitol."

"We must get sick and call for you."

The murder of medical Missionary Dr. Paul Carlson by Congolese rebels in Stanleyville was a tragic waste of life and talent. It may serve some useful purpose, however, by reminding us that many more Americans like him are overseas, risking their health if not their lives, working long days under primitive conditions to help their fellow men.

In the field of medicine alone, more than 2,000 U. S. doctors are serving in Africa, Asia and Latin America. Few of them achieve the fame of a Dr. Dooley of Laos or Dr. Seagrave of Burma. Fortunately few of them meet the fate of a Dr. Carlson.

Despite the hardships -- an 18-hour day or longer, lack of modern equipment, scarcity of medical supplies, the treatment of diseases unknown in the United States -- there has been a steady upsurge of interest among doctors in serving overseas. The American Medical Association reports it has received nearly 1,000 queries from doctors in the past year.

Hundreds of doctors are working with the 600 to 700 health projects and more than 350 hospitals sponsored by U. S. organizations in foreign lands. The AMA estimates that Protestant denominations have about

Others are with nonsectarian charitable organizations for varying periods of service. For example, CARE-MEDICO sends about 150 volunteer doctors overseas every year; Project Hope uses 35 to 40 volunteers on two to three-month duty tours.

About 200 other American physicians serve with U. S. government agencies such as the Agency for International Development (AID), the Peace Corps, the Public Health Service and the National Institutes of Health.

The AMA maintains a clearing house to process the growing number of requests from foreign countries for doctors. It also sends its publications free of charge to doctors overseas, maintains dues-free membership for them and supplies information on the types of diseases and kinds of facilities that may be encountered in individual countries.

For missions perpetually scrounging for supplies, it publishes a directory listing more than 35 voluntary, nonprofit organizations which collect surplus medical journals, textbooks, equipment, drugs and drug samples for shipment overseas.

TO CHANGE TACTICS

Karl Marx, originator of modern communism, was thoroughly discredited in 1903 but the faithful comprising Lenin and 16 comrades met in London and made plans to carry forward.

By 1917 this force had increased to about 40,000 and in November they seized control of the Kerensky government which had overthrown the czarist regime the previous March. Lenin's and Trotsky's Bolsheviks were dominating 160 million very backward people. Despite repeated losses in armed conflicts, famines and blood purges, causing a total of many millions of deaths, the number under communist domination grows. Their leaders, although sometimes transient, steadfastly declare they will take over and rule the entire world. Many wonder how they hope to achieve their goals and methods available to them are a worthy subject of study. Needless to say those who lead are able though not especially versatile.

Their chance of success is a matter of frequent discussion as it should be. The question arises as to the tactics the communists must pursue to take over all of the freedom loving people of the world, for it is well known that the majority do not desire to live under communist control.

When the changes the communists must make to achieve a take-over are determined, it can be very helpful to those who will resist to know how they can become most effective in maintaining independence.

NEW YORK (AP) — Every year has a lost week.

It is doubtful that an examination of American history would disclose any great inventions were conceived, any great poems written, any inspiring songs created between Christmas and New Year's Day.

It is not a week for doing great things; it is a week for hanging on — and hoping for better days.

Everyone is gripped by a kind of spiritual numbness and physical lethargy that has turned us all into ambulant zombies, drained of all feeling.

The season of good will to all has passed, leaving us exhausted from Christmas satieties and excesses and mildly resentful of Santa Claus, whom we tend to blame for our blue and listless mood. Anyone who walks along the streets now absent - mindedly whistling "Jingle Bells" invites black looks.

What we all seem to need is a high-powered, double action, after-Christmas pep pill that will rescue us from the dumps and make us feel as good as we did just a week ago.

What happened anyway to that frolic sense of anticipation, that friendly sense of the joy of sharing, that pulse-throbbing thrill in the mere human ecstasy of being alive? They are gone, leaving a barren gluminess in their place.

At home the small boy sits listlessly staring at his broken drum. His older sister—on holiday from school — whines drearily, "What'll I do, Mama, there's no one to play with?" And Mama herself wonders wearily how she's going to summon the strength to get done all the things that cry for her to do.

One by one the browning needles drop from the Christmas tree upon the living room rug. Sensing the decline in family cheer, the dog snarls at the cat, and the cat arches her back and hisses back.

The deterioration in the jolly "Ho, Ho, Ho!" spirit is even more evident outside the home. The postman totes his load of belated Christmas cards with the self-pitying air of an Atlas carrying unnecessary burdens.

In the department stores the clerks, still busy taking back or exchanging presents, are islands of industriousness in the general inertia, but their smiles are forced and they go about their chores reluctantly.

But this too will pass.

After the first of January, fired up with new resolutions, everyone will be back on the beam. Some of them will even begin to believe in Santa Claus again.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON -- Sen. Barry Goldwater has sent a surprisingly friendly personal letter to the man he so recently called "Yo-Yo McNamara" and bitterly blamed for "McNamara's War" in South Vietnam.

In the letter, Goldwater differs with his fellow reservist senators who have been blasting McNamara, and supports him in closing down surplus military bases and merging the Ready Reserve with the National Guard.

"I find myself in agreement with you and I believe it only fair to tell you so," wrote Goldwater to the man he called "Yo-Yo."

This is all the more astonishing since Goldwater, a Major General in the Ready Reserve, formerly commanded the Elite, Reserve Air Force Squadron on Capitol Hill and led many of the overseas junkets McNamara is now stopping.

Yet Goldwater is taking a different attitude than most other VIP Reservists who have been squawking about losing their military privileges. His letter to McNamara, dictated four days before it was finally typed up, was mailed exactly as it came off Goldwater's tongue, poor syntax and all.

Both men have kept the exchange private but this column has managed to obtain a copy of the Goldwater letter.

"I think your move relative to incorporating the Reserve and the Guard," dictated Goldwater, "is a just one. In fact, I had a few harpoons thrown at me when I suggested the same thing a number of years ago.

RESERVE ISN'T READY

"I have been in the Reserve and National Guard at various times for the past 34 years, and I must say that of the two, with the exception of the Reserve Infantry Divisions now activated, the Guard training is by far superior.

"For example, I belonged to a Reserve Infantry Regiment during the thirties, and when we were called up for physicals prior to 1940, only seven of us could pass, and during that entire time to my memory, there was never a meeting of the organization called.

"Any Reserve component, whether it be the National Guard or the Reserve, must exercise their muscles constantly in order to be ready, and the National Guard does this, and in most cases, the Reserve is prevented from doing it by lack of equipment and actually lack of interest from the parent organization.

"It has long been known that there have been bases in our inventory that are no longer needed, and I congratulate you on taking the steps that you did to close them, although I withhold my judgment on some of the SAC bases until we find out further down the line what our need will be in relation to the mix of bombers and missiles.

"With best personal wishes, Barry Goldwater."

GOLDBERG'S PORTRAIT

Justice Arthur Goldberg was replying to a tribute from President Johnson during the unveiling of the Goldbert Portrait which will hand in the Department of Labor where he was once Secretary.

"This reminds me of an unveiling of the bust of my old friend Jake Potofsky of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers," said Goldberg.

"After the unveling ceremony a lady, well endowed, rushed up to Potofsky and said, 'Oh, Mr. Potofsky, I've come a hundred miles to see your bust unveiled.'

"'"Madame," replied Jake, 'I'd be glad to do the same for you.'"

BACKSTAGE WITH GOP

House GOP Moderates have decided to tone down their public statements and work more in the "background" in their drive to oust Rep. Charles Halleck, R-Ind., as the party's Floor Leader.

"If we're going to support Gerry Ford (R-Mich.) against Halleck, the less talking we do to newsmen, the better," suggested Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., at the last Republican Wednesday Club Meeting. "For one thing, we may alienate some Republican Conservatives who favor Ford if Liberals work too openly for him."

Conte also criticized press statements that Rep. John Lindsay, R-N. Y., might be a candidate for Floor Leader, making it a three - cornered race.

"I'll go along with that," replied Lindsay. "I have never been a serious candidate anyway. The important thing for us to remember is that the people want a change in the party leadership. The last election clearly demonstrated that we need a new image."

Lindsay added that if Halleck remained Floor Leader, it would be much more difficult to supplant Dean Burch as GOP National Chairman.

The GOP Liberals also agreed to support Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Calif., against Rep. Mel Laird, R-Wis., to be Chairman of the House GOP Conference. Reps. Robert T. Stafford, R-Vt., or Charles Mathias, R-Md., were picked as alternates.

"Laird tagged himself as a Goldwater man in the San Francisco Platform fight," declared Conte. "We'll still have the old Goldwater image if he becomes the Conference Chairman."

However, Conte got nowhere when he suggested opposition to Rep. Les Arends, R-Ill., who now holds the No. 2 party post in the House as GOP "Whip."

Cuba's Christmas: Blackbeard and the Kids.

WASHINGTON, D. C.: --Strong men, unafraid to die, fear to weep. But no self-discipline wipes away the tears of exiled Cuban fighters when they talk of Christmas at home and the youngsters left on the agonized island.

It is a blackbeard with an even darker soul who now distributes toys at Christmas, say the exiles who slip in and out of their former homeland. Blackbeard rations toys for even the smallest tot. And figs, and fruits and meats and pollo and even tomatoes and lettuce and radishes for the Yuletide "feast" in the once gay land.

Hunger is easy to take, but not the yearning of the children. The youngsters all were promised toys by the Internal Trade Ministry. Its Deputy Minister for Manufactured Products Roberto Interian, recently announced the opening of 120 pilot stores throughout Cuba so parents could come and buy their Christmas gifts. But the stores were open only part of the evening and part of the morning.

The stock in these official emporiums included gifts for the elders as well as the kids. The inventories were divided into three categories: Toys, rationed electric domestic articles, and articles of China and light hardware.

But first, gift eligibility had to be established in Castro's new classless society. There were toys and toys. The desirable ones were rationed. Those went only to children under 13. All toys were separated into two groups. Those costing three pesos or less. And those costing more -- which only the party elite could afford.

Only imported toys costing less than 30 centavos went unrationed. By the hard rule of international exchange 30 centavos are but a few pennies, if that.

There was also a category called nationally produced toys, much of which was rationed. Each child eligible to receive toys could be given one toy costing three pesos or more and two toys costing less than three pesos.

Typical of the rationing was the rule that only one 24-inch bicycle could be purchased by one family, regardless of the number of children.

To be eligible for anything more than the most lamentable plastics, the children had to be youngsters of families who have workers meeting the high speed production quotas, or who are in the party hierarchy or who have turned in suspect neighbors.

The former system of numbers which provided "turns" at the counters was wiped out by edict. An official directive eliminated "lines" at store doors. There was no first come first served. Only those who serve the Communist state were eligible, no matter how many children they have.

Blackbeard has been no kinder with the adults. The Internal Trade Ministry boasted that there would be ample electric domestic articles--irons, fans, beaters, radios, record players, stoves, pressure cookers and sewing machines. But the rush to buy them was stemmed by a decree which said that only those who had not purchased one of these products last year could buy them this year.

However, there were available this year some things the Cuban market did not have last year: chinaware, dinnersets, coffee sets, silverware, children's silverware, and kitchenware sets of six pieces. Each family unit was permitted to buy "one each of all these articles."

But there was no rush to buy. Of what use are these? There is little food for family dinners to be placed on such finery. A sewing machine, an electric iron or stove, yes. Empty plates, no.

True that, beginning last Dec. 15, certain foodstuffs were placed on sale. There was Spanish cider, and nougats, an extra half-pound of olive oil per person, an extra pound of rice per person, an extra pound of black beans per person unless one lives in central and middle Oriente province. Then one got red beans.

For the holiday, families of two persons were permitted a quarter pound of Spanish nuts. Or there was available a half-pound of Argentine figs, and a quarter pound national or imported cheese per person. There was wine from Algeria, Bulgaria and Spain. There also was a quota: one bottle for a family of two, two bottles for families of four and three bottles for families of six and seven.

But, say the homesick exiles, what will even this meager wine wash down. There is virtually no meat or chicken.

There is only hunger and the blackbeards.

PRINTING OF DAR REPORT CAUSED A FUROR

Earlier this year, the DAR was criticized in the United States Senate. This action followed the introduction of a resolution to print the society's annual report as Congress does every year.

A senator charged that the organization enjoyed a tax-exempt status while engaged in political action.

On the next day the President, Mrs. Robert V. H. Duncan, issued a news release which was subsequently inserted into the Congressional Record. It said:

"There is nothing secret about the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, its policies, actions or purposes. As President General, I am glad and perfectly willing to answer bona fide questions concerning this organization.

"Further, any interested inquiry is welcome as it provides an opportunity to inform the public at large the comprehensive NSDAR program -- in the fields of historic preservation, promotion of education and patriotic endeavor -- which has been steadfastly and conscientiously maintained and supported for more than 72 years. We are proud of this record and feel it speaks for itself.

"So far as the term 'politicking' is concerned, I am surprised at its use and am at something of a loss to know just what is meant, inasmuch as the National Society maintains no lobby at national, state, or local government levels, contributes to no political party or candidates in any way, initiates no legislation, and does not -- as do a number of organizations -- even in its own internal setup have any legislative chairmen. Yes, the DAR, being interested in the preservation and maintenance of our constitutional Republic, does urge its members as individual good American citizens to be informed and to exercise the privilege of the franchise and vote, but how one votes is entirely up to the individual."

In discussing the "tax-free" inference, Mrs. Duncan cited several factors. She explained:

"Aside from the fact that the DAR was not organized and has never been operated for profit, for the past 30 years its privately owned auditorium has been made available on an at-cost basis -- when no other or similar facility was available -- for the furtherance of cultural and educational pursuits in the Nation's Capital. On this the NSDAR pays business taxes to the District of Columbia; last year these ran over $20,000. This year they will run more.

"As respects patriotic endeavor, the taking of stands and passing of resolutions, the recent newspaper-carried statement assigning political motivation to the activities of the NSDAR, on national and international problems, is misleading," Mrs. Duncan said.

The DAR was founded in 1890 and five years later was chartered by the Congress of the United States for historic, educational, and patriotic purposes.

"It always has been and remains today just such an organization," the President declared.

"The national society through the years has patriotically supported and encouraged appreciation of our American heritage and way of life where lie the fundamental principles and ideals that have given this nation and its people the greatest freedom, most justice, and the highest standard of living known to man.

"This has been the unwavering course of the NSDAR irrespective of changes in political administrations, whether in the executive or legislative branches of the federal government, or both.

"The DAR acts independently and takes its stand alone, without affiliation or identity with any other organization. Further, whether one agrees with DAR stands or not, it is noteworthy that not once - never - in the course of its existence has it ever passed a resolution asking anything for itself - no special consideration, favor of any kind, grant or sudsidy."

What has the DAR accomplished over the years? The record reveals that annual DAR contributions to schools total approximately $200,000 a year, exclusive of the incalculable amount given to students through loans and scholarships irrespective of race, color, or creed. DAR assistance in 1963 to American Indians is in excess of $34,000. The organization owns and operates two schools in South Carolina and Alabama - investments of more than $2 million.

In addition, the DAR assists immigrants and naturalized citizens. Over the years, it has provided free copies of its textbook of instructions to prepare new citizens for citizenship tests. To date, more than 9 million have been distributed free of charge.

The DAR has placed great emphasis on its work with youth. Its activities consist of nationwide programs promoting good citizenship, leadership, dependability, and service.

The DAR has marked, restored and maintained many landmarks of importance. It constructed and gave to the Valley Forge Foundation the famous Memorial Bell Tower in Pennsylvania at a cost of more than $400,000.

At its national headquarters in Washington, the DAR maintains a genealogical and historic research library, and an American museum.

Included in the long and impressive record of public service by the DAR is its Hospital Corps. Organized in April of 1898 to recruit nurses for service during the Spanish-American War, it became the nucleus of the Army Nurse Corps. For those nurses whose services were not long enough to quality for government pensions, the DAR provided pensions.

During World War I, cash and gifts from DAR members totaled close to $4 million. In addition, they rendered aid to French war orphans and restored the water system in a French village. The DAR purchased more than $130 million in war bonds.

During World War II, the organization purchased bonds in excess of $206 million; gave almost $1.3 million in projects and another $1.3 million to the American Red Cross.

DAR aid to American Indians is coordinated through the American Indians Committee. More than $100,000 was given last year for scholarships and clothing.

One DAR committee promotes citizenship training and study of American Government and institutions. Through this committee, thousands of aliens receive help in preparing for naturalization examinations. In every state in the nation and in the District of Columbia, the DAR committee members give their time and means in teaching classes. The DAR believes that Americanism is best fostered by friendship between aliens and citizens and by inculcating the ideals of our country in the hearts and minds of those who have made this country their choice. DAR interest does not cease after their students become citizens. Members visit new citizens, take them to churches, libraries, historical places, and assist them in registering and voting.

In 1913, the DAR founded the Americanization School in Washington, D. C. It is the only school of its kind in the United States, and by an act of Congress was incorporated into the District of Columbia school system in 1919. Approximately 1,500 students from 80 nations attend.

Of special significance is their Children of American Revolution Committee which has a membership of more than 18,000. Its purpose is to secure perception and adoption of those principles and institutions for which their ancestors fought and died.

Its Good Citizens Committee presents a certificate and pin to the winner in each senior high school Good Citizen Contest, a $100 U.S. Saving Bond and pin to each State Good Citizen, and a $1,000 scholarship to the National DAR Good Citizen.

We submit that a study of the activities of the DAR shows that the organization actively promotes Americanism and renders unselfish service to both young and old.

Look for tangerines to be at the peak of supply from now through January. Some, however, still will be available through late spring.

HITS LOANS CHANGING CROPLAND TO COURSES

Future holes-in-one on farm land converted into golf courses through Federal agency loans will undoubtedly please the golfer, says Tax Foundation, Inc. But they won't win any cheers from Sen. John J. Williams of Delaware.

Before Congress adjourned, he spoke against loan advances made by the Farmers Home Administration, sometimes "over $1,000 per acre," to have farmland retired from crop production and diverted to recreational purposes.

These loans, Sen. Williams said, had little or no connection with farming and were "extremely costly to the taxpayer."

In one Maryland county, he said, 136 farm acres were retired and converted to a golf course with a FHA loan of $151,190.

Lenin's and Trotsky's Bolsheviks were dominating 160 million very backward people. Despite repeated losses in armed conflicts, famines and blood purges, causing a total of many millions of deaths, the number under communist domination grows. Their leaders, although sometimes transient, steadfastly declare they will take over and rule the entire world. Many wonder how they hope to achieve their goals and methods available to them are a worthy subject of study. Needless to say those who lead are able though not especially versatile.

Their chance of success is a matter of frequent discussion as it should be. The question arises as to the tactics the communists must pursue to take over all of the freedom loving people of the world, for it is well known that the majority do not desire to live under communist control.

When the changes the communists must make to achieve a take-over are determined, it can be very helpful to those who will resist to know how they can become most effective in maintaining independence.

NEW YORK (AP) — Every year has a lost week.

It is doubtful that an examination of American history would disclose any great inventions were conceived, any great poems written, any inspiring songs created between Christmas and New Year's Day.

It is not a week for doing great things; it is a week for hanging on — and hoping for better days.

Everyone is gripped by a kind of spiritual numbness and physical lethargy that has turned us all into ambulant zombies, drained of all feeling.

The season of good will to all has passed, leaving us exhausted from Christmas satieties and excesses and mildly resentful of Santa Claus, whom we tend to blame for our blue and listless mood. Anyone who walks along the streets now absent - mindedly whistling "Jingle Bells" invites black looks.

What we all seem to need is a high-powered, double action, after-Christmas pep pill that will rescue us from the dumps and make us feel as good as we did just a week ago.

What happened anyway to that frolic sense of anticipation, that friendly sense of the joy of sharing, that pulse-throbbing thrill in the mere human ecstasy of being alive? They are gone, leaving a barren glumness in their place.

At home the small boy sits listlessly staring at his broken drum. His older sister—on holiday from school — whines drearily, "What'll I do, Mama, there's no one to play with?" And Mama herself wonders wearily how she's going to summon the strength to get done all the things that cry for her to do.

One by one the browning needles drop from the Christmas tree upon the living room rug. Sensing the decline in family cheer, the dog snarls at the cat, and the cat arches her back and hisses back.

The deterioration in the jolly "Ho, Ho, Ho!" spirit is even more evident outside the home. The postman totes his load of belated Christmas cards with the self-pitying air of an Atlas carrying unnecessary burdens.

In the department stores the clerks, still busy taking back or exchanging presents, are islands of industriousness in the general inertia, but their smiles are forced and they go about their chores reluctantly.

But this too will pass.

After the first of January, fired up with new resolutions, everyone will be back on the beam. Some of them will even begin to believe in Santa Claus again.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON -- Sen. Barry Goldwater has sent a surprisingly friendly personal letter to the man he so recently called "Yo-Yo McNamara" and bitterly blamed for "McNamara's War" in South Vietnam.

In the letter, Goldwater differs with his fellow reservist senators who have been blasting McNamara, and supports him in closing down surplus military bases and merging the Ready Reserve with the National Guard.

"I find myself in agreement with you and I believe it only fair to tell you so," wrote Goldwater to the man he called "Yo-Yo."

This is all the more astonishing since Goldwater, a Major General in the Ready Reserve, formerly commanded the Elite, Reserve Air Force Squadron on Capitol Hill and led many of the overseas junkets McNamara is now stopping.

Yet Goldwater is taking a different attitude than most other VIP Reservists who have been squawking about losing their military privileges. His letter to McNamara, dictated four days before it was finally typed up, was mailed exactly as it came off Goldwater's tongue, poor syntax and all.

Both men have kept the exchange private but this column has managed to obtain a copy of the Goldwater letter.

"I think your move relative to incorporating the Reserve and the Guard," dictated Goldwater, "is a just one. In fact, I had a few harpoons thrown at me when I suggested the same thing a number of years ago.

RESERVE ISN'T READY

"I have been in the Reserve and National Guard at various times for the past 34 years, and I must say that of the two, with the exception of the Reserve Infantry Divisions now activated, the Guard training is by far superior.

"For example, I belonged to a Reserve Infantry Regiment during the thirties, and when we were called up for physicals prior to 1940, only seven of us could pass, and during that entire time to my memory, there was never a meeting of the organization called.

"Any Reserve component, whether it be the National Guard or the Reserve, must exercise their muscles constantly in order to be ready, and the National Guard does this, and in most cases, the Reserve is prevented from doing it by lack of equipment and actually lack of interest from the parent organization.

"It has long been known that there have been bases in our inventory that are no longer needed, and I congratulate you on taking the steps that you did to close them, although I withhold my judgment on some of the SAC bases until we find out further down the line what our need will be in relation to the mix of bombers and missiles.

"With best personal wishes, Barry Goldwater."

GOLDBERG'S PORTRAIT

Justice Arthur Goldberg was replying to a tribute from President Johnson during the unveiling of the Goldbert Portrait which will hand in the Department of Labor where he was once Secretary.

"This reminds me of an unveling of the bust of my old friend Jake Potofsky of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers," said Goldberg.

"After the unveling ceremony a lady, well endowed, rushed up to Potofsky and said, 'Oh, Mr. Potofsky, I've come a hundred miles to see your bust unveiled.'

"'"Madame," replied Jake, 'I'd be glad to do the same for you.'"

BACKSTAGE WITH GOP

House GOP Moderates have decided to tone down their public statements and work more in the "background" in their drive to oust Rep. Charles Halleck, R-Ind., as the party's Floor Leader.

"If we're going to support Gerry Ford (R-Mich.) against Halleck, the less talking we do to newsmen, the better," suggested Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., at the last Republican Wednesday Club Meeting. "For one thing, we may alienate some Republican Conservatives who favor Ford if Liberals work too openly for him."

Conte also criticized press statements that Rep. John Lindsay, R-N. Y., might be a candidate for Floor Leader, making it a three - cornered race.

"I'll go along with that," replied Lindsay. "I have never been a serious candidate anyway. The important thing for us to remember is that the people want a change in the party leadership. The last election clearly demonstrated that we need a new image."

Lindsay added that if Halleck remained Floor Leader, it would be much more difficult to supplant Dean Burch as GOP National Chairman.

The GOP Liberals also agreed to support Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Calif., against Rep. Mel Laird, R-Wis., to be Chairman of the House GOP Conference. Reps. Robert T. Stafford, R-Vt., or Charles Mathias, R-Md., were picked as alternates.

"Laird tagged himself as a Goldwater man in the San Francisco Platform fight," declared Conte. "We'll still have the old Goldwater image if he becomes the Conference Chairman."

However, Conte got nowhere when he suggested opposition to Rep. Les Arends, R-Ill., who now holds the No. 2 party post in the House as GOP "Whip."

Cuba's Christmas: Blackbeard and the Kids.

WASHINGTON, D. C.: --Strong men, unafraid to die, fear to weep. But no self-discipline wipes away the tears of exiled Cuban fighters when they talk of Christmas at home and the youngsters left on the agonized island.

It is a blackbeard with an even darker soul who now distributes toys at Christmas, say the exiles who slip in and out of their former homeland. Blackbeard rations toys for even the smallest tot. And figs, and fruits and meats and pollo and even tomatoes and lettuce and radishes for the Yuletide "feast" in the once gay land.

Hunger is easy to take, but not the yearning of the children. The youngsters all were promised toys by the Internal Trade Ministry. Its Deputy Minister for Manufactured Products Roberto Interian, recently announced the opening of 120 pilot stores throughout Cuba so parents could come and buy their Christmas gifts. But the stores were open only part of the evening and part of the morning.

The stock in these official emporiums included gifts for the elders as well as the kids. The inventories were divided into three categories: Toys, rationed electric domestic articles, and articles of China and light hardware.

But first, gift eligibility had to be established in Castro's new classless society. There were toys and toys. The desirable ones were rationed. Those went only to children under 13. All toys were separated into two groups. Those costing three pesos or less. And those costing more -- which only the party elite could afford.

Only imported toys costing less than 30 centavos went unrationed. By the hard rule of international exchange 30 centavos are but a few pennies, if that.

There was also a category called nationally produced toys, much of which was rationed. Each child eligible to receive toys could be given one toy costing three pesos or more and two toys costing less than three pesos.

Typical of the rationing was the rule that only one 24-inch bicycle could be purchased by one family, regardless of the number of children.

To be eligible for anything more than the most lamentable plastics, the children had to be youngsters of families who have workers meeting the high speed production quotas, or who are in the party hierarchy or who have turned in suspect neighbors.

The former system of numbers which provided "turns" at the counters was wiped out by edict. An official directive eliminated "lines" at store doors. There was no first come first served. Only those who serve the Communist state were eligible, no matter how many children they have.

Blackbeard has been no kinder with the adults. The Internal Trade Ministry boasted that there would be ample electric domestic articles--irons, fans, beaters, radios, record players, stoves, pressure cookers and sewing machines. But the rush to buy them was stemmed by a decree which said that only those who had not purchased one of these products last year could buy them this year.

However, there were available this year some things the Cuban market did not have last year: chinaware, dinnersets, coffee sets, silverware, children's silverware, and kitchenware sets of six pieces. Each family unit was permitted to buy "one each of all these articles."

But there was no rush to buy. Of what use are these? There is little food for family dinners to be placed on such finery. A sewing machine, an electric iron or stove, yes. Empty plates, no.

True that, beginning last Dec. 15, certain foodstuffs were placed on sale. There was Spanish cider, and nougats, an extra half-pound of olive oil per person, an extra pound of rice per person, an extra pound of black beans per person unless one lives in central and middle Oriente province. Then one got red beans.

For the holiday, families of two persons were permitted a quarter pound of Spanish nuts. Or there was available a half-pound of Argentine figs, and a quarter pound national or imported cheese per person. There was wine from Algeria, Bulgaria and Spain. There also was a quota: one bottle for a family of two, two bottles for families of four and three bottles for families of six and seven.

But, say the homesick exiles, what will even this meager wine wash down. There is virtually no meat or chicken.

There is only hunger and the blackbeards.

IN THE BEGINNING, GOD
If nuclear war should change our world
To one that we despair about,
Let's pray unshaken trust may keep
Our hearts from unbelief and doubt.
Our world may be rebuilt again
If we fail not to plant the seeds
Of faith to grow and bloom above
The ruble and the blackened weeds;
And then when life resumes once more.
Though we may lie beneath a clod.
Our faith will still proclaim anew--
There is no end to God!

Hat-Making Is Being Revived By Home Ec

The art of hat - making, in eclipse for a good many years, is making a come-back in the Home Economics Extension Clubs of Missouri. Mrs. Alberta Am-Rhein, of Hopedale, Illinois, is holding a series of classes, one of which will be at the community building in New Madrid on March 15th, 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., and 6:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. For the day class the minimum number of students is 45 and the Maximum 65; for the night class the minimum and maximum are 25 and 45.

These figures show the scope of the project as does the requirement of "18 long banquet size tables just for supplies."

Mrs. Am-Rhein will go to New York around January 10th to see the latest in spring styles and to buy fabrics and trimmings for use in these classes.

Before the council and training meeting in Lilbourn on January 12th club presidents should find out how many are interested so that they may purchase tickets at that time, and so that the committee will be sure that at least the minimum number will be available to assure the holding of the classes.

Participation is not restricted to members of extension clubs. Perhaps some high school girls will want to take advantage of these classes.

ANN LANDERS
Answers your problems

Dear Ann Landers: Last February our 22-year-old daughter began to work. She opened up charge accounts all over town the day she recieved her first pay check.

She agreed to pay us $7.50 a week for room and board but that lasted only two weeks. From then on it was nothing but excuses.

This is the record since February: We've had to make eight checks good at the bank. She borrowed $500 from us in July when the creditors threatened to garnishee her salary. She owes $400 to dress shops and shoe stores. She refuses to answer a telephone call because she is dodging collectors.

We are honorable people and tried to raise our daughter right. What's the matter with this girl, anyway? Is she immature or does she have an inborn flaw in her character?
--PUZZLED

Dear Puzzled: Your daughter was not born irresponsible. She GOT that way because her parents were always on hand to pull her chestnuts out of the fire -- and they are still doing it.

You can expect no change until your daughter understands, once and for all, that she is strictly on her own -- sink or swim. If she sinks a time or two, and nobody throws her a lifesaver, she'll swim.

Dear Ann Landers: Ours is the only society in the world in which the males are dimension-wacky. Do you notice that the men who write to you rarely refer to a woman's mind, her personality, her temperament or her character? They have a strange preoccupation, however, with vital statistics. Sample from a recent column: "She's a knockout--38-22-34."

What some rockheads don't realize is that a woman can purchase (at a modest price) some of the dat-gummest dimension-boosters anyone ever heard tell about. It happened to my cousin. What he mistook for modesty and high standards turned out to be a clever piece of strategy to keep her phony padding a secret.

From a realistic point of view, let's assume Miss 38-22-34 is legit and I marry her. After four babies, 850 chocolate sundaes and 500 cherry pies, plus a couple of vats of spaghetti, she's a 42-30-54. Then what do I have?
--THE OL' FORTUNE TELLER

Dear Ol' Teller: Then you have a fat wife and four nice kids.

Dear Ann Landers: Three years ago we gave our daughter a wedding every girl dreams of. We invited ALL our relatives and friends even though we had to go deeply into dept. We are happy we did and we would do it again.

Now our son is getting married. The girl's parents are in a financial category equal to ours. We have been informed there will be 100 guests at the wedding and we can invite 50. Our family numbers well over 200. We would need 300 invitations to do it half-way decent.

These people refuse to go into debt for their daughter's wedding. Yesterday, we were told if we want to invite 300 people, O. K., but that we'll have to pay the difference. My husband almost had a stroke. We are still paying off our daughter's wedding.

Isn't it unfair of them to have a wedding that will make people mad at us for life? Maybe a word from you will knock some sense into their heads.
--ANOTHER ANN

Dear Ann: Never mind about THEIR heads. YOUR head worries me. Everyone knows the bride's parents decide on the number of guests who will be invited to the wedding. Anyone who would be mad at you because he was not invited doesn't know much. I admire the girl's parents for refusing to hock their eye-balls to put on a fancy bash which they can't afford.

Do you lean on cigarettes as a social crutch? You may regret it later. Send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teen - age Smoking," enclosing with your request 10¢ in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

⅓ to ½ cup milk

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Cut in lard until mixture has a fine even crumb. Add enough milk to make a soft dough. Turn onto a lightly floured surface and knead gently for ½ minute.

IN THE BEGINNING, GOD
If nuclear war should change our world
To one that we despair about,
Let's pray unshaken trust may keep
Our hearts from unbelief and doubt.
Our world may be rebuilt again
If we fail not to plant the seeds
Of faith to grow and bloom above
The ruble and the blackened weeds;
And then when life resumes once more.
Though we may lie beneath a clod.
Our faith will still proclaim anew--
There is no end to God!

Hat-Making Is Being Revived By Home Ec

The art of hat - making, in eclipse for a good many years, is making a come-back in the Home Economics Extension Clubs of Missouri. Mrs. Alberta Am-Rhein, of Hopedale, Illinois, is holding a series of classes, one of which will be at the community building in New Madrid on March 15th, 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., and 6:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. For the day class the minimum number of students is 45 and the Maximum 65; for the night class the minimum and maximum are 25 and 45.

These figures show the scope of the project as does the requirement of "18 long banquet size tables just for supplies."

Mrs. Am-Rhein will go to New York around January 10th to see the latest in spring styles and to buy fabrics and trimmings for use in these classes.

Before the council and training meeting in Lilbourn on January 12th club presidents should find out how many are interested so that they may purchase tickets at that time, and so that the committee will be sure that at least the minimum number will be available to assure the holding of the classes.

Participation is not restricted to members of extension clubs. Perhaps some high school girls will want to take advantage of these classes.

ANN LANDERS
Answers your problems

Dear Ann Landers: Last February our 22-year-old daughter began to work. She opened up charge accounts all over town the day she recieved her first pay check.

She agreed to pay us $7.50 a week for room and board but that lasted only two weeks. From then on it was nothing but excuses.

This is the record since February: We've had to make eight checks good at the bank. She borrowed $500 from us in July when the creditors threatened to garnishee her salary. She owes $400 to dress shops and shoe stores. She refuses to answer a telephone call because she is dodging collectors.

We are honorable people and tried to raise our daughter right. What's the matter with this girl, anyway? Is she immature or does she have an inborn flaw in her character?
--PUZZLED

Dear Puzzled: Your daughter was not born irresponsible. She GOT that way because her parents were always on hand to pull her chestnuts out of the fire -- and they are still doing it.

You can expect no change until your daughter understands, once and for all, that she is strictly on her own -- sink or swim. If she sinks a time or two, and nobody throws her a lifesaver, she'll swim.

Dear Ann Landers: Ours is the only society in the world in which the males are dimension-wacky. Do you notice that the men who write to you rarely refer to a woman's mind, her personality, her temperament or her character? They have a strange preoccupation, however, with vital statistics. Sample from a recent column: "She's a knockout--38-22-34." What some rockheads don't realize is that a woman can purchase (at a modest price) some of the dat-gummest dimension-boosters anyone ever heard tell about. It happened to my cousin. What he mistook for modesty and high standards turned out to be a clever piece of strategy to keep her phony padding a secret.

From a realistic point of view, let's assume Miss 38-22-34 is legit and I marry her. After four babies, 850 chocolate sundaes and 500 cherry pies, plus a couple of vats of spaghetti, she's a 42-30-54. Then what do I have?
--THE OL' FORTUNE TELLER

Dear Ol' Teller: Then you have a fat wife and four nice kids.

Dear Ann Landers: Three years ago we gave our daughter a wedding every girl dreams of. We invited ALL our relatives and friends even though we had to go deeply into dept. We are happy we did and we would do it again.

Now our son is getting married. The girl's parents are in a financial category equal to ours. We have been informed there will be 100 guests at the wedding and we can invite 50. Our family numbers well over 200. We would need 300 invitations to do it half-way decent.

These people refuse to go into debt for their daughter's wedding. Yesterday, we were told if we want to invite 300 people, O. K., but that we'll have to pay the difference. My husband almost had a stroke. We are still paying off our daughter's wedding.

Isn't it unfair of them to have a wedding that will make people mad at us for life? Maybe a word from you will knock some sense into their heads.
--ANOTHER ANN

Dear Ann: Never mind about THEIR heads. YOUR head worries me. Everyone knows the bride's parents decide on the number of guests who will be invited to the wedding. Anyone who would be mad at you because he was not invited doesn't know much. I admire the girl's parents for refusing to hock their eye-balls to put on a fancy bash which they can't afford.

Do you lean on cigarettes as a social crutch? You may regret it later. Send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teen - age Smoking," enclosing with your request 10¢ in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Four Teams Take Step Toward Bloomfield Finals

(By Dan Whittle)

BLOOMFIELD -- The Bloomfield Wildcats went wild here last night as they made it revenge time by smothering the once proud Richland Rebs 78 - 36 in the opening game of the quarter final rounds. The Clarkton Reindeer rained all over the Chaffee Red Devils by sending them down 62-40. Gideon's Bulldogs removed their muzzles and bit into the Lilbourn Panthers for the upset of the night, winning 51-40. And the Advance Hornets stuck out their stingers and stunned the Puxico Indians 82-65.

RICHLAND 36

The Wildcats wasted no time before jumping on the Rebels. The first quarter they smacked the loop for 24 scorching points while limiting the Rebs to 7, displaying the best defense to be seen in the tourney.

The Bloomfield defense had the Rebs shaken, they missed five perfectly clear and easy shots going into the last of the first period.

Already leading by a cool 17 points the Wildcats continued their slaughter by slapping the Richland five on the other cheek to notch up 22 more tallies to lead at half-time 46-22.

Reeling after the first half, the Rebels received the knockout punch the third frame being able to connect for a humiliating 3 points while the unstoppable Wildcats ripped their way to score 20 more big tallies.

Leading by a stupendous 41 points, 66-25, the Bloomfield coaches, Spoonhour and Hewgley, emptied their bench the fourth and final frame to still out score the Rebels by 1, 12-11.

The blistering Bloomfield attack was led by big Dennis Gillespie, who stuffed in 21 points and pulled down 11 rebounds. Dennis played only 19 minutes of the game.

Richland did not have a man to reach double figures. Kelly got the closest with a 9 point production.

BLOOMFIELD (78)
Scorers: Mike Wise 6, Dale Underwood 9, Ron McAdoo 2, Red Underwood 13, Dennis Gillespie 21, Danny Gaines 13, Mick Aslin 4, Ron White 6, and Rodney Bullinger 4.

RICHLAND (36)
Scorers: Ron McAnulty 2, Mark Williamson 5, Gene Mason 7, Terry Kinder 6, Bill Kelly 9, Rich Triplett 2, and Joe Williamson 5.

CLARKTON 62
CHAFFEE 40

Clarkton had little resistance from the Red Devils in posting their 60-42 victory.

The Reindeer got out to a 9 point advantage the first quarter and managed to increase this to a 21 point bulge, 37-16, as first half play ended.

CLARKTON (62)
Scorers: C. Nuckles 7, J. Almand 7, R. Spears 4, K. Robinson 19, E. Price 2, D. Robertson 16, and R. Trease 7.

CHAFFEE (40)
Scorers: Lynn Cotner 14, Rob Williams 2, Ron Dobs 14, David Pfefferkorn 2, Ron Cook 4, and Rob Daughtery 4.

GIDEON 51
LILBOURN 40

In first period play the Bulldogs got out over Lilbourn by 6, 14-8, and had managed by the half to increase their lead by 2 more, 27-19.

The Panthers, who hustled all the way, were too outclassed to make the deficit they trailed by the last half.

Gideon's attack was woven into four men. Sam Mullen led with 13, Jim St. Cin and Roger Pattillo dumped in 11 each, and G. Killingsworth followed with 10.

Jerry Payne was high for Lilbourn with 13.

GIDEON (51)
Scorers: Jim St. Cin 11, Mike Vanderbilt 6, G. Killingsworth 10, Mullen 13 and Roger Pattillo 11.

LILBOURN
Scorers: Barry Mitchem 9, Jerry Allred 6, Curt Horn 8, Jerry Payne 13, and Stan Thompson 4.

PUXICO 65

Advances M & M boys, Bob Moroni and Bill Morgan, continued to lead tournament scoring as they stung the Indians by a tune of 82-65. Moroni got 35 points, good enough to tie for second highest scorer in a single game since the tournament started in 1957, and Morgan complimented Moroni's 35 with his 24.

Advance had their troubles the first half being tied with Puxico 34 all.

After the half-time intermission, the Hornets got their unresistable attack rolling to go out in front by 11, 61-50 to enter the fourth and final period. Advance had too much for the Indians to be overtaken the last period.

ADVANCE (82)
Scorers: Bob Moroni 35, Bill Morgan 24, Keith Kinder 3, Daryl Kirkpatrick 9, Gary Hudson 6, and Mike Winchester 5.

PUXICO (65)
Scorers: Art Norris 13, Ralph Corse 9, Mattingly 11, Ed Tanner 2, Basil Smith 4, Bob Zoll 10, Garry Scates 10, and Greg Crites 4.

Semi-final action will begin tonight with Bloomfield facing Clarkton at 7:00, and Advance will be pitted against Gideon the last game, scheduled to start around 8:30.

DENNIS GILLESPIE IS HITTING two tallies used in compiling his 21 point production by him last night in Bloomfield's slaughter of the Richland Rebels.

Mizzou Moves Into Semi's

KANSAS CITY (AP) — It's Kansas vs. Kansas State, both perennial powers, and a pair of suprise clubs, Missouri and Colorado, in the semifinals of the 19th Big Eight basketball tournament tonight.

Missouri's spirited scramblers clipped favored Oklahoma State 53-48, ruining Henry Iba Night, and Colorado stunned Nebraska 70-52 in first round games Monday night.

Missouri got sharp outside shooting from Gary Garner, with 14 points, and Charles Rudd and Ronnie Coleman, 11 each. But the difference again was 6-foot-5 220-pound Ned Monsees. He led both clubs with 12 rebounds and stole the ball several times.

"Our effort was about the same as our 200 per cent against St. Louis," said Bob Vanatta, Missouri coach.

The 60-year-old Iba was honored between games for coaching the U.S. Olympic basketball team to victory. He was given a standing ovation by the crowd of 7,700 and presented awards by the NCAA, the Big Eight and the U.S. Olympic basketball committee.

Iba is one of two active coaches and four in history with more than 700 victories. He felt the pressure of the occasion hurt his club.

"We can play better than that, gosh sakes," he said. "We put up three crewey shots when we had them by one, 41-40."

Colorado wrapped a streak of 17 points around halftime, turning a 27-26 lead into a 44-26 bulge. Coach Sox Walseth used a zone defense during Nebraska's scoreless period of almost nine minutes.

It was Colorado's first victory in the first round here since 1959. Walseth said "nobody has interviewed me in six weeks and I don't know what to say.

"I don't know how to explain this to our Sunshine League fans. We're so used to playing in daylight here, this will really foul up our pre-game meal."

Pat Frink, a sophomore, led Colorado with 22 and his brother Mike, hit 17. Nebraska's talented rookie, Fred Hare, had 19 points. Colorado hit 47 per cent, Nebraska only 29 per cent from the field.

Joe Cipriano, Nebraska coach, was keenly disappointed over his club's relegation to the daylight consolation bracket. He termed it "the worst game we've played since I've been at Nebraska." It was the 10th straight for Colorado over Nebraska since early in 1961.

Iowa State meets Oklahoma in the first consolation game at 2 p.m. with Nebraska facing Oklahoma State at 4. Kansas and K-State play at 7:30, then Colorado and Missouri at 9:30.

It will be the first K-State-Kansas meeting away from the finals since 1951, when Clyde Lovellette and the Jayhawks beat K-State 90-88 in overtime. The tournament series stands 4-4, including 2-2 in the finals, and the two rivals have alternated victories.

K-State won the first meeting in 1947, Kansas the last one 90-88 in four overtimes in the finals in 1962. It's K-State's turn to win.

The game could turn on the play of 6-foot-11 Walt Wesley of the Jayhawks and K-State's two big men, 6-10 Roy Smith and 6-8 Gary Williams.

Two Top Powers Gain Victories

By DICK COUCH

Sensational performances by Michigan whiz Cazzie Russell and Wichita All-America Dave Stallworth have kept the holiday ball rolling for the nation's top two college basketball powers.

Stallworth, meanwhile, scored 20 of his 29 points in a second-half rally that shot No. 2 Wichita past previously-unbeaten Villanova 86-74 and into the finals of the Quaker City Tournament at Philadelphia.

Nine of the top ten teams in The Associated Press ratings went to the post in tournaments that blanketed the country. The only losers were Illinois and St. Louis, beaten by other members of the select group.

St. Joseph's of Philadelphia, which crashed the top ten for the first time on this week's ballot, outlasted the sixth-ranked Illini 75-71 — after blowing a 16-point lead — and gained the Quaker City finals opposite Wichita. The unbeaten, 10th-ranked Hawks have won nine starts--including victories over then nationally ranked Davidson and St. John's, N.Y.

St. Louis, No. 9, fell 98-68 before a furious second-half rush by seventh-ranked Indiana in the opening round of the Memphis State Classic. The Hoosiers, 8-0, meet the host team, 95-92 overtime victor over Southern Methodist, for the title tonight.

Minnesota and San Francisco, only other unbeaten clubs among the national leaders, advanced in West Coast tourneys but unheralded Washington threw a scare at the third-ranked Gophers before bowing 77-76 in the first round of the Los Angeles Classic. The fifth-ranked Dons matched Minnesota's 7-0 record by smothering Pepperdine 103-64 in a WCAC tournament contest.

Fourth-ranked UCLA, unbeaten Utah and Iowa joined Minnesota in the Los Angeles semi-finals. The Bruins ran their winning string to seven after an opening loss to Illinois by whipping Arizona 99-79. Utah, 9-0, nipped Michigan State 71-65 and Iowa defeated Southern California 71-65.

Duke's no. 8 Blue Devils, idle Monday, seek their sixth victory in seven starts at Ohio State Wednesday night.

Russell, Michigan's 6-foot-6 backcourt ace, scored 22 first-half points, hitting on 10 of 15 shots from the floor, to pace the Wolverines to a 45-39 halftime margin. The Big Ten favorites wrapped up their seventh victory in eight decisions with a 17-2 burst midway in the second half, Russell contributing seven more points.

Cazzie finished with a 15-for-26 night from the field, six of seven free throws, 13 rebounds and five assists.

Bill Bradley, Princeton's All-America and Olympic star, matched Russell's 36 points as the Tigers outran Syracuse 79-69 in another ECAC first-rounder. Princeton meets Michigan and once-beaten Cincinnati plays St. John's in Wednesday's semifinals. The Bearcats ripped Temple 83-56 and the Redmen edged LaSalle 78-71 Monday.

Wichita, beaten only by Michigan in eight games, overtook Villanova on consecutive three-point plays by Stallworth and Kelly Pete with 13½ minutes to play and pulled away in the final 10 minutes. Dave Leach netted 21 points and Pete 16 for the Wheatshockers. Jim Washington scored 23 of Villanova, now 8-1.

Cliff Anderson and Tom Duff scored consecutive baskets in the closing minutes, giving St. Joseph's a 71-69 lead, after the Illini had stormed back into contention with spurts of eight and 10 straight points.

Anderson led the Hawks' balanced attack with 17 points, three less than Illinois' 6-8 Skip Thoren.

Indiana trailed St. Louis by six points early in the second half before the Van Arsdale twins — Dick and Tom — combined for nine straight points that set off the Hoosier fireworks. Jon McGlocklin paced Indiana with 29 points and Dick Van Arsdale added 18.

With the upcoming championship game in the Bloomfield Tournament, barring any upsets, it should be decided as to whom is the number one team in Southeast Missouri Basketball, when Advance faces Bloomfield in their first encounter of the year.

Up until last week the Bloomfield Wildcats had been in the number one position since the beginning of the season, but when they met their first defeat at Memphis, that left Advance the only team to have an undefeated record.

There was no dispute last year as to whom was the number one team. The Warring Richland Rebs were at the head of the line, and no one disputed the fact, least of all opposing teams.

This weeks top ten selections are the same as last weeks, except for the tenth position. Bragg City did claim occupancy, but the Oran Eagles moved up to take possession of the last berth.

The top ten are as follows:

1. Advance
2. Bloomfield
3. Poplar Bluff
4. Gideon
5. Perryville
6. Senath-Hornersville
7. Lilbourn
8. Dexter
9. Parma
10. Oran

Celts Down The Lakers 133-112

Beating the Boston Celtics is tough enough under ordinary circumstances but when your two top scorers produce just 16 points between them, it's just about impossible.

The Los Angeles Lakers learned that Monday night as the National Basketball Association's Eastern Division-leading Celtics trounced them 133-112.

The Lakers, front-runners in the Western Division, got just 12 points from Jerry West and only four from Elgin Baylor and never threatened the Celtics, who had six men in double figures.

The victory kept the Celts six games in front of Cincinnati which rallied to top San Francisco 113-108. Los Angeles lost a half game of its margin over idle St. Louis and now leads the Hawks by three games.

Old Pro's Corner

What a guy, the Old Pro turned in another miraculous performance in his predictions, hitting on 7 out of eight games played in the Cape and Bloomfield Tournaments.

This gives the Old One 72 hits and 95 misses for the season. His percentage is up to 78%, according to his figures, being the highest attained by the Old Pro for the year.

GAMES TONIGHT:

Bloomfield Tourney:

Advance and Gideon -- Gideon could win this game, but it would be the upset of the tournament. Advance by 11.

Cape Tourney:

Delta and Notre Dame -- Delta could, but they won't, not the way Notre Dame has been moving as late. Notre Dame by 9.

Morehouse and Kelly -- If Kelly hustles they will wear down this Morehouse team. Kelly by 13.

Jackson and Scott City -- Scott City's Rams will have their work cut out for them tonight as they take on the number two seeded team. Jackson by 18.

Difference Of Age No Difference

DALLAS (AP)—There's a difference in their ages and expereience but the quarterbacks of the Cotton Bowl game have a great deal in common when it comes to playing football.

It was the third game of the season before each took the chance to show what he could do.

Churchich got to show his stuff when the regular quarterback, Fred Duda, went out with an injury.

Marshall, who had become the starting quarterback on the basis of what he did in spring training, was terrible in the first game against Oklahoma State.

He suffered a shoulder injury, to be sure, but that was part of the excuse to hold him out of the second game — against Tulsa. This and the fact that he had been too tight, had overshot his receivers and had gained only seven yeards running with the ball.

Coach Frank Broyles wasn't going to put him back in because of the possibility of wrecking his football career. Two bad games in a row would have meant the finish.

Then Broyles tried him against Texas Christian in the third game of the season and he came through. He ran, passed and directed Arkansas to a 29-6 victory.

Gallatin Gets Ax, Guerin Takes Over

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Ben Kerner, the St. Louis Hawks owner who changes coaches with the same ease that New Year's resolutions are broken, is ready to begin 1965 with a new one.

Kerner dropped the ax Monday on Harry Gallatin and named veteran Richie Guerin as player-coach of the National Basketball Association club.

Gallatin must have known his time was short, realizing he had been leading the Hawks for 2½ seasons. Kerner has had nine coaches in the 10 seasons the club has been in St. Louis, and none has lasted that long.

Kerner explains it this way:

"I'm at the point that if I don't finish first I'd just as soon finish fourth (last). There's no glory in second to me."

Under Gallatin the Hawks finished second in the Western Division the last two years and are the runner-up now, 3½ games behind Los Angeles.

"There's nothing that we asked Harry to do that he didn't do," Kerner said. "He's a tireless worker. I think Harry did a good job."

But he added:

"I felt that after three years our progress wasn't good enough with young players."

"My advice, sir-get DE-ICER!"

Gas line freeze can happen to anybody, but when you're young and in a hurry, it's a disaster. Here's what gas line freeze is. Moisture collects in a gas line. It freezes. Four Teams Take Step Toward Bloomfield Finals

(By Dan Whittle)

BLOOMFIELD -- The Bloomfield Wildcats went wild here last night as they made it revenge time by smothering the once proud Richland Rebs 78 - 36 in the opening game of the quarter final rounds. The Clarkton Reindeer rained all over the Chaffee Red Devils by sending them down 62-40. Gideon's Bulldogs removed their muzzies and bit into the Lilbourn Panthers for the upset of the night, winning 51-40. And the Advance Hornets stuck out their stingers and stunned the Puxico Indians 82-65.

RICHLAND 36

The Wildcats wasted no time before jumping on the Rebels. The first quarter they smacked the loop for 24 scorching points while limiting the Rebs to 7, displaying the best defense to be seen in the tourney.

The Bloomfield defense had the Rebs shaken, they missed five perfectly clear and easy shots going into the last of the first period.

Already leading by a cool 17 points the Wildcats continued their slaughter by slapping the Richland five on the other cheek to notch up 22 more tallies to lead at half-time 46-22.

Reeling after the first half, the Rebels received the knockout punch the third frame being able to connect for a humiliating 3 points while the unstoppable Wildcats ripped their way to score 20 more big tallies.

Leading by a stupendous 41 points, 66-25, the Bloomfield coaches, Spoonhour and Hewgley, emptied their bench the fourth and final frame to still out score the Rebels by 1, 12-11.

The blistering Bloomfield attack was led by big Dennis Gillespie, who stuffed in 21 points and pulled down 11 rebounds. Dennis played only 19 minutes of the game.

Richland did not have a man to reach double figures. Kelly got the closest with a 9 point production.

BLOOMFIELD (78)
Scorers: Mike Wise 6, Dale Underwood 9, Ron McAdoo 2, Red Underwood 13, Dennis Gillespie 21, Danny Gaines 13, Mick Aslin 4, Ron White 6, and Rodney Bullinger 4.

RICHLAND (36)
Scorers: Ron McAnulty 2, Mark Williamson 5, Gene Mason 7, Terry Kinder 6, Bill Kelly 9, Rich Triplett 2, and Joe Williamson 5.

CLARKTON 62
CHAFFEE 40

Clarkton had little resistance from the Red Devils in posting their 60-42 victory.

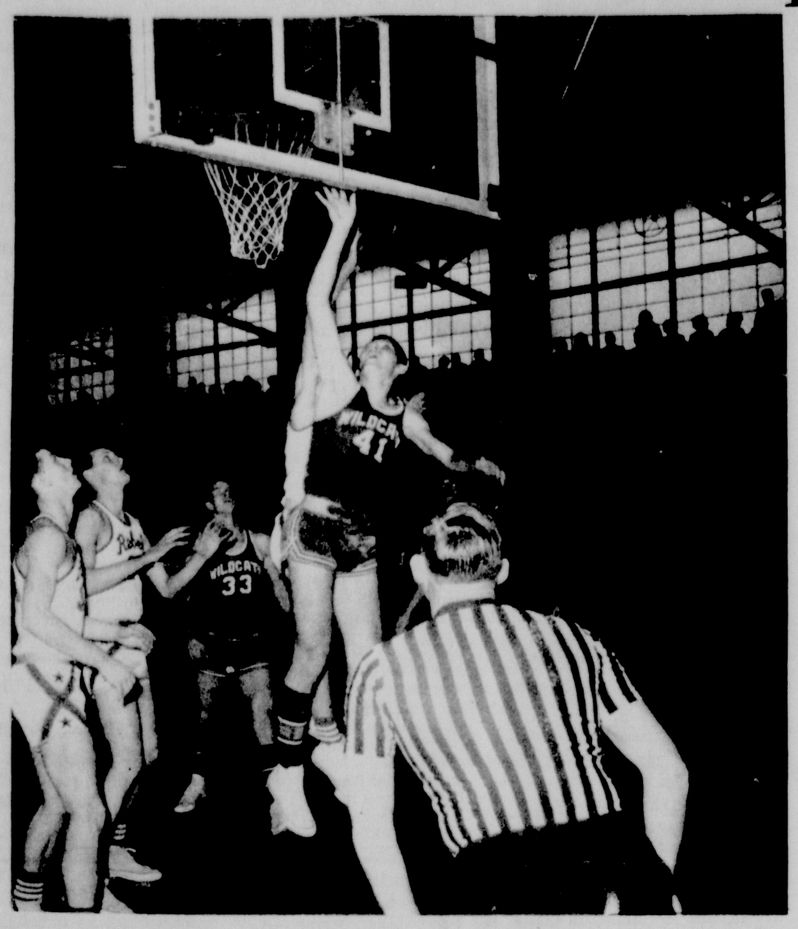

The Reindeer got out to a 9 point advantage the first quarter and managed to increase this to a 21 point bulge, 37-16, as first half play ended.

CLARKTON (62)
Scorers: C. Nuckles 7, J. Almand 7, R. Spears 4, K. Robinson 19, E. Price 2, D. Robertson 16, and R. Trease 7.

CHAFFEE (40)
Scorers: Lynn Cotner 14, Rob Williams 2, Ron Dobs 14, David Pfefferkorn 2, Ron Cook 4, and Rob Daughtery 4.

GIDEON 51
LILBOURN 40

DENNIS GILLESPIE IS HITTING two tallies used in compiling his 21 point production by him last night in Bloomfield's slaughter of the Richland Rebels.

In first period play the Bulldogs got out over Lilbourn by 6, 14-8, and had managed by the half to increase their lead by 2 more, 27-19.

The Panthers, who hustled all the way, were too outclassed to make the deficit they trailed by the last half.

Gideon's attack was woven into four men. Sam Mullen led with 13, Jim St. Cin and Roger Pattillo dumped in 11 each, and G. Killingsworth followed with 10.

Jerry Payne was high for Lilbourn with 13.

GIDEON (51)
Scorers: Jim St. Cin 11, Mike Vanderbilt 6, G. Killingsworth 10, Mullen 13 and Roger Pattillo 11.

LILBOURN
Scorers: Barry Mitchem 9, Jerry Allred 6, Curt Horn 8, Jerry Payne 13, and Stan Thompson 4.

PUXICO 65

Advances M & M boys, Bob Moroni and Bill Morgan, continued to lead tournament scoring as they stung the Indians by a tune of 82-65. Moroni got 35 points, good enough to tie for second highest scorer in a single game since the tournament started in 1957, and Morgan complimented Moroni's 35 with his 24.

Advance had their troubles the first half being tied with Puxico 34 all.

After the half-time intermission, the Hornets got their unresistable attack rolling to go out in front by 11, 61-50 to enter the fourth and final period. Advance had too much for the Indians to be overtaken the last period.

ADVANCE (82)
Scorers: Bob Moroni 35, Bill Morgan 24, Keith Kinder 3, Daryl Kirkpatrick 9, Gary Hudson 6, and Mike Winchester 5.

PUXICO (65)
Scorers: Art Norris 13, Ralph Corse 9, Mattingly 11, Ed Tanner 2, Basil Smith 4, Bob Zoll 10, Garry Scates 10, and Greg Crites 4.

Semi-final action will begin tonight with Bloomfield facing Clarkton at 7:00, and Advance will be pitted against Gideon the last game, scheduled to start around 8:30.

Mizzou Moves Into Semi's

KANSAS CITY (AP) — It's Kansas vs. Kansas State, both perennial powers, and a pair of suprise clubs, Missouri and Colorado, in the semifinals of the 19th Big Eight basketball tournament tonight.

Missouri's spirited scramblers clipped favored Oklahoma State 53-48, ruining Henry Iba Night, and Colorado stunned Nebraska 70-52 in first round games Monday night.

Missouri got sharp outside shooting from Gary Garner, with 14 points, and Charles Rudd and Ronnie Coleman, 11 each. But the difference again was 6-foot-5 220-pound Ned Monsees. He led both clubs with 12 rebounds and stole the ball several times.

"Our effort was about the same as our 200 per cent against St. Louis," said Bob Vanatta, Missouri coach.

The 60-year-old Iba was honored between games for coaching the U.S. Olympic basketball team to victory. He was given a standing ovation by the crowd of 7,700 and presented awards by the NCAA, the Big Eight and the U.S. Olympic basketball committee.

Iba is one of two active coaches and four in history with more than 700 victories. He felt the pressure of the occasion hurt his club.

"We can play better than that, gosh sakes," he said. "We put up three crewey shots when we had them by one, 41-40."

Colorado wrapped a streak of 17 points around halftime, turning a 27-26 lead into a 44-26 bulge. Coach Sox Walseth used a zone defense during Nebraska's scoreless period of almost nine minutes.

It was Colorado's first victory in the first round here since 1959. Walseth said "nobody has interviewed me in six weeks and I don't know what to say.

"I don't know how to explain this to our Sunshine League fans. We're so used to playing in daylight here, this will really foul up our pre-game meal."

Pat Frink, a sophomore, led Colorado with 22 and his brother Mike, hit 17. Nebraska's talented rookie, Fred Hare, had 19 points. Colorado hit 47 per cent, Nebraska only 29 per cent from the field.

Joe Cipriano, Nebraska coach, was keenly disappointed over his club's relegation to the daylight consolation bracket. He termed it "the worst game we've played since I've been at Nebraska." It was the 10th straight for Colorado over Nebraska since early in 1961.

Iowa State meets Oklahoma in the first consolation game at 2 p.m. with Nebraska facing Oklahoma State at 4. Kansas and K-State play at 7:30, then Colorado and Missouri at 9:30.

It will be the first K-State-Kansas meeting away from the finals since 1951, when Clyde Lovellette and the Jayhawks beat K-State 90-88 in overtime. The tournament series stands 4-4, including 2-2 in the finals, and the two rivals have alternated victories.

K-State won the first meeting in 1947, Kansas the last one 90-88 in four overtimes in the finals in 1962. It's K-State's turn to win.

The game could turn on the play of 6-foot-11 Walt Wesley of the Jayhawks and K-State's two big men, 6-10 Roy Smith and 6-8 Gary Williams.

Gallatin Gets Ax, Guerin Takes Over

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Ben Kerner, the St. Louis Hawks owner who changes coaches with the same ease that New Year's resolutions are broken, is ready to begin 1965 with a new one.

Kerner dropped the ax Monday on Harry Gallatin and named veteran Richie Guerin as player-coach of the National Basketball Association club.

Gallatin must have known his time was short, realizing he had been leading the Hawks for 2½ seasons. Kerner has had nine coaches in the 10 seasons the club has been in St. Louis, and none has lasted that long.

Kerner explains it this way:

"I'm at the point that if I don't finish first I'd just as soon finish fourth (last). There's no glory in second to me."

Under Gallatin the Hawks finished second in the Western Division the last two years and are the runner-up now, 3½ games behind Los Angeles.

"There's nothing that we asked Harry to do that he didn't do," Kerner said. "He's a tireless worker. I think Harry did a good job."

But he added:

Two Top Powers Gain Victories

By DICK COUCH

Sensational performances by Michigan whiz Cazzie Russell and Wichita All-America Dave Stallworth have kept the holiday ball rolling for the nation's top two college basketball powers.

Stallworth, meanwhile, scored 20 of his 29 points in a second-half rally that shot No. 2 Wichita past previously-unbeaten Villanova 86-74 and into the finals of the Quaker City Tournament at Philadelphia.

Nine of the top ten teams in The Associated Press ratings went to the post in tournaments that blanketed the country. The only losers were Illinois and St. Louis, beaten by other members of the select group.

St. Joseph's of Philadelphia, which crashed the top ten for the first time on this week's ballot, outlasted the sixth-ranked Illini 75-71 — after blowing a 16-point lead — and gained the Quaker City finals opposite Wichita. The unbeaten, 10th-ranked Hawks have won nine starts--including victories over then nationally ranked Davidson and St. John's, N.Y.

St. Louis, No. 9, fell 98-68 before a furious second-half rush by seventh-ranked Indiana in the opening round of the Memphis State Classic. The Hoosiers, 8-0, meet the host team, 95-92 overtime victor over Southern Methodist, for the title tonight.

Minnesota and San Francisco, only other unbeaten clubs among the national leaders, advanced in West Coast tourneys but unheralded Washington threw a scare at the third-ranked Gophers before bowing 77-76 in the first round of the Los Angeles Classic. The fifth-ranked Dons matched Minnesota's 7-0 record by smothering Pepperdine 103-64 in a WCAC tournament contest.

Fourth-ranked UCLA, unbeaten Utah and Iowa joined Minnesota in the Los Angeles semi-finals. The Bruins ran their winning string to seven after an opening loss to Illinois by whipping Arizona 99-79. Utah, 9-0, nipped Michigan State 71-65 and Iowa defeated Southern California 71-65.

Duke's no. 8 Blue Devils, idle Monday, seek their sixth victory in seven starts at Ohio State Wednesday night.

Russell, Michigan's 6-foot-6 backcourt ace, scored 22 first-half points, hitting on 10 of 15 shots from the floor, to pace the Wolverines to a 45-39 halftime margin. The Big Ten favorites wrapped up their seventh victory in eight decisions with a 17-2 burst midway in the second half, Russell contributing seven more points.

Cazzie finished with a 15-for-26 night from the field, six of seven free throws, 13 rebounds and five assists.

Bill Bradley, Princeton's All-America and Olympic star, matched Russell's 36 points as the Tigers outran Syracuse 79-69 in another ECAC first-rounder. Princeton meets Michigan and once-beaten Cincinnati plays St. John's in Wednesday's semifinals. The Bearcats ripped Temple 83-56 and the Redmen edged LaSalle 78-71 Monday.

Wichita, beaten only by Michigan in eight games, overtook Villanova on consecutive three-point plays by Stallworth and Kelly Pete with 13½ minutes to play and pulled away in the final 10 minutes. Dave Leach netted 21 points and Pete 16 for the Wheatshockers. Jim Washington scored 23 of Villanova, now 8-1.

Cliff Anderson and Tom Duff scored consecutive baskets in the closing minutes, giving St. Joseph's a 71-69 lead, after the Illini had stormed back into contention with spurts of eight and 10 straight points.

Anderson led the Hawks' balanced attack with 17 points, three less than Illinois' 6-8 Skip Thoren.

Indiana trailed St. Louis by six points early in the second half before the Van Arsdale twins — Dick and Tom — combined for nine straight points that set off the Hoosier fireworks. Jon McGlocklin paced Indiana with 29 points and Dick Van Arsdale added 18.

With the upcoming championship game in the Bloomfield Tournament, barring any upsets, it should be decided as to whom is the number one team in Southeast Missouri Basketball, when Advance faces Bloomfield in their first encounter of the year.

Up until last week the Bloomfield Wildcats had been in the number one position since the beginning of the season, but when they met their first defeat at Memphis, that left Advance the only team to have an undefeated record.

There was no dispute last year as to whom was the number one team. The Warring Richland Rebs were at the head of the line, and no one disputed the fact, least of all opposing teams.

This weeks top ten selections are the same as last weeks, except for the tenth position. Bragg City did claim occupancy, but the Oran Eagles moved up to take possession of the last berth.

The top ten are as follows:

1. Advance
2. Bloomfield
3. Poplar Bluff
4. Gideon
5. Perryville
6. Senath-Hornersville
7. Lilbourn
8. Dexter
9. Parma
10. Oran

Celts Down The Lakers 133-112

Beating the Boston Celtics is tough enough under ordinary circumstances but when your two top scorers produce just 16 points between them, it's just about impossible.

The Los Angeles Lakers learned that Monday night as the National Basketball Association's Eastern Division-leading Celtics trounced them 133-112.

The Lakers, front-runners in the Western Division, got just 12 points from Jerry West and only four from Elgin Baylor and never threatened the Celtics, who had six men in double figures.

The victory kept the Celts six games in front of Cincinnati which rallied to top San Francisco 113-108. Los Angeles lost a half game of its margin over idle St. Louis and now leads the Hawks by three games.

Old Pro's Corner

What a guy, the Old Pro turned in another miraculous performance in his predictions, hitting on 7 out of eight games played in the Cape and Bloomfield Tournaments.

This gives the Old One 72 hits and 95 misses for the season. His percentage is up to 78%, according to his figures, being the highest attained by the Old Pro for the year.

GAMES TONIGHT:
Bloomfield Tourney:

Cape Tourney:

Delta and Notre Dame -- Delta could, but they won't, not the way Notre Dame has been moving as late. Notre Dame by 9.

Morehouse and Kelly -- If Kelly hustles they will wear down this Morehouse team. Kelly by 13.

Difference Of Age No Difference

DALLAS (AP)—There's a difference in their ages and experience but the quarterbacks of the Cotton Bowl game have a great deal in common when it comes to playing football.

It was the third game of the season before each took the chance to show what he could do.

Marshall, who had become the starting quarterback on the basis of what he did in spring training, was terrible in the first game against Oklahoma State.

He suffered a shoulder injury, to be sure, but that was part of the excuse to hold him out of the second game — against Tulsa. This and the fact that he had been too tight, had overshot his receivers and had gained only seven yeards running with the ball.

Coach Frank Broyles wasn't going to put him back in because of the possibility of wrecking his football career. Two bad games in a row would have meant the finish.

Then Broyles tried him against Texas Christian in the third game of the season and he came through. He ran, passed and directed Arkansas to a 29-6 victory.

"My advice, sir-get DE-ICER!"

HINTS FOR TEENAGERS

...From your Sewing Editor

PUT YOUR BEST FOOT FORWARD . . . and step right into the heart of fashion by sewing! Now, I'm sure you know your A, B, C's so why don't we go on to a more advanced part of the alphabet. How about moving all the way on to the X, Y, Z's? It's just as simple as this:

A WARDROBE IN AN ENVELOPE

Today's design is proof of an important statement I make over and over again: that there are such tremendous variations to be achieved by sewing your own clothes. Simplicity Pattern 5574 is shown here as trim orange corduroy pants under a long-sleeved multi-striped cotton blouse. What you DON'T SEE is all included in one simple compact pattern envelope . . . a lovely, complete, mix-match separates wardrobe!

One of the items is a delightful V-neck shift jumper and you can also fashion an easy fitting jerkin by cutting the same pattern piece at the hip line. As for today's blouse—in cotton or a lightweight fabric, it can be worn with jumpers, skirts or slacks BUT—if you make it in corduroy, a woolen tweed, or velveteen—you have a jacket! That's not the end of the surprises in this one wonderful pattern. There's a beautifully tailored straight skirt to be worn with this set of tops or with all your sweaters and blouses.

SOME HIGH FASHION HINTS

Anyone who sews is fashion conscious, so I know you're aware that one of the greatest current hits of the sportswear world is the slack suit. Isn't this a perfect chance for you to have a really sensational one? Just make your slacks and jacket of the same lightweight woolen or corduroy and you'll have the perkiest outfit this side of Paris! You might also try making your jumper in a heavy black silk or a gleaming velveteen. Of course, you would then want to do the blouse in a creamy white silk or satin sparked with rhinestone buttons . . . and it's perfect for the most important of dates.

NIGHT AND DAY

. . . this is the pattern to take you through 9 o'clock classes, special lunch meetings, shopping trips and being entertained by your favorite young man. All you have to do is choose the right fabrics and have a great time using your creativity and imagination. Actually, only by sewing your own clothes can all this be possible for you.

MORE THAN IMAGINATION

Certainly, you have to do a little bit of reading, practicing and thinking when you're learning to improve your sewing. As I'm sure you've already discovered, one of the most important of sewing lessons is the proper application of a zipper. I do have a very clearly illustrated leaflet which will be a great help to you in making the insertion of skirt, dress and neckline zippers easier. Just send a stamped, self addressed envelope to the Sewing Editor of this newspaper along with your request for Leaflet Z 829. I'd be happy to send a copy along to you.

Fire Damaged Ozark College Reopens

POINT LOOKOUT, Mo. (AP)—Classes will resume Jan. 4 at the School of the Ozarks despite a fire that destroyed the main building Saturday night.

M. Graham Clark, school president, said chapel and dormitory space will be used for classrooms.

Planning for a new building began immediately at a meeting of the advisory council which lasted from midnight until dawn Sunday.

Clark estimated the replacement will cost $400,000 for construction and $100,000 for equipment. The school will have $200,000 from insurance on the old building with which to start the project, he said.

Also, Clark said, the U.S. Navy promised to replace $300,000 worth of electronic equipment used by a naval reserve unit that was based in the old building.

The fire destroyed three of the four wings of the structure that contained 14 classrooms, faculty offices, auditorium, gymnasium, barber shop, commissary and student union, in addition to the naval reserve.

All but about 30 of the 700 students had gone home for Christmas. Some boys were playing basketball in the basement gym and smelled smoke, then discovered the fire in a second-floor classroom. Cause of the blaze was not determined.

The building was donated to the college by the late A.P. Green of Mexico, Mo. Construction started in 1926 and the building was occupied in 1928.

MAIN STREET, U.S.A.

by Bert Mills
Distributed by National Editorial Association

WASHINGTON, D. C. -- Four out of ten eligible adults did not bother to vote for President last November and of those who did vote, 39 percent supported the loser. Nevertheless, every taxpayer will help pay for the inauguration of Lyndon B. Johnson on January 20.

How much it will cost is impossible to assess but the bill must run into the millions. Countless Americans watching on television may be thrilled as they watch military units parade across their screen but their enthusiasm might be reduced if they knew how many of their tax dollars went into every footstep.

Presidential inaugurations are a combination of a ceremonial event of historic importance and a Roman holiday unworthy of a modern nation. It is a wonder that taxpayers have not rebelled against footing the bill. It is also a wonder that tradition-breaker Lyndon Johnson has not done anything about it.

For those who do not recall the quadrennial nonsense, here is what will happen on January 20 -- subject only to such changes as winter weather may necessitate. And what happened four years ago, due to a major snowfall on Inaugural Eve, is well remembered by a lot of people.

(Your correspondent is one of those with unfond memories of the 1960 Inauguration. He spent an hour and a half trying to drive 10 blocks in the Inaugural Eve snowstorm, finally abandoned his car in a snowdrift, walked two blocks to his destination, and spent the night on an office couch.)

But it may not snow this time and whether it does or not, the President will journey up Pennsylvania Avenue in his limousine for a noon ceremony at the Capitol. Enroute he will be applauded by crowds four or five deep at the curbs, many of whom have been waiting since dawn to pay their homage.

BLEACHER SEATS COST $15

The more affluent on the ceremonial route will have bleacher seats, costing up to $15. Since mid-December these bleachers have been sitting idle, waiting for their single-day use. Of course, you and I paid for the labor to erect them and we will pay for their destruction after January 20.

When the President gets to the Capitol, there will be a considerable delay while he shakes a zillion hands, but in due course he will be out in the weather again, on a specially - constructed platform on the East Front of the Capitol. A few thousand VIPs, in specially - constructed stands costing about $184,000, will be able to see him and the dignitaries with him, but those watching on TV will have the best view.

After the President takes his oath, he will retire to the Capitol to get warm and to shake some hands he may have missed before. Probably he will tarry for lunch at the Capitol, with TV cameras also in attendance.

Meanwhile the parade will be forming and the President will lead it. The return to the White House, a trip of about 20 blocks, will be accomplished at snail's pace. When he gets back home, LBJ will review the rest of the parade for hours on end. His vantage point will be a specially built pavillion on the White House lawn, featuring wall - to-wall carpeting, bullet - proof glass and infra-red heat.

REVIEWING STAND TO COST $246,000

The pavillion and accompanying stands for cameramen and reporters will cost $246,000 to build and remove. The stands along Pennsylvania Avenue will require 1.3 million board feet of lumber -- enough to build 30 three-bedroom houses. The lumber has been sold for salvage in advance.

The managers of this year's Inauguration have taken an oath that the parade will not last half the night, as usual. They expect to have it over by daylight's end. Don't bet on it, if you believe the past foreshadows the future. Some people put in a 16-hour day on the curb last time.

Of course, the Inauguration itself is merely the culmination of festivities begun days earlier. Hotels require four- day reservations, paid in advance and non - cancelable, and of course the best addresses have had no space for rent for many weeks.

On Inaugural Eve, there will be balls in at least three leading hotels and one armory. All are official, and all will be visited by Johnson and Vice President - elect Hubert H. Humphrey. These affairs are supposed to pay for themselves through the tickets sold to the party faithful. There will be three bands at each ball, one a service unit supported by tax dollars.

ACT IS OVERPLAYED

An efficiency expert would say all this is extravagance, and he would be right. This nation should see that its President is properly installed in office. But the act is overplayed now and has been for decades. One of these days a courageous President will do away with all the nonsense.

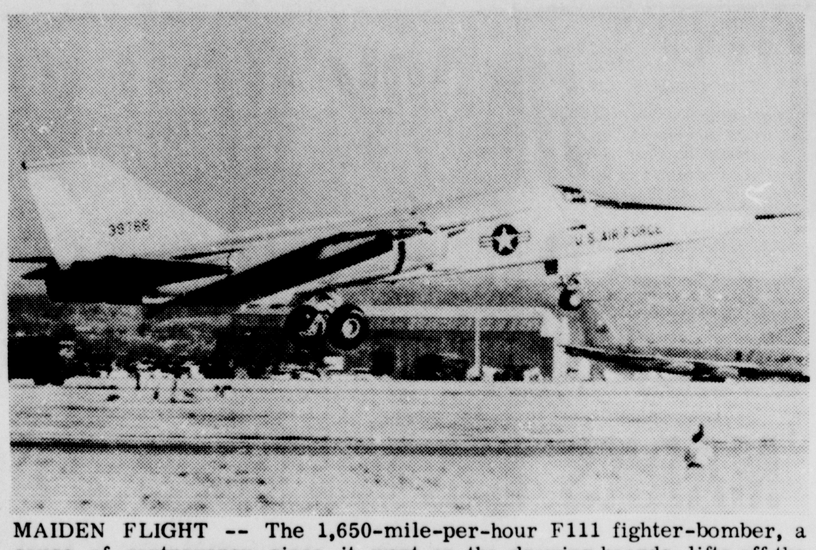

He will go to the Capitol and take his oath of office in the House chamber, in front of members of Congress and the Supreme Court only. He will be inside, out of the winter weather. The nation can watch on TV and read about it in the press. The ceremonies won't last over 30 minutes.

There won't be three days of partying before hand because the President won't stand for it. There won't be a Pennsylvania Avenue parade in the dead of winter. It won't matter whether or not it snows or the temperature is sub-freezing. The Army, Navy, Marines and Coast Guard can go about their business instead of parading.

The Secret Service need only worry about a non-ceremonial trip by the President to and from the Capitol, without thousands of people lining the curbs. Countless hours spent safeguarding the hotels the President will visit on Inaugural Eve will be eliminated, because there will be no balls, no gala-- nothing except a simple swearing-in ceremony, best seen on video, in the newsreels, or read about in the press.

NASSAU, Bahamas --- Geologists believe the Bahama Islands were once part of a land mass extending southward from what is now Florida, possibly to South America. It was during the last Ice Age that these islands began to take shape. Estimates indicate that it was from 11,000 to 64,000 years ago.

Actions are right in proportion as they tend to promote happiness; wrong as they tend to produce the reverse of happiness.
---John Stuart Mill

MAIDEN FLIGHT -- The 1,650-mile-per-hour F111 fighter-bomber, a cause of controversy since it went on the drawing boards, lifts off the runway at Carswell AFB in Fort Worth, Tex., on a "practically perfect" maiden flight despite trouble with its flaps. The trip lasted about one-half of the one-hour scheduled flight. (NEA TELEPHOTO)

HIGHLIGHTS AND SIDELIGHTS FROM YOUR STATE CAPITOL

MOST HOUSE, SENATE LEADERS ALREADY PICKED

When the 73rd General Assembly of the state of Missouri opens its six-month-long session early in January, there will be many new faces and quite a few old set to enact a variety of legislation, not all of which will be outstanding.

In the House, the leadership is already chosen, both for the Democratic majority and the Republican minority.

Rep. Thomas D. Graham of Cole County once again will serve as Speaker of the House. This will be the third straight legislative session to be presided over by the Jefferson City attorney.

Graham first was elected to the state legislature in 1950 and has been re-elected each time since then and will be starting his eighth two-year term. He was first picked as Speaker in 1961 and again in 1963 as well as this past fall.

M. E. (Charlie) Bauer of the Third District in Jackson County, who will be beginning his sixth term in the House this session, will serve as Speaker Pro Tem. Majority Floor Leader will be H. F. (Pat) Patterson of Columbia and Mel Carnahan of Rolla has been elected his assistant.

Donald J. Gralike of St. Louis' Fourteenth District, starting his second term in the House this session, will act as Majority Whip.

On the Republican side, Rep. Ronald Belt of Macon returns for his second term as Minority Floor Leader. Belt first was elected to the House in 1958 and has won re-election in three succeeding campaigns.

Minority Whip once again will be William Phelps of the Seventh District in Jackson County who is serving his third term in the legislature.

Over in the Senate, John W. Joynt of St. Louis, who acted as Majority Floor Leader two years ago, will take over as President Pro Tem, a post held the past two sessions by Sen. Albert M. Spradling of Cape Girardeau.

Majority Floor Leader in the Senate during the 1965 session will be Sen. William B. Waters of Liberty, a veteran of two previous terms. In the 1963 session, Watters served as chairman of the Committee on Criminal Jurisprudence.

MILLIONS IN BONDS VOTED DURING 1964

During the year just ended, over two dozen Missouri communities voted on and approved revenue and/or general obligation bonds for industrial expansion and development which reached into the $15 million range.

Revenue bonds generally don't require a tax increase and are relatively easy to get across while general obligation bonds, on the other hand, usually necessitate an increase in the local levy or a continuation at the present tax level.

The largest bond issue passed during 1964 for industrial purposes was a $5 million revenue proposal to finance a plant for the Ruberoid Company at tiny Anapolis. In this election, not a single resident dissented.

At Webb City, an issue for $325,000 in revenue bonds was approved for a lawnmower parts manufacturing company but the community has been unable to sell the bonds.

Before industrial bonds can be placed before the voters, plans for the bonds' use must be approved by the state Commerce and Industrial Development Commission. Most recent action of the commission was approval of a $150,000 revenue issue for Wheatland which probably will come up for a vote early in January.

On the other side of the fence, local bond issues for sewer and waterworks improvements didn't fare so well during 1964. Of 27 bond issues brought up for a vote, 17 passed and 10 were defeated.

Total on the bonds approved was $10,238,000 while the defeated issues amounted to over $8 million.

The largest issue approved in this area was a $4 million proposition at Kansas City.

STATE WATER SUPPLY SUBJECT OF REPORT

The Missouri Water Resources Board in a required year-end report on water needs in Missouri, has recommended that the 73rd General Assembly enact legislation establishing a state Water Development Fund of $500,000 annually.

This would enable the state to participate in future municipal and industrial water storage projects with the federal government.

WASHINGTON, D. C. -- Four out of ten eligible adults did not bother to vote for President last November and of those who did vote, 39 percent supported the loser. Nevertheless, every taxpayer will help pay for the inauguration of Lyndon B. Johnson on January 20.

How much it will cost is impossible to assess but the bill must run into the millions. Countless Americans watching on television may be thrilled as they watch military units parade across their screen but their enthusiasm might be reduced if they knew how many of their tax dollars went into every footstep.

Presidential inaugurations are a combination of a ceremonial event of historic importance and a Roman holiday unworthy of a modern nation. It is a wonder that taxpayers have not rebelled against footing the bill. It is also a wonder that tradition-breaker Lyndon Johnson has not done anything about it.

For those who do not recall the quadrennial nonsense, here is what will happen on January 20 -- subject only to such changes as winter weather may necessitate. And what happened four years ago, due to a major snowfall on Inaugural Eve, is well remembered by a lot of people.

(Your correspondent is one of those with unfond memories of the 1960 Inauguration. He spent an hour and a half trying to drive 10 blocks in the Inaugural Eve snowstorm, finally abandoned his car in a snowdrift, walked two blocks to his destination, and spent the night on an office couch.)

But it may not snow this time and whether it does or not, the President will journey up Pennsylvania Avenue in his limousine for a noon ceremony at the Capitol. Enroute he will be applauded by crowds four or five deep at the curbs, many of whom have been waiting since dawn to pay their homage.

BLEACHER SEATS COST $15

The more affluent on the ceremonial route will have bleacher seats, costing up to $15. Since mid-December these bleachers have been sitting idle, waiting for their single-day use. Of course, you and I paid for the labor to erect them and we will pay for their destruction after January 20.

When the President gets to the Capitol, there will be a considerable delay while he shakes a zillion hands, but in due course he will be out in the weather again, on a specially - constructed platform on the East Front of the Capitol. A few thousand VIPs, in specially - constructed stands costing about $184,000, will be able to see him and the dignitaries with him, but those watching on TV will have the best view.

After the President takes his oath, he will retire to the Capitol to get warm and to shake some hands he may have missed before. Probably he will tarry for lunch at the Capitol, with TV cameras also in attendance.

Meanwhile the parade will be forming and the President will lead it. The return to the White House, a trip of about 20 blocks, will be accomplished at snail's pace. When he gets back home, LBJ will review the rest of the parade for hours on end. His vantage point will be a specially built pavillion on the White House lawn, featuring wall-to-wall carpeting, bullet - proof glass and infra-red heat.

REVIEWING STAND TO COST $246,000

The pavillion and accompanying stands for cameramen and reporters will cost $246,000 to build and remove. The stands along Pennsylvania Avenue will require 1.3 million board feet of lumber -- enough to build 30 three-bedroom houses. The lumber has been sold for salvage in advance.

The managers of this year's Inauguration have taken an oath that the parade will not last half the night, as usual. They expect to have it over by daylight's end. Don't bet on it, if you believe the past foreshadows the future. Some people put in a 16-hour day on the curb last time.

Of course, the Inauguration itself is merely the culmination of festivities begun days earlier. Hotels require four- day reservations, paid in advance and non - cancelable, and of course the best addresses have had no space for rent for many weeks.

On Inaugural Eve, there will be balls in at least three leading hotels and one armory. All are official, and all will be visited by Johnson and Vice President - elect Hubert H. Humphrey. These affairs are supposed to pay for themselves through the tickets sold to the party faithful. There will be three bands at each ball, one a service unit supported by tax dollars.

ACT IS OVERPLAYED

An efficiency expert would say all this is extravagance, and he would be right. This nation should see that its President is properly installed in office. But the act is overplayed now and has been for decades. One of these days a courageous President will do away with all the nonsense.

He will go to the Capitol and take his oath of office in the House chamber, in front of members of Congress and the Supreme Court only. He will be inside, out of the winter weather. The nation can watch on TV and read about it in the press. The ceremonies won't last over 30 minutes.

There won't be three days of partying before hand because the President won't stand for it. There won't be a Pennsylvania Avenue parade in the dead of winter. It won't matter whether or not it snows or the temperature is sub-freezing. The Army, Navy, Marines and Coast Guard can go about their business instead of parading.

The Secret Service need only worry about a non-ceremonial trip by the President to and from the Capitol, without thousands of people lining the curbs. Countless hours spent safeguarding the hotels the President will visit on Inaugural Eve will be eliminated, because there will be no balls, no gala-- nothing except a simple swearing-in ceremony, best seen on video, in the newsreels, or read about in the press.

HIGHLIGHTS AND SIDELIGHTS FROM YOUR STATE CAPITOL

MOST HOUSE, SENATE LEADERS ALREADY PICKED

When the 73rd General Assembly of the state of Missouri opens its six-month-long session early in January, there will be many new faces and quite a few old set to enact a variety of legislation, not all of which will be outstanding.

In the House, the leadership is already chosen, both for the Democratic majority and the Republican minority.

Rep. Thomas D. Graham of Cole County once again will serve as Speaker of the House. This will be the third straight legislative session to be presided over by the Jefferson City attorney.

Graham first was elected to the state legislature in 1950 and has been re-elected each time since then and will be starting his eighth two-year term. He was first picked as Speaker in 1961 and again in 1963 as well as this past fall.

M. E. (Charlie) Bauer of the Third District in Jackson County, who will be beginning his sixth term in the House this session, will serve as Speaker Pro Tem. Majority Floor Leader will be H. F. (Pat) Patterson of Columbia and Mel Carnahan of Rolla has been elected his assistant.

Capricious Tides In Atmosphere Affect Weather

MONTREAL, Quebec (AP)--New evidence was reported today that capricious tides in the atmosphere -- caused by the same moon and sun which produce oceanic tides -- may affect the world's weather.

A U. S. Weather Bureau scientist who reported this indicated that whereas high tide at the beach is the best time for seaside fun, high tide in the wide blue yonder may be a good time to get out your umbrella.

Meteorologist Glenn W. Brier told about it in a report to the 131st meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He amplified his report at a news conference and said an examination of U. S. weather records for more than 60 years was involved.

He and meteorologist Max A. Woodbury of New York University, who collaborated on some of the research, stressed that their concept -- even if proved -- could not reliably forecast day - to -day rainfall.

They voiced confidence, however, that their reasoning is sound and said the theory could offer a means of forecasting periods of exceptionally heavy rainfall, at least in the United States.

Organization Formed to aid Dope Addicts "kick-" Habit

By BOB POOS
Associated Press Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — An organization peppered with former underworld figures and with a name coined by a be-fuddled dope addict has opened a Midwest headquarters in St. Louis and is attracting junkies with promises of help.

"We hope to take 1,000 narcotics users out of the St. Louis area alone before too long," says Frank Lago, 34, a former dope user and procurer who is a zealous field worker for Synanon. The organization works at curing drug addicts much like Alcoholics Anonymous aids drinkers.

"I literally crawled to Synanon on my hands and knees, weeping," says Mrs. Connie Clark, 27-year-old fashion model and off-Broadway actress. "That was two and a half years ago. My arms were a mass of needle marks and I was covered with cigarette burns—dirty and illkempt. I was a mess."

"Synanon Houses" are located in California, Nevada and Connecticut — near New York City. In these centers, drug addicts who have kicked their habit through a sort of group therapy aid others in doing so.

Although no Synanon House is planned immediately for St. Louis — the $200,000 yearly operating cost is prohibitive — the headquarters here will shuttle Midwest addicts to other houses for treatment.

"We'll be offering immediate help to junkies in the St. Louis area who want it," says Lago, who served four terms in Federal prisons on narcotics convictions. "We'll see that they get to one of our houses."

St. Louis police files show about 700 heavy narcotics users in the area, and officers believe as many as 2,000 others are addicted to some degree.

"There are probably closer to 10,000 people in this part of the country on the stuff," Lago says.

Drug addiction is far more difficult to escape than alcoholism, so the Synanon people live together while undergoing treatment.

Dope is withdrawn immediately, there is no medical treatment and the Synanon method has three stages.

"First," says Lago, "a guy or gal really has to want to kick the habit. We make sure of that. Then we give them some Mickey Mouse job--like sweeping, mopping or washing dishes.

"Pretty soon — usually after two, no more than four days—the user has gone through withdrawal symptoms and begins to adjust to his surroundings. 'Cold turkey' withdrawal elsewhere takes weeks.

"Later, the one-time addict gets a job on the outside but continue to live in our centers. We make certain they get no dope."

The final stage, Lago says, sends the narcotics user out into the world to cope with the problems that caused him to go on drugs.

The addict initially is taken as far as possible from his former surroundings, mainly because he knows the easy way to get dope there.

Synanon claims almost 50 per cent success in its re-habilitation program. This compares with 3 per cent record at the Federal Hospital for Drug Addicts in Lexington, Ky.

"Lexington costs the government about $35 a day per person," says Stan Burney, Synanon's national director. "The cost at Synanon houses is only $3 a day — less than one-tenth the government's cost."

"I believe Synanon has literally saved my life," she says. "I'd be dead by now, one way or the other, if I hadn't gone there for help."

The group has a unit at the Nevada state penitentiary and Synanon people say this has been one of their most successful experiments.

"We'd like to see the same thing started in other penitentiaries," says Lago.

"I was an alcoholic, not a dope addict," Dederich says. "We feel a drug addict is a child and must learn to grow up. As he grows up in Synanon, he is given more responsibilities—and a new life."

Missouri Press Report by Edward Long

A new credit service to assist low-income rural families was announced recently by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

USDA local offices across the country are now accepting applications for loans of up to $2500 to finance small family business, trades, and farming enterprises. Eligibility requirements for persons seeking these advances include an income that does not cover basic family necessities, and a reasonable promise of succeeding in the project to be financed by the loan.

The repayment period is up to 15 years, with the interest rate pegged at a low four and one-eighth percent on the promissory note securing the loan.

Also available under the program are loans for rural cooperatives serving low-income families and providing services and facilities not otherwise available. Cooperative loans are expected to average about $25,000, and the borrowers may take up to 30 years for repayment.

The new loan service will be administered by the much-experienced Farmers Home Administration, under authority delegated from the Office of Economic Opportunity, the coordinating office of President Johnson's War on Poverty.

Three Missouri schools were included in a graduate space-training program for the 1965-66 academic year, recently announced by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Missouri University at Columbia and at Rolla, Washington University, and St. Louis University, both in St. Louis, were all named participants in this government effort to help meet the Nation's future needs for highly trained scientists and engineers.

Individual schools select the students to participate in the program. Each graduate student chosen will receive a stipend of $2400 for 12 months of training, with additional allowances for dependents. Maintenance of a satisfactory record assures the student of three years of pre-doctoral study.

Nation-wide, 1275 graduate students will start work toward doctoral degrees in space-related areas under grants to 142 colleges and universities in all 50 states.

Capricious Tides In Atmosphere Affect Weather

MONTREAL, Quebec (AP)--New evidence was reported today that capricious tides in the atmosphere -- caused by the same moon and sun which produce oceanic tides -- may affect the world's weather.

A U. S. Weather Bureau scientist who reported this indicated that whereas high tide at the beach is the best time for seaside fun, high tide in the wide blue yonder may be a good time to get out your umbrella.

Meteorologist Glenn W. Brier told about it in a report to the 131st meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He amplified his report at a news conference and said an examination of U. S. weather records for more than 60 years was involved.

BASIC TRAINING

In view of this, your newspaperboy is on the first chapter of what will probably be a success story. Not that he's destined for the Hall of Fame—but he might be. For example, Dwight D. Eisenhower, Herbert Hoover, Eddie Rickenbacker, Thomas Edison, Joe DiMaggio, Walt Disney, and Bob Hope all started as newspaperboys.

the shortest distance between the jargon of science and the everyday language of newspapers is Alton Blakeslee

Simply stated, Science is the con[illegible]ng search for nature's truth. Simply stated, nobody tells it better than Alton Blakeslee. To be an Alton Blakeslee, one would have to be current with all the fields of medicine; up on logic and mathematics; at home with chemistry, physics, astronomy, biology, geology—not to mention psychology, ornithology, entomology, ichthyology, and every other "ology".

As Science and Medical Editor of The Associated Press, Blakeslee regularly attracts the largest newspaper audience in his field. Author of "Your Heart Has Nine Lives" and twice the winner of the coveted Lasker award, Blakeslee has also won most every other science writing award at least once.

Judging by the standards Alton Blakeslee sets for science writers, few indeed can qualify. Yet The Associated Press has five more such men to cover the field of science for you: John Barbour and Frank Carey in the East, Robert Goldenstein in the Midwest, William Harrison and Ralph Dighton in the Far West.

In view of this, your newspaperboy is on the first chapter of what will probably be a success story. Not that he's destined for the Hall of Fame—but he might be. For example, Dwight D. Eisenhower, Herbert Hoover, Eddie Rickenbacker, Thomas Edison, Joe DiMaggio, Walt Disney, and Bob Hope all started as newspaperboys.

The newspaperboy is skillfully guided by men trained and experienced to bring out his talents. This combination could well be the most important training in his life. In the long range picture, the money he earns on his route almost seems like a fringe benefit.

AP Business Analyst Talks About Prospects for 1965

NEW YORK (AP) — This year has been so good that fears are felt in many quarters that next year may seem like a letdown because the public is inclined to expect too much of it.

The federal administration reportedly is getting plans ready for any such slump in confidence — plans to stimulate the economy with more tax cuts or greater spending if the pace falters when compared to this year's fast growth.

Almost all economists in and out of government agree, however, that the first few months of 1965 will be even more bountiful than the final ones of 1964.

They cite the special incidents that held back the economy in the autumn, particularly the auto strikes. And they cite special reasons the first few months of 1965 will be more active than they normally would — such as pent-up demand for autos due to the short supply in the closing weeks of 1964, and fear that labor trouble in steel could cut off metal shipments in May.

After that — there's the rub. And that's one reason economists are varying so widely just now in their predictions for 1965 as a whole.

Any letdown after these special stimulants are withdrawn might make both businessmen and consumers nervous. If the fast growth rate of the economy in 1964 — now put at around 7 per cent —slows down perceptibly in late spring, business could pull in its horns, consumers might worry and postpone some purchases.

There are other hazards that economists see ahead, without being sure that real cures are in sight.

The labor force will grow rapidly next year. Much of the growth will be from youths untrained for the jobs mechanized industry offers. The great hopes now being expressed, that the economy will grow fast enough to absorb all the newcomers seeking jobs, may be dashed. And the public is notorious for changing quickly from too much confidence to too much caution.

Inflation isn't a problem now and seems unlikely to be in the months just ahead. But beyond that a number of economists are far from reassured. They cite the recent scattered rises in some basic materials. They note that the auto labor contract and the one the steelworkers are expected to seek could push production costs up faster than factory efficiency is increasing. All this could lay the seeds for future inflation.

Other economists, especially those employed by the banks and other financial institutions see as far from allayed as yet the international financial problems which reached the crisis stage in November when the British pound was tottering. Measures that may still have to be taken to get the pound back on a sound basis, and to keep the dollar from catching the infection, are still uncertain. And drastic measures could upset the American economy as well as that of other non-Communist nations.

Proposed 750-Passenger Jet Would Revolutionize Travel

However, its debut is unlikely before the mid-1970s. Its most exciting possibility then: sharp fare cuts for long-hop travel, greatly stimulating coast-to-coast and overseas passenger traffic.

That, in a nutshell, was first airline reaction to a prospect raised by government plans to pour $750 million into developing a giant military-equipment and troop carrier with 250,000 pounds of pay lift.

A regular transatlantic jet handles 45 tons of cargo on a standard flight, or 120 passengers. Economy flights can take as many as 170 passengers.

The government's announcement Tuesday stirred speculation of a commercial sequel, even though Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara said there were no thoughts along that line.

Major airlines sidestepped on-the-record comment beyond general expressions of interest, citing the many "ifs" involved on operating costs and purchase price.

Selig Altschul, an aviation financial consultant, said if a commercial version met severe demands of economic operation, it probably would open the way for sizable fare cuts and result in a "great stimulation" of travel, chiefly to Europe.

"But there would be offsets to economies of size, he added. "Great improvements would be required by such a huge plane in ground handling facilities.

He mentioned extremely heavy demands on facilities for food service, baggage handling, sanitation, boarding and ticketing that today's airports are not equipped to cope with.

"How do you go about feeding a mob like that?" said a representative of Pan American World Airways.

An American Airlines official, asked about the attractiveness of a 750-ton behemoth in New York-Los Angeles service, observed that three airlines flying the route now carry roughly 1,500 persons each way spread among two dozen flights.

"You might say that would be two loads each way. What kind of frequency of service would this allow?" he asked. "Certainly not what today's air traveler has come to demand."

Polly's Pointers

An Organized Household

by Polly Cramer, Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Polly

DEAR POLLY—For children's favors that can be eaten after a dinner or party, try this: Make trees from cracker ice-cream cones which you cover with green cake frosting and decorate with tiny gum drops or cake decoration candies. Set the trees on paper doilies and place the name cards beside the trees.—AGNES

DEAR POLLY—I am the mother of eight children. My washer, dryer and folding bench are recessed behind a draw curtain off the family room so they are concealed when not in use. Above the washer are three shelves. I have spray painted 21 cardboard boxes and put each child's name on some of them. Others are marked for bathroom rags, mending, dry cleaning, etc. I only have to sort clean things and the children can carry their own clothes to the bedrooms.

My husband built two bins under the folding area by the washer. One is for washing and the other for things to be ironed. Although I wash every day I only iron once a week so this is handy to keep ironing out of the way. I sort mending as I do the washing putting all white, all gray, all red and dark things separately. I only change the thread once for each different color and even mend socks on the sewing machine.

I keep an index card for each child. One side has a record of vaccinations, booster shots, etc. and the dates and list of communicable diseases each child has had. The other side has the child's clothes, shoe and sock sizes. I carry these in my billfold so as to have the sizes available any time I see a special sale.

We store all shoe polish in one box. With this we keep a piece of folded newspaper so the children do not smear the polish all over something else. The cleanup operation is much easier.—JANE

GIRLS—Our sincere thanks to this busy homemaker who took the time from her already crowded schedule to share her favorite time savers with the rest of us.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—After I cut out a dress or anything else with a pattern, I always fold the pattern with the name of the pattern piece out so I can tell at a glance what each one is without unfolding all the pieces to find what I want.—RUTH

Learn Spanish Quickly With Herald Speed-Speech Offer

If you want to learn to communicate in Spanish -- and everyone in the Southwest should -- you don't have to spend more than $2.95 (plus a nine-cent sales tax) to receive an entirely new method of learning this language. It's called SPEED SPEECH, and is now being offered as a public service by The Daily Sikeston Standard.

SPEED SPEECH was created by William Archer, who has devoted the last 13 years to developing this simple method of absorbing a working knowledge of oral Spanish, so that any one from toddler to grandmother can enjoy the satisfaction of using a foreign language.

Spanish SPEED SPEECH is today being made available through The Daily Sikeston Standard, and you will find complete details about the offer.

Since it is being offered as a public service to our readers, we are able to give you the textbook at much less than what it would cost elsewhere.

Along with the SPEED SPEECH textbook is a handy English-Spanish, Spanish-English dictionary, as well as a set of 45 rpm records which aid in learning. While these also sell at $2.95 each (plus tax), you do not have to buy all three at once. Try the textbook first, then add the records and the dictionary.

There is a solid, money-back guarantee on this offer, so if the program does not assist you after purposeful study, or if you are dissatisfied in any way, your money will be refunded.

The SPEED SPEECH offer will be kept in effect for only a limited time, so it is suggested that you place an order immediately. Your whole family can join in the learning process, and have fun. In fact, the family way is the best approach.

New Highway Means a Long Drive to Barn

LIBERTY, Mo. (AP) — After Interstate Highway 35 is built across his farm, Edgar N. Petty figures he'll have to drive eight miles to go from his house to his barn.

The barn is 400 feet from the house, and the highway will go between them. The highway department is scheduled to take possession of the 295-foot-wide right-of-way Tuesday.

Eliminate two stock ponds.

Destroy the solitude of country living.

"I can't possibly assess all the damage," Petty said. "And it's so expensive to go to court."

An appraisal board set a damage figure that is satisfactory with him, Petty said, but the state is suing him to reduce the amount.

A livestock feeder, Petty is director of the Clay County Livestock Association. The prospects of having to relocate are sobering.

"Wherever I go, I'll be feeding cattle," he said.

AP Business Analyst Talks About Prospects for 1965

NEW YORK (AP) — This year has been so good that fears are felt in many quarters that next year may seem like a letdown because the public is inclined to expect too much of it.

The federal administration reportedly is getting plans ready for any such slump in confidence — plans to stimulate the economy with more tax cuts or greater spending if the pace falters when compared to this year's fast growth.

Almost all economists in and out of government agree, however, that the first few months of 1965 will be even more bountiful than the final ones of 1964.

They cite the special incidents that held back the economy in the autumn, particularly the auto strikes. And they cite special reasons the first few months of 1965 will be more active than they normally would — such as pent-up demand for autos due to the short supply in the closing weeks of 1964, and fear that labor trouble in steel could cut off metal shipments in May.

After that — there's the rub. And that's one reason economists are varying so widely just now in their predictions for 1965 as a whole.

Any letdown after these special stimulants are withdrawn might make both businessmen and consumers nervous. If the fast growth rate of the economy in 1964 — now put at around 7 per cent —slows down perceptibly in late spring, business could pull in its horns, consumers might worry and postpone some purchases.

There are other hazards that economists see ahead, without being sure that real cures are in sight.

The labor force will grow rapidly next year. Much of the growth will be from youths untrained for the jobs mechanized industry offers. The great hopes now being expressed, that the economy will grow fast enough to absorb all the newcomers seeking jobs, may be dashed. And the public is notorious for changing quickly from too much confidence to too much caution.

Inflation isn't a problem now and seems unlikely to be in the months just ahead. But beyond that a number of economists are far from reassured. They cite the recent scattered rises in some basic materials. They note that the auto labor contract and the one the steelworkers are expected to seek could push production costs up faster than factory efficiency is increasing. All this could lay the seeds for future inflation.

Other economists, especially those employed by the banks and other financial institutions see as far from allayed as yet the international financial problems which reached the crisis stage in November when the British pound was tottering. Measures that may still have to be taken to get the pound back on a sound basis, and to keep the dollar from catching the infection, are still uncertain. And drastic measures could upset the American economy as well as that of other non-Communist nations.

Proposed 750-Passenger Jet Would Revolutionize Travel

However, its debut is unlikely before the mid-1970s. Its most exciting possibility then: sharp fare cuts for long-hop travel, greatly stimulating coast-to-coast and overseas passenger traffic.

That, in a nutshell, was first airline reaction to a prospect raised by government plans to pour $750 million into developing a giant military-equipment and troop carrier with 250,000 pounds of pay lift.

A regular transatlantic jet handles 45 tons of cargo on a standard flight, or 120 passengers. Economy flights can take as many as 170 passengers.

The government's announcement Tuesday stirred speculation of a commercial sequel, even though Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara said there were no thoughts along that line.

Major airlines sidestepped on-the-record comment beyond general expressions of interest, citing the many "ifs" involved on operating costs and purchase price.

Selig Altschul, an aviation financial consultant, said if a commercial version met severe demands of economic operation, it probably would open the way for sizable fare cuts and result in a "great stimulation" of travel, chiefly to Europe.

"But there would be offsets to economies of size, he added. "Great improvements would be required by such a huge plane in ground handling facilities.

He mentioned extremely heavy demands on facilities for food service, baggage handling, sanitation, boarding and ticketing that today's airports are not equipped to cope with.

"How do you go about feeding a mob like that?" said a representative of Pan American World Airways.

An American Airlines official, asked about the attractiveness of a 750-ton behemoth in New York-Los Angeles service, observed that three airlines flying the route now carry roughly 1,500 persons each way spread among two dozen flights.

"You might say that would be two loads each way. What kind of frequency of service would this allow?" he asked. "Certainly not what today's air traveler has come to demand."

Polly's Pointers®

An Organized Household

Polly

DEAR POLLY—For children's favors that can be eaten after a dinner or party, try this: Make trees from cracker ice-cream cones which you cover with green cake frosting and decorate with tiny gum drops or cake decoration candies. Set the trees on paper doilies and place the name cards beside the trees.—AGNES

DEAR POLLY—I am the mother of eight children. My washer, dryer and folding bench are recessed behind a draw curtain off the family room so they are concealed when not in use. Above the washer are three shelves. I have spray painted 21 cardboard boxes and put each child's name on some of them. Others are marked for bathroom rags, mending, dry cleaning, etc. I only have to sort clean things and the children can carry their own clothes to the bedrooms.

My husband built two bins under the folding area by the washer. One is for washing and the other for things to be ironed. Although I wash every day I only iron once a week so this is handy to keep ironing out of the way. I sort mending as I do the washing putting all white, all gray, all red and dark things separately. I only change the thread once for each different color and even mend socks on the sewing machine.

I keep an index card for each child. One side has a record of vaccinations, booster shots, etc. and the dates and list of communicable diseases each child has had. The other side has the child's clothes, shoe and sock sizes. I carry these in my billfold so as to have the sizes available any time I see a special sale.

We store all shoe polish in one box. With this we keep a piece of folded newspaper so the children do not smear the polish all over something else. The cleanup operation is much easier.—JANE

GIRLS—Our sincere thanks to this busy homemaker who took the time from her already crowded schedule to share her favorite time savers with the rest of us.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—After I cut out a dress or anything else with a pattern, I always fold the pattern with the name of the pattern piece out so I can tell at a glance what each one is without unfolding all the pieces to find what I want.—RUTH

Learn Spanish Quickly With Herald Speed-Speech Offer

If you want to learn to communicate in Spanish -- and everyone in the Southwest should -- you don't have to spend more than $2.95 (plus a nine-cent sales tax) to receive an entirely new method of learning this language. It's called SPEED SPEECH, and is now being offered as a public service by The Daily Sikeston Standard.

SPEED SPEECH was created by William Archer, who has devoted the last 13 years to developing this simple method of absorbing a working knowledge of oral Spanish, so that any one from toddler to grandmother can enjoy the satisfaction of using a foreign language.

Spanish SPEED SPEECH is today being made available through The Daily Sikeston Standard, and you will find complete details about the offer.

Since it is being offered as a public service to our readers, we are able to give you the textbook at much less than what it would cost elsewhere.

Along with the SPEED SPEECH textbook is a handy English-Spanish, Spanish-English dictionary, as well as a set of 45 rpm records which aid in learning. While these also sell at $2.95 each (plus tax), you do not have to buy all three at once. Try the textbook first, then add the records and the dictionary.

There is a solid, money-back guarantee on this offer, so if the program does not assist you after purposeful study, or if you are dissatisfied in any way, your money will be refunded.

The SPEED SPEECH offer will be kept in effect for only a limited time, so it is suggested that you place an order immediately. Your whole family can join in the learning process, and have fun. In fact, the family way is the best approach.

William Archer was always a diligent student of Spanish "by the book," but when he and his family moved to Mexico, he found he could not converse with the natives. This inability to communicate properly was the inspiration for the creation of his SPEED SPEECH.

1964 IN THE CAMERA'S EYE

LYNDON BAINES JOHNSON, 56, of Texas became the 36th president of the United States for a four-year term of his own after finishing out the term of the assassinated John F. Kennedy. Johnson defeated Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona in a Democratic sweep, carrying 44 states with 486 electoral votes (270 needed to win) and reaping 61 per cent of the votes cast. LBJ's new right arm is Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, former Senate majority whip, elected to the vice presidency.

Once level, this three-tier Anchorage street typifies the damage caused throughout Alaska by the continent's greatest earthquake. Fishing fleets, industry, rails and thousands of private homes—60 per cent of the state's developed worth—were left in wreckage. Toll was 130. Tremors rocked West coast cities southward as far as northern California and huge 'quake-spawned tidal waves pounded across the Pacific to damage Hawaii.

SOVIET PREMIER KHRUSHCHEV vowed on his 70th birthday he would not retire but he was tossed out of office unceremoniously and replaced by two "pals," Leonid Brezhnev, here bestowing Hero Medal upon Mr. K, as the Communist party's chief, and Aleksei Kosygin as the new premier.

THIS MUSHROOM CLOUD, the result of Red China's explosion of her first atom bomb, made Peking a member of the exclusive "nuclear club," strengthened her voice in world affairs.

HIT-RUN TACTICS and a steady boring in by Viet Cong guerrillas, coupled with civil strife and shaky Saigon governments, led to a steady deterioration of the war in South Viet Nam. Here, the Reds destroyed or damaged 27 U. S. planes in a mortar attack on a supposedly secret Viet air base.

PICKETING, RIOTS, sit-ins and murder plagued the nation, north and south, despite passage of a civil rights bill. Violence erupted in New York, Rochester, Jersey City. DREW PEARSON SAYS: Two women dare Un-American Activities Committee; They are cited under an 1857 law; Supreme Court has cast doubt on prosecution under this law.

WASHINGTON — The contempt citation against the two Strike For Peace ladies for refusing to testify at a closed-door secret hearing of the House Un-American Activities Committee was based on a law passed in 1857. It was aimed at forcing several House members accused of bribery to appear before a special investigating committee.

The congressmen in 1857 had refused to testify, and colleagues wanted to air the scandal to protect the integrity of the Congress. However, the 108-year-old statute has always been controversial and slightly suspect. Possibly it is even more so as it applies now to Mrs. Dagmar Wilson and Mrs. Donna Allen, the "Peace" leaders who offered to testify at public hearings but claimed they would be put under an unfair onus of guilt by a secret hearing. Hostile committee members, they argued, could give the press a one-sided version of their testimony.

Nonetheless, Speaker John McCormack felt that he was compelled to certify the contempt citation against Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Allen to a Grand Jury after the citation was signed by a majority of members of the Un-American Activities Committee, including Chairman Edwin E. Willis, of Louisiana.

During the 1857 Senate debate on the law, Sen. John P. Hale of New Hampshire charged that it overrode the Constitution and conflicted with the Fifth Amendment. Later, in the Frankfeld Case the Supreme Court chided Congress for leaving the Speaker or the President of the Senate no discretion in moving for Grand Jury action against balky witnesses before a committee.

In a legal brief on the Wilson-Allen Case, Mark Talisman, aide to Rep. Charles Vanik, D-Ohio, also stresses that the two women were "willing to testify before an open committee and the press which goes to the point that they . . . are unwilling to have themselves disgraced because of the current cloud of disgrace placed on witnesses before closed hearings of the Un-American Activities Committee."

What happened at the secret hearing of the Un-American Activities Committee has not leaked out, but it can be revealed that Rep. August E. Johansen, the lame-duck Republican from Michigan, was the only congressman who lost his temper.

"You can testify if you want to. Do you refuse?" he snapped.

"Yes, I accept the gentleman's words," replied Mrs. Allen. "I refuse."

"Do you realize that you run the risk of being cited for contempt?" asked subchairman Jack Pool, D-Texas, more sympathetically.

--SECRET HEARINGS ALLOWED--

Committee Counsel Nittle said that the Subcommittee, under its rules, could order a secret hearing if national security was involved.

"Do you mean to say that a security matter is involved here?" asked Larry Speiser, an attorney for the American Civil Liberties Union, who was representing the two witnesses.

"Not necessarily, until we have more facts," replied Nittle. "But the McCarran act was designed to exclude people like this Prof. Yasui, in my opinion. We also have the right to hold an executive hearing if the witnesses are apt to give derogatory or defamatory testimoney."

"I have no derogatory or defamatory information to give against anyone," insisted Mrs. Allen.

"All right, there are other matters involved here which the subcommittee has discussed and which lead us to believe that testimony should be taken behind closed doors," broke in Rep. Richard H. Ichord, D-Mo. "However, I am not at liberty to tell you what these matters are."

They involve security?" inquired Speiser.

"My statement will have to stand as it is," answered Ichord.

NOTE — Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Allen later told this column that to their best knowledge the Japanese professor under investigation for his trip to the United States was a descendant of an "aristocratic family," and not a Communist, though they weren't completely sure of this. They had urged the State Department to admit him, which was why they were summoned before the Un-American Activities Committee. They explained that the membership of the Japanese "Council Against the A and H Bombs," which he heads, was about half Communist, and that he was trying to keep both sides together in the interest of world peace. Today in U. S. History

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1845, Texas, the only state that had been a republic, was admitted to the Union. It became the 28th state.

On this date

In 1778, Savannah, Ga., was captured by the British.

In 1808, Andrew Johnson, the 17th president, was born in Raleigh, N. C.

In 1848, gas lights were installed in the White House.

In 1863, Arizona was organized as a territory.

In 1945, the Office of Price Administration announced that a 4 per cent cut would be ordered in ceiling prices of used cars.

Ten years ago - U. N. Secretary - General Dag Hammarskjold announced he would go to Peiping to discuss the freeing of 11 American fliers charged with spying in Red China.

Cotton Situation Is Reviewed by Advisory Group

At a two day meeting in Washington, D. C. early in December, the Advisory Committee on Cotton considered the present cotton situation, the effectiveness of the 2-year cotton program enacted by Congress in April, 1964, and the need for additional cotton legislation when this program ends July 31, 1966.

After hearing various situation reports, the Committee agreed that the overall cotton situation has improved under the new legislation. The supply of cotton still substantially exceeds needs, due principally to (1) record-high yields per acre this year resulting in an unexpectedly large crop, and (2) outlook for exports somewhat less than last year. The domestic allotment program did not curtail production enough, mainly due to the late date of enactment of the law, the Committee said.

A substantial majority of the Committee believes the 2-year program, perhaps with some modifications, should be extended by the Congress for additional years. The large supply of cotton now on hand was recognized as the No. 1 cotton problem, and discussion centered on various actions which might be taken, such as (1) stepping up domestic consumption and exports of cotton, and (2) ways to encourage wide participation in the domestic allotment program. Other items were considered by the Committee, including the price - support level for the 1965 crop.

Domestic consumption of cotton is estimated to be at least 1 million bales higher than in 1963-64 under provisions of the 2- year cotton legislation which make cotton available to U.S. textile mills at prices no higher than those at which cotton is available for export to foreign markets. Demand for cotton goods has been extremely strong in recent months. Reductions in the price of cotton items to consumers are in evidence and this trend is expected to become widespread in the months ahead, according to the committee.

A young wife who went to visit her mother for a week left several notes about the house for her husband. One in the coffee can reminded him of her love, and another on the TV set asked him to do some errands--but the one he found among his white shirts brought him up short. It read: "Where do you think you're going that you need a white shirt?"

OUR ANCESTORS

"What a fight it was! There's Hepplewhite and Chippendale hittin' each other over the head with chairs!"

Today in U. S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Tuesday, Dec. 29, the 164th day of 1964. There are two days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1845, Texas, the only state that had been a republic, was admitted to the Union. It became the 28th state.

On this date

In 1778, Savannah, Ga., was captured by the British.

In 1808, Andrew Johnson, the 17th president, was born in Raleigh, N. C.

In 1848, gas lights were installed in the White House.

In 1863, Arizona was organized as a territory.

In 1945, the Office of Price Administration announced that a 4 per cent cut would be ordered in ceiling prices of used cars.

Ten years ago - U. N. Secretary - General Dag Hammarskjold announced he would go to Peiping to discuss the freeing of 11 American fliers charged with spying in Red China.

Cotton Situation Is Reviewed by Advisory Group

At a two day meeting in Washington, D. C. early in December, the Advisory Committee on Cotton considered the present cotton situation, the effectiveness of the 2-year cotton program enacted by Congress in April, 1964, and the need for additional cotton legislation when this program ends July 31, 1966.

After hearing various situation reports, the Committee agreed that the overall cotton situation has improved under the new legislation. The supply of cotton still substantially exceeds needs, due principally to (1) record-high yields per acre this year resulting in an unexpectedly large crop, and (2) outlook for exports somewhat less than last year. The domestic allotment program did not curtail production enough, mainly due to the late date of enactment of the law, the Committee said.

A substantial majority of the Committee believes the 2-year program, perhaps with some modifications, should be extended by the Congress for additional years. The large supply of cotton now on hand was recognized as the No. 1 cotton problem, and discussion centered on various actions which might be taken, such as (1) stepping up domestic consumption and exports of cotton, and (2) ways to encourage wide participation in the domestic allotment program. Other items were considered by the Committee, including the price - support level for the 1965 crop.

Domestic consumption of cotton is estimated to be at least 1 million bales higher than in 1963-64 under provisions of the 2- year cotton legislation which make cotton available to U.S. textile mills at prices no higher than those at which cotton is available for export to foreign markets. Demand for cotton goods has been extremely strong in recent months. Reductions in the price of cotton items to consumers are in evidence and this trend is expected to become widespread in the months ahead, according to the committee.

A young wife who went to visit her mother for a week left several notes about the house for her husband. One in the coffee can reminded him of her love, and another on the TV set asked him to do some errands--but the one he found among his white shirts brought him up short. It read: "Where do you think you're going that you need a white shirt?"

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., had Estate of $149 Million

NEW YORK (AP) -- The late John D. Rockefeller Jr., whose life was largely devoted to philanthropy, left a net estate officially appraised Thursday at $149,096,455.

Rockefeller, who was 86 when he died in Tucson, Ariz., on May 11, 1960, made a will in 1958 and subsequently made three additions or changes.

The State Transfer Tax Department disclosed Rockefeller had gross assets of $160,598,584.

The bulk of the fortune was in securities valued at more than $151 million. Real estate holdings were worth $750,000.

His widow, Martha Baird Rockefeller of New York inherits an income for life from a trust fund of about half the estate. She was his second wife, having married him in 1951. Rockefeller's first wife, the former Abby Greene Aldrich and mother of his six children died in 1948.

After the trust fund for his wife, Rockefeller left the bulk of the rest of his estate of about $75 million to the Rockefeller Brothers Fund, Inc., for charity purposes.

Earlier, their father had established trusts of about $200 million for them.

Under terms of the will, the Metropolitan Museum of Art received a collection of works valued at $695,500.

FORCED FROM HOME -- Twillia Kiplinger, four, has a bowl of soup in a Red Cross emergency evacuation station at the state fair grounds in Salem, Ore. Her family fled its home when four feet of floodwaters swept into the house. About 1,000 persons were forced from their homes in Salem's Keizer residential section as the Willamette River climbed 10 feet above flood level. At least 10 persons have been killed in the Oregon floods. (NEA TELEPHOTO)

In summing up the interviews Congressman Jones urged each of the fifteen candidates to write him a letter within the next two weeks, if they still had a desire to enter any of the academies. "You must make your own decision with your conscience. We expect each man to make a contribution to his country by staying in the academy until graduation if at all possible.

"I will remind you too, that only 15 of you of the 43 who took the entrance examination made over a 65 grade, and the top person made 78. Had you been lower than 65 you would not have completed your first year.

"There are five openings, two for West Point, two for the Airforce, and one for the Naval Academy, the rest of you will become alternates and have a good chance of entering."

It was learned that at present there are 4,100 at Annapolis, 2,700 at the Airforce Academy, and about 3,000 at West Point.

Some doubt is expressed as to how sweeping the "little Cabinet" shakeup will be. All such officials submit their resignations, as a matter of formality, when a president is newly inaugurated. The President can give a man the gate by merely accepting the resignations.

But will he do this, for example, to Charles S. Murphy, undersecretary of agriculture? Murphy was a top manager of Johnson's campaign for the presidential nomination in 1960.

Or to W. Averell Harriman, longtime Democratic stalwart and specialist in foreign affairs? He is an undersecretary of state. Insiders take into consideration talk that relations between him and Johnson are not close.

Without firing anybody, the President can put the LBJ brand on much of the government when he fills a long list of existing vacancies.

Nightingales Are Viet Nam Girls of Air

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — South Viet Nam has its own Florence Nightingales of the air, a platoon of hardy girl paratroopers trained to jump with the troops in combat.

They are all trained nurses. Their talents were demonstrated in a recent exhibition when they leaped out of lumbering C47s high over Saigon and landed in the Saigon River.

They were right on target.

Dragging waterproof medical kits behind them, they swam to the river bank and were soon administering first aid to several paratroopers who were injured in the jump.

But not before they showed they were women first. They attended to such feminine requisites as lipstick and combing their hair before tending to first aid.

No doubt they were working on the premise that a wounded soldier wants a nurse as beautiful as she is competent.

The paratroop nurses are given the same rigorous training as male paratroopers and are trained also in the use of weapons.

Emergencies

Three persons were treated and dismissed from the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community Hospital Monday.

Crichel Wilkins, Morehouse, dropped piece of steel on foot; Grace Powell, Sikeston, cut finger with knife and Patricia Williams, Sikeston, fell and hit head.
